PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

Mr. CAPANO asked and obtained permission for the Committee on Workmen's Compensation to meet during the session of the House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Helm, has an important matter to bring to the attention of the House.

Mr. HELM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent of the House to make a brief statement.

The SPEAKER. It is not necessary. The Chair always recognizes the gentleman without unanimous consent.

Mr. HELM. I thank the Speaker.

You see, the Speaker knows what I am going to talk about, and I have just been told by one of my colleagues right alongside of me that he is trying to kill me with kindness.

Mr. Speaker, I have from week to week for two or three months now been receiving what is known as, and has been called publicly "The Yellow Sheet."

This morning I got the latest edition of "Dispelling the Fog" from my post office box. For the Members who have not read the latest epistle, I would like to read the first three paragraphs:

All right Mr. Helm! All right Mr. Johnson! You have endeavored to reconstruct the 1953 scene. A parallel case, you say!

You fly in the face of the facts. You compare the existing legislative situation with the maneuverings that were a part of the 1953 scene.

Doubtless, as legislative leaders, you have your reasons, being captives of the building neophytes who control your decisions.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I am not a very brilliant individual, so I had to go the dictionary to find out what "neophytes" were. I have Webster's Dictionary, the American College Dictionary, here before me and it says a neophyte is a converted heathen, a heretic, a novice, a beginner.

I have a question I would like to ask, Mr. Speaker, and the Speaker may answer this at his leisure; I do not care whether he does it from the floor or whether he does it in a future edition of "Dispelling the Fog".

I would like to know who the bubbly neophytes are who control my decisions? I happen to have been a member of the Tax Conference Committee and I met on that Committee in good faith. I state publicly no one, no one, controlled my decision as to what type of a tax program I could be for or be against. I very much resent the implication that anyone told me what I had to do. And I am sure that same situation existed not only for Mr. Johnson, my colleague, but the other two members of the Tax Conference Committee.

Then the Speaker goes on and he says there is no parallel to the 1953-1959 tax muddle. With that I entirely agree. There is no parallel. The Speaker pointed out to you the other day, yesterday or the day before, in his remarks that they were prepared to offer 18 votes for a tax program in 1953. Where there is no parallel in this: They were never asked to place those 18 votes on the line, and in 1959 we have been. We were asked to give 15 votes for a tax program. In 1953 you might have had them, but they were never requested and never needed. We passed our tax program with Republican votes in that Session. You can take credit for having 18 votes ready to vote for it, all you want to, but there was not one vote from our side for the program.

When you start talking about people controlling your thinking, it is very peculiar that I picked up the morning Inquirer and read, in a column by the very same gentleman the Speaker quoted the other day, Mr. John Cummings, the headline "The Mayor Tosses a Monkey Wrench". Clear from Los Angeles he tossed the monkey wrench into the operation of this House of Representatives. I say to you, if anyone controlled the thinking of this Legislature, it happened to be Mayor Dilworth of the city of Philadelphia. At least I am convinced of that when I realize what happened last Wednesday afternoon.

The SPEAKER. While the Floor Leaders are marking the calendar, does any other Member of the House desire to address the House, by unanimous consent?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I am happy at this point to notice that the gentleman on the other side of the aisle has now expressed two separate and distinct reasons for what happened here last Tuesday.

Mr. McCORMACK. I ask unanimous consent of the House - - -

The SPEAKER. It is not necessary. This is an open period.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, then I withdraw that request.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is at liberty to go after anybody's scalp that he may have in mind, including the Speaker's.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether I am going to create somewhat of a fog, or dispell it, but in the light of what the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Helm, just said about the Mayor of Philadelphia, I wish to state my position, as a duly elected Representative from Philadelphia, on the tax program.

It seems to me that there have been a lot of reckless statements made in the House, and unfortunately they were made by both sides. It was my position, from the beginning, that until the city of Philadelphia got a fair share of the increased taxes as a result of the four percent program, I was going to be against the tax. There has been widespread rumor by authoratative sources that the other chamber intends to chop up the appropriations to Philadelphia. As a result of the failure to pass the personal property tax, it stands to reason that some of the appropriations are going to have to be cut unless we pass some other tax measures to supplement that $55 million.

It is true we had caucuses and we discussed this at length, but I want to say that at no time, to my knowledge, did Mayor Dilworth or anybody else suggest what Philadelphia should do. I want to say too, even if there had been suggestions, they would have fallen on deaf ears until I was satisfied that Philadelphia was getting a fair share of the tax revenue along with the other 66 counties. I think there is nothing immoral or improper about that position. I think any Member of this House, if he felt that his particular county was not getting a fair share of the money taken in as a result of this tax program, would vote the same way.

There have been suggestions that we are not free agents here. I want to say this. I have been in this General Assembly since 1953 and no one has ever directed my vote or told me how to vote or forced me to vote for or against a tax program. I think that at a particular time like this, when we are facing so many crises with respect to the shortage of funds throughout the Commonwealth, we ought to stand on our own two feet. So long as we are satisfied that this money will be spread on an equitable and morally sound basis, we should not do anything. But once we are satisfied, we should vote for a program.

We know too that the only reason there is so much opposition on the Minority side is because they want to cast the blame on the Democrats. That is probably politically expedient and it is pretty hard to divorce politics from a tax program but, nevertheless, the day must come, and it must come quickly, when we are going to have to rise above political expediency, pass the necessary tax program and adjourn.

But, I want to say clearly, despite the newspaper stories on the part that the Mayor of Philadelphia played, I know nothing about it, and it was not brought to my attention about the Mayor's position. I want to reiterate, regardless of his position, until I am satisfied that Philadelphia gets a fair share of the tax yield, I am going to be against the tax. You might call that obstructionism or by any other term. I think it is a fair, sound reasoning for voting against the bill at the present time. If we get what we are entitled to on the basis of the money that the county of Philadelphia pays into the treasury of the Commonwealth, there is no reason why I should not vote for any program, but until that time comes I must say that I am going to be against the tax program.

Mr. HELM. Mr. Speaker, may I ask the Minority Leader to yield perhaps until I answer the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

The SPEAKER. Did the gentleman desire to interrogate?

Mr. HELM. I do not desire to interrogate, Mr. Speaker. I only want to answer a couple things that the gentleman from Philadelphia said.

The SPEAKER. The Minority Leader does not also desire to be recognized, does he?

Mr. HELM. I can not answer.

The SPEAKER. We will recognize the gentleman from Armstrong. The Chair would like to, as soon as possible, get back to the calendar, having opened the gate wide.

Mr. HELM. Mr. Speaker, I believe this is a serious enough accusation that we should spend the necessary time on it, if it takes two hours.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. HELM. Mr. Speaker, I would like to answer something that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormick said.

He said that no one, so far as he knew, had anything to do with controlling what the Democratic delegation did. I would like to read from Mr. Cummings' article, for the information of the gentleman, and I have always been one who believes that the newspaper reporters are able to delve into and get the truth in most situations.

Mayor Dilworth performed admirably in the main oratorical event which opened the International Track and Field Meet at Franklin Field last Saturday. Good as he was at welcoming the Russian competitors to Philadelphia, his part in the big show was not nearly as impressive as his demonstration of personal physical strength a few days earlier.

He threw a monkey wrench all the way from Los Angeles to Philadelphia. It landed on the greensward—there's a kind of a joke there—with such force that it ricocheted to Harrisburg to seriously cripple the tax making machinery of the Commonwealth.

Democrats, from the Governor's office down to the last faithful member of the party in the last row of the House, credit the Philadelphia Mayor with tossing the monkey wrench farther and with more telling effect than it was ever flung before. They say he would have been a knockout in the shotput, the javelin or the discus throw on Franklin Field.

Mr. Dilworth was in Los Angeles attending a national Conference of Mayors last Wednesday when his Harrisburg operative reached him by telephone. He informed the Mayor that all the signs of the times pointed to a bipartisan agreement on a bill increasing by one half of one percent the Sales Tax Law which now calls for a levy of 3½ percent.

The Republicans, a minority in the House, where all revenue raisers must originate, were to provide the Democratic majority with 14 votes which would have been sufficient for final passage. Rep. James Dougherty, of Philadelphia's First District, having ascertained in caucus that six Democrats from his town were refusing to support the bill, got in touch with Rep. Bill Green, Chairman of the City Committee.

On instructions from Green, transmitted through Dougherty, the revolt of the six Philadelphians ended. Later, Speaker Andrews laid the blame for the collapse of the agreement on the doorstep of Dougherty, an "order man."

The bill seemed headed for passage by a one-vote margin when the news reached Dilworth in California. He telephoned Green. He thought it a mistake to support a "Republican bill" without some pledge or promise on Philadelphia matters in which the Mayor is vitally interested.

Without any great delay Green withdrew Philadelphia support. The Republicans, incensed, withdrew their support, charging they were being made victims of a Philadelphia blackjack.

Gov. Lawrence was disturbed, since he had fought hard to bring about the bipartisan agreement. Passage of the bill would have been a long step in the direction of solving his tax problems.

He called a meeting of Democratic minds in his office Monday, Mayor Dilworth's record-breaking monkey wrench toss was discussed. It was finally decided to mark time in the hope that in a day or so bipartisan discussion of the tax situation would be resumed.

Now, unless someone can prove to me that the facts stated in Mr. Cummings' article are not true, I will accept them. I say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty, as I sat on that conference committee, along with the other seven members, I certainly did not place on the trading block anything for Armstrong County before I agreed to go along with the program. Steven McCann, the Majority Leader, did not place anything on the block that he demanded for Greene County before he went along with that program, nor did any other member of the conferece Committee.

If we are going to place the passage of the tax program in this House on the basis of what we are going to get for our individual counties, I say to you, Mr. Speaker, we are going to be here until December, 1960, because we will never get a program through this House. The Republican Members, and I believe the Democratic Members, of that committee met in good faith, worked diligently in trying to solve a problem without putting it on the basis of what we can get for each other, and I say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, if his attitude is going to be that he is not going to vote for a tax program until he gets $12 million more for the schools of Philadelphia or $4.5 million for the General Hospital in Philadelphia, he has got an awful long wait.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, consent to be interrogated?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman undoubtedly welcomes the opportunity.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. What is the fair share of the revenue of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that the Philadelphia group demands in order to vote for taxes?

Mr. McCORMACK. Well, Mr. Speaker, I cannot speak for the Philadelphia delegation. I can only speak for myself.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Then I ask you what is the fair share that you demand?

Mr. McCORMACK. I will seriously consider voting for a tax program if Philadelphia is included in the County Health Plan and if Philadelphia gets $4.5 million for the Philadelphia General Hospital. I feel if we at least get those two measures I will satisfy my conscience that I should vote for the bill.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. In other words these are the minimum requirements you have in order to vote for a tax program?

Mr. McCORMACK. Those are the minimum requirements, yes, Mr. Speaker.

I understand that I cannot insure what the Senate will do with the County Health Plan although I have read in the papers what they intended to do, and I cannot insure that we will get any money for Philadelphia General Hospital, but I feel that when it gets down to chopping up this buget, and there are conference committees appointed, that we ought to have some representation on these to see that the fate does not befall us this Session that has befallen us in past Sessions.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Thank you, Mr. McCormack. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to make a few remarks.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. There isn't a county in the Commonwealth that doesn't have a financial problem. In the city of Pittsburgh we have a particularly serious one with regard to our schools. We are interested if we can get Philadelphia parity. We had it rejected on certain occasions.

I certainly do not think it good government that every county should logroll in order to get certain extra advantages. We have an Appropriations Committee, and in addition Mr. McCormack is a Member of the majority party. If the majority party, acting under the Governor, is not going to give each and every sector of this Commonwealth the aid to which it is entitled, then we are in a sad state.

I believe the concept of government which Mr. McCormack feels is necessary is unsound; they will never get a tax program. It opens the door for anyone to say he will not vote for a program unless so many tax dollars are returned to his community. Nobody is satisfied with the revenue he receives. We have an overall program. We have a situation where the money must be divided to the best interests of the people in the state as a whole.

I am quite certain the senior Senator from Pennsylvania, Mr. Clark, would not agree with his concept, because he often asks for things for a community which does not pay into the United States Government as much as it receives. We think if we have a policy such as announced by Mr. McCormack, it is merely an excuse on the part of people to avoid the responsibility to decide the issue. If we as Legislators do not like a program we should vote against it whether we are Republicans or Democrats, but should not say we should have a quid pro quo in consideration for our vote, whether it be for the benefit of the community in which we live or otherwise. We think this is absolutely unsound and we feel that it will lead to very, very militating results to the detriment of the people of this Commonwealth.

STATEMENT BY SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair, after a brief statement, will recognize the Minority Leader.

For thirty years it has been the Chair's idea that at stated intervals this House should be in open session, or in committee of the whole, during which any Member who has something on his mind and his heart would be privileged to address the entire House. I have always hoped we would reach the point where, as I said, at stated intervals we would have a session devoted to miscellaneous discussions so that any Member, without obtaining unanimous consent, or without interrupting the orderly parliamentary procedure, could say and discuss things as Members have been discussing them this morning. Maybe if I live long enough there will be enough Members who agree with me so that we actually will have a session regularly at stated intervals where any Member of the House will be privileged to get up and say what he has on his mind. Of course I think you would have to place some limitations on the time consumed by any individual, but I still think it is good idea.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I would like the privilege of interrogating the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty, please.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Dougherty, permit himself to be interrogated.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I shall, Mr. Speaker, Not being an attorney, I wish to state that if the Minority Leader wishes to throw legal questions, the man from Philadelphia will do his utmost to answer them.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Dougherty has qualified himself this morning as a tax expert and within that realm I desire to interrogate him.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman consent to be interrogated?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. As a tax expert, no. As the "little man," yes.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Well, as the leader of the Philadelphia Delegation?

Mr. SHPEAKER. Well then, the Minority Leader can proceed.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Well, if the questions are too difficult, I will withdraw them and let him be the judge.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I will try to answer anything. The Minority Leader is an old pal of mine.

Mr. SPEAKER. Then the gentleman from Philadelphia does desire to answer the questions?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Anything and everything pertaining to the tax program.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. This is really serious. You have, Mr. Dougherty, put in a series of tax bills this morning, one of which increases the corporate income tax from six to ten per cent, increasing the permanent tax on public utilities from eight to sixteen mills, extending the corporate income tax to mutual life insurance companies, mutual savings banks and those are the net effects of it. Now, I just want to ask a few questions about it.

Do you know how much that will increase the revenue of the Commonwealth by raising the CNI on corporations from six to ten percent?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. In detail, no, but in the overall picture I would judge it around $235 million.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. So that the effect of your first bill would be to increase the taxes on business corporations in the state some $235 million? Is that correct?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. That is correct.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Then let us get down to your tax on mutual life insurance companies and mutual savings banks. How much is your estimate on what that will bring in?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Now maybe you have misunderstood me. I said the overall tax of the three bills would be $235 million. Individually, I do not know. This is a tax program that tax experts arrived at, with the assistance of Congressman Bill Green of Philadelphia. Sitting in his home in Longport, Bill Green and I, on Sunday, produced this as our answer to a tax program.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Let's pursue that. May I take it from what you just said that this tax program is the considered, cold-blooded tax program of Bill Green of Philadelphia, meets with the approval of your Philadelphia delegation and is the answer to the tax program for this session. Is that correct?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I will not say that to most of it. I don't know what is in back of Bill Green's mind; there may be another tax program. I would not say, this is cold-blooded; I do not know where "cold-blooded" would fit into the picture there.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I mean coolly calculated.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Coolly calculated.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. In other words, coolly calculated?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Yes, sir.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Now you said you sat down with Bill Green on Sunday and you came up with this package?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. That is correct.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Also, may I ask you further if you discussed this package with Governor Lawrence?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I did.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Does this package meet with the approval of Governor Lawrence?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I don't think it does.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Does Governor Lawrence know that the tax is being introduced?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I don't believe he knew I was going to introduce it. I told him I was thinking about it.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Have you discussed it with Mr. Wheeler, the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I have. I asked him to get it out for me.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. And what did Mr. Wheeler say?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Oh, he gives all tax measures consideration.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I would say if he had done what he has done in the past, he will consider them in committee about thirty seconds.

Do you have a promise from Mr. Wheeler that the bills will be sent to the floor for early action?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I do not.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. You don't have any?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I do not.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. One further question: This budget of Governor Lawrence contains an appropriation of $10 millions this session for the Industrial Development Authority. If this corporate income tax raise goes into effect, will we need the $10 million to invite new business into Pennsylvania?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I believe we will.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. You think we will still need the $10 million to invite new business into Pennsylvania if they have to pay a higher corporate tax rate than any other State in the Union?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I know it is a problem. We always hear about business coming into Pennsylvania or going out of Pennsylvania, but I never heard anyone get up yet talking about little fellows who have some bread but no butter to put on it.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. That is beside the point. By having business come into Pennsylvania means jobs, does it not?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. That is right.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. To get butter to put on the bread. Isn't that right?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. That is right.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Do you know how much taxes business is paying in the nearly $200 billion budget, how much the share of business is?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. I have no idea.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I would say it is approximately half at the present time. Do you figure what all types of business pay through taxes on their income, the 40 some percent they pay in sales tax amounts to just about half the budget, and your bills would add about $235 million more, is that correct?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. That's right.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. And does Bill Green figure that he has a pretty good chance of getting these bills through?

Mr. DOUGHERTY. Well, I wouldn't speak of what he figures. I figure I would like to.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I believe that is the end of the interrogation and, not having anything more to say, will stand on his answers.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I would like, of course, to begin on the calendar, but I just want to make one corrective statement.

I think the Minority Leader will agree with me. Not participating in the debate or the argument, I believe the gentleman will agree that those who were capable of estimating the percentage of tax in the sales tax, used the figure that business, they thought, paid approximately twenty-five percent, very near that, of the $615 million in the estimated yield of the existing law that the corporate net income tax they pay, but in the percentage of the budget of the tax yield now is by far, the sales tax is the greatest percentage yielder of the income in which many years back, not too many years back, corporate net income tax carried, or corporations carried, the major load of taxes of the operation of the Commonwealth, and now, if you compare the '57, the '55, the '53, the '51 yields of income on the taxes, you find the trend has shifted, and it is very clear when you compare the previous bienniums and see that here, in a large section of the dollar, the sales tax yield, of course, now produces the greatest portion of the income and, had the bill passed the other day, it certainly would have again changed that bite of percentage that would have been deciphered into a dollar, when we prepare such a percentage program for the information of the public and the Members.

Mr. Speaker, if we may, I would like to start with the first reading and move right through.

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 988 Printer's No. 1092 and

House Bill No. 1057 Printer's No. 961

were passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1142, entitled:

An Act amending the "Public School Code of 1949" approved March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30) changing requirements for construction contracts.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of the bill to secure some information for the House generally, either Mr. Comer, Luty or Kee.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Comer.

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, I direct the gentleman's attention to page 2 of House Bill 1142, and read to him the following. Perhaps if he had the bill there before him, he could answer my questions.

On line 11, page 2, we have bracketed out from the bill, "a contract or" and we have the word following it "separate" contracts put in the bill, which leads me to the interpretation that under any contract let on bids, referring particularly to plumbing, heating and ventilating or lighting systems which would cost $1,000 it would be necessary to let separate contracts. It is mandatory.

Mr. COMER. Was that question, Mr. Speaker, under or over $1,000?

Mr. STROUP. $1,000 on any contract for plumbing, heating, ventilating or lighting systems under exemption to contracts let on bids, you would necessarily have to have a separate contract. In other words, you could not let all of the contract out for one bid, you must make the mechanics separately?

Mr. COMER. That is right.

Mr. STROUP. I thank the gentleman for that interpretation.

Mr. Speaker, I believe this is bad legislation because it prohibits the school boards from getting perhaps a better bid by lumping the contracts together. Therefore, I would advise the House it is best to defeat this measure for that particular reason.

The other sections of the bill appeal to me as being quite warranted, and I dislike really to defeat the bill when it eliminates requirements for architectural services and when it also inserts the use of pre-fab units.

Perhaps it would be wise to have the Majority Leader, if the Minority Leader would consent, and the House would, for us to review this situation, make sure that my criticism is correct, and thereby adjust it accordingly. I would make that suggestion if it would meet with the Majority Leader's approval.

Mr. McCANN. I beg your pardon, sir?

Mr. STROUP. I was suggesting that due to the criticism which I voiced concerning the use of separate contracts for mechanicals that rather than take the chance of defeating the bill, unless the Majority Leader feels it will carry any way, we might hold the bill over to see if we might correct that situation in the bill.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I certainly can concur with whatever agreement the gentlemen work out. We checked on the bill, Mr. Johnson and I, and they said there was no objection by anyone at that time. I have no objection.

I met with Mr. Comer this morning and he said the bill was amended by corrective legislative red stamped amendments yesterday or the previous day. Therefore, it was in order as far as the Legislative Reference Bureau was concerned, and whatever is agreed to here can certainly be handled very nicely. It was marked fast roll call, negative votes only; it was not known if there were any negative votes on the bill.

Mr. STROUP. Well, I will leave the matter entirely to the Majority Leader's discretion. As the bill presently stands, I would advise the House to vote against it.

Mr. COMER. Am I in the position at this time after the vote has been taken to explain the reason for this bill?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order to discuss the bill.

Mr. COMER. Then I am in order, Mr. Speaker, to explain this bill. This bill came through last session through the efforts of someone in the conference committee who attached an amendment to a school bill. Now our school districts along with other state systems on building have always been under the 1913 separation act. All this does is place the schools back under the separation act of 1913 were it has operated successfully for 45 years.

MOTION TO POSTPONE

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be placed on the final passage postponed calendar.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. A. M. LEE. I feel that Mr. Comer has explained that this bill merely puts back into the Public School Code what was there prior to last Session of the legislature. I feel the bill is in good shape, it is in good order and in a position to be voted upon today. I therefore ask the Members to vote against the motion to place the bill on the postponed calendar.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I assure you we did not know until now, of this motion to place the bill on the postponed calendar, and the opposition to the motion. I am going to ask the gentleman who made the motion if a division is acceptable.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. May I make this statement? On this side of the House we have tried to cooperate with our caucus by pretty much covering bills before they are acted upon on the floor.

I realize there was an amendment placed into this bill. It is true that Mr. McCann and I discussed the bill at the desk this morning, and I thought the bill would be brought up and debated, and the amendment would be explained and be ready for a vote. Apparently the amendment inserted in the bill goes further than we expected, and I believe that Members on our side would probably feel a lot better if the bill was placed on the final passage postponed Calendar to permit us to again caucus on the bill on Monday so we can intelligently vote on the bill.

So, although the gentleman from Philadelphia has made a good statement about the bill, I feel our Members would be a lot happier if the bill could stay over until Monday so we could again caucus on it.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

A division was called for, eighty-five Members having voted in the affirmative and one hundred in the negative, the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I am not well versed on this bill, and I want this cleared so that we will know.

Prior to two years ago when bids were being received, the bids were separated. The amendment that was put in the law called for the one bid. There are those who say that when you have separated bids you get more bidders, you get more competitive bids, which reduces the cost, because when you get one bid the general bidder gets a bid for this, a bid for that, and a bid for the other in the different fields, and then he puts his one bid in and adds their bids to take care of supervision; we will call it that. Now if it is true that by separating the bids you can get more bidders, better bidders, qualified bidders, and save money, then that is what I am for. If I am wrong, and I am not well versed in this field, then I ought to be against the bill. But I am for the bill, and that is the position if that is what it does.

Mr. STROUP. The bill, in my judgment, should retain separate contracts and/or a contract. In that way the board would have a choice. It could ask for separate contracts or it could ask for a total contract. It would not destroy the competitive bidding on the separate contracts. I merely ask that the phrase "a contract," which now is deleted from the bill, be kept in the bill. We would have the advantage therefore on either. If that were the case you would have the opportunity of having one contractor bidding on a unit, and frequently you will find that because he has the entire job he can bid lower. Or you can put it out on separate contracts and take your choice. As it is now you must put it out on separate contracts, and you lose the advantage of having one contractor bidding on the whole package.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is correct that this is what the bill would do, but those in the various fields say that when you are bidding separate contracts there are going to be quite a few bids now in each respective field and, my friends, this is a business in which they must compete, and the lowest qualified bidder gets the job. If that is so, the theory behind the bill would certainly indicate it would very likely result in a reduction in the bid figures to do the same job. If that is true, why spend more money than you have to? Get the most for the dollar you can. This is school money and these are school contracts.

Mr. COMER. Mr. Speaker, the one point that was not brought out in dealing with the price on contracts was the fact that when these two items, electrical work and plumbing work, are placed under one general contract there are always the two bargaining points they use to peddle these sub-contracts around with. As a result, as far back as 1913, when this separation act became law, there was a certain amount of finagling going on as far as state work was concerned with these two industries. That is why the separation act was passed into law.

Now here is what happens with your schools if you go out and save a couple of dollars on cheap bids. When the work is completed there are two items, the plumbing industry and the electrical industry which are entirely closed in, and any time you get cheap electrical work or cheap plumbing work, you are going to run into defects. At this time, speaking on behalf of the plumbing business—which I do not know too much about—with these epidemics of polio going about, I think it is very important that we have first-class work in the plumbing industry.

I do not think I have to elaborate on the electrical industry, because that is a very important part of our school program today with electronics. It is a very, very dangerous item. So I think all this equipment should be installed by qualified contractors and placed under separate bids. This must have worked well because it has been law for 45 years.

Mr. STRAUSSER. Mr. Speaker, as a general contractor, I want it to be known that I do not have any quarrels with electrical contractors, or plumbing, heating or other mechanical contractors. I merely want to try to clear up the thinking on this bill. As I read it, any job exceeding $1,000 would have to be put out on four bids.

As an example, suppose in an old school building you want to remodel or revamp several of the toilet rooms, even one toilet room, and the total of the four contracts would exceed $1,000. The work involved might include tile work, changing of partitions and so on, which would be general; it might include the changing of one light fixture, which would be electrical; changing some of the plumbing would be plumbing, of course, and changing a few heating pipes. In other words, you would have four contracts to do $1,000's worth of work. I think the school district would be put to a decided disadvantage in getting these bids, for this reason: I cannot visualize any electrical contractor desiring to put a bid in to change a light switch, or a light outlet, a separate bid; I cannot visualize the heating contractor putting in a bid to change a few pipes. The plumbing contract, of course, in a case like that would probably amount to more than the other three put together. But I think you are putting a school district at a decided disadvantage when you require it to take separate bids on a small contract such as $1,001 to $2,000.

I do think the school district should retain the right to award one contract or four contracts, and I think before this bill was amended that is what it did. Ordinarily on a new school building you do take four separate contracts. They are sizable jobs. I will back up Mr. Comer to this extent, that I do believe, too, in having qualified contractors do their respective portions of the work. But I think in the case of the small contract the school district should be able to retain the right to award one contract or four.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I listened very carefully. Let us see if we agree on this: The basic law permits the school board to award up to $1,000 without any bids. You just took care of all political sub-divisions in that field in the new law. Now then, if a little job was being done and you were dividing a mythical plumbing, electrical and general contract, it would not be $1,001 that would be let.

If the plumbing was over $1,000, the school board would have to advertise for bids. If the plumbing was separate from the other, as in the case requiring the four you speak of, would it not have to equal in each respective field $1,000 or more, compared to the basic law which exempts $1,000 without advertisement? We just passed it.

Mr. STRAUSSER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the Majority Leader, as I read the bill it covers a contract upon a school property made by any school district where the "entire cost" exceeds $1,000. The entire cost in my opinion, although I am not an attorney, is the total sum of the plumbing, heating, electric and general, the entire cost. So you would be awarding four contracts for the total sum of $1,000, or you would be required under this bill to award four contracts if the total cost exceeded $1,000. That is my understanding of the bill. I am subject to correction if I am wrong.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the bill has been very clearly defined.

It certainly was our intention and it certainly is our intention to find a way that every school district would have an opportunity to get the most bids, the greatest competition, which would help to reduce the figure. I think you will agree, if you have ever been on any board or any authority, one of the things that has bothered us at times is when you wake up with only two bids, you wonder about the two bids occasionally as they come in. Good competitive bidding reduces the figure and gets the most for the dollars, and that is the theory behind House Bill No. 1142.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I am not a contractor and not an expert on school law; however, sitting here hearing this discussion about this bill disturbs me.

I believe I can say that everyone who has spoken agrees that our school districts should be able to build buildings and repair buildings at the cheapest possible cost. I believe, second, that everyone agrees that the workman or the contractor who does that work should be the best qualified person who can do it.

Now I would like to analogize this situation to a real estate auction, which I think most of you probably have attended at one time or another. It has been my experience that they almost invariably require bids on the separate lots or tracts, and then a bid on the whole. If the bid on the whole is higher than the total of the bids for all the separate tracts, then of course they will sell to the bidder on the whole tract. But if the sum of the separate bids is higher, they will sell to the separate buyers.

Now to me this is just exactly the opposite. I will agree that perhaps 99 times out of 100 the sum total of the four separate bids on these mechanical contracts would be lower than a general contractor's bid on the entire four. But it is also entirely possible that in certain instances the general contractor, if he were large enough, or if the job is a particular type of job, might have a lower overhead, be more efficient, or be a better workman. I ask all of you just to admit that it is conceivable his bid could be lower. But this bill would prevent him from putting in a bid on the whole job.

I cannot even agree with Mr. Stroup, who I believe is an expert in school matters, because I do not think that he goes far enough. He says to let them do either one. I would like to see the bill postponed for today. I would like to see this bill redrawn to require bids both ways, a bid by the four separate mechanical contractors, and a bid, if they can get one, for the total job. Then, accept whichever is cheapest for the school district. I think that is what we all want and that is what we should have. But here you are allowing only the four separate bids, and while that may be the best thing most of the time, I think it is possible it might not be the best thing sometimes.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, we have agreed that we would work a lot longer today in trying to work out our calendar. We will work until approximately 1:15 so that the cafeteria will be through its regular noon customers downstairs, and we will take our break for lunch at that time and come right back. We believe that this will save time rather than trying to break at this period when the cafeteria is full.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is a member of the Committee that is discussing possible ways and means of reducing school construction costs and the Committee will meet.

The chair would like to have the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti, preside during my absence.

Mr. LOPRESTI IN THE CHAIR.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1177, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 29, 1959 (Act No. 32) entitled "An act consolidating and revising the Vehicle Code the Tractor Code the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act and other acts relating to the ownership possession and use of vehicles and tractors" prescribing penalties for operators who fail to notify the Department of Revenue of a change of address within the time required by law.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCANN. House Bill No. 1177, Printer's No. 1112, is a bill dealing with the change of address.

The present law permits such changes within 48 hours without any penalty whatever. This would change the existing law to 30 days but impose a penalty of $5.00.

We think this is very good legislation. During the time that the license period runs in the Department, there are a considerable number of changes that occur all at the period when licenses are being secured from the Department of Revenue, rather than during the period after a person has changed his address.

This is important in more ways than one because all the people who operate a motor vehicle or own a motor vehicle have a registration or a license and should at all times have their correct addresses.

I ask that the House vote unanimously on this bill.

Mr. A. W. JORNSON. I just want to ask the Majority Leader one question about the bill. Does the Bill provide a $5.00 penalty for the first time? It seems to me the bill was only for violating Section 8, which you have added if you violate subsection (c), which is the subsection we are talking about. For the first time, there is a penalty of $5 if you do not notify of a change of address within thirty days. Is that correct?

Mr. McCANN. It is my understanding that the penalty is $5.00 for failure to notify in the period designated, and I believe it reads thirty days, does it not, for the first time.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Previously it said that you should do it within 48 hours, but if you did not do it there was no penalty.

Mr. McCANN. There is no penalty now, and 48 hours is the time in the law now.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I believe with that explanation of the new $5 penalty for such a minor infraction we ought to have a slow roll call on it.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, for the edification of the Members of the House, the same penalty is assessed in the Motor Vehicle Tractor-Trailer Code for failure to notify changes of registration. Why the operators were not included there, I do not know. It was probably an oversight.

Under present law, when a registered owner moves and does not change his address within 48 hours he is subject to a fine of $5, or I believe it is three days in default of payment. This simply puts operators under it, and we have more operators than we have owners.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I want the record to show that correction. That is correct. In that phase of it, it is now in the law and I certainly thank Mr. Isaacs for bringing that to our attention. This just adds the one section dealing with the operators.

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1187, entitled:

An act amending the act of April 29, 1959 (Act No. 32) entitled "An act consolidating and revising the Vehicle Code the Tractor Code the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act and other acts relating to the ownership possession and use of vehicles and tractors providing for restrictions on speed of certain vehicles in certain cases and penalties for violation thereof.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCANN. House Bill 1187, Printer's No. 1129, is the change in the Motor Vehicle Code which we commonly call the "downhill" or the vehicle bill dealing with trucks or tractors on grades on Pennsylvania downgrades.

Two Sessions ago, we passed similar legislation, in which after it had passed the House it was returned to the House with various degrees of slopes and degrees and fees and elements in the bill.

Mr. Speaker, this does not have any of those items in the bill but is very clearly defined as to the area in which vehicles would have to engage into a lower gear and the maximum speed that they would go downgrade and the posting of the areas.

Mr. Speaker, I understand that this bill is acceptable to a fast roll call.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the Majority Leader.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the Majority Leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I will yield to Mr. Fineman who served on the Amendment Committee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the substitution satisfactory?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, do the amendments in this bill provide that the state restrictions be placed only on those highways where there are three or more lanes?

Mr. FINEMAN. Is the gentleman speaking about the latest amendments or the first amendments?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I am speaking about the bill in its present form that we are about to vote upon.

Mr. FINEMAN. The bill in its present form makes no provision as to the number of highways that are in question, I mean number of lanes. It will apply to a two-lane as well as a multiple lane highway. That is correct.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the special committee which reviewed these bills, I merely want to call to the attention of the House the fact that this bill as approved by the committee has since been amended. That is a matter of information primarily.

The committee felt that this bill should be limited to those downhill grades where the department could provide an additional lane for other downhill traffic to avoid the same problem which, over the history of the Commonwealth, we have had on upgrade traffic where slow trucks hold up traffic. The committee recommended it and the bill, the prior Printer's number of the bill, called for this provision to go into effect only where there was another available downhill lane for other traffic. The bill was amended back to its original form.

I think the Members of the House are entitled to that information in voting upon this bill.

Mr. FINEMAN. I think that the information which the gentleman provided to the House was apparent from the face of the bill itself. I think the House ought to know that the philosophy expressed in the several bills considered by the committee was not necessarily approved or agreed to by the committee as a whole. The purpose of the committee was to agree upon technical language and so far as it could, it did agree upon technical language.

The objection that was raised at the committee meeting on the question of having this bill applicable to those highways that had more than two lanes was this: If a truck should be proceeding at a speed of 20 miles per hour on a downgrade, it would, of necessity, on a two-lane highway hold up those motor vehicles that happen to be behind the truck that was going at this reduced rate of speed. It strikes me that the inconvenience that might be entailed in drivers proceeding at this reduced rate of speed because of the truck ahead of them is a small price to pay for the safety factor that is being accomplished by the bill in its present form.

I want you to keep in mind that this bill is applicable only to commercial vehicles in excess of 21,000 pounds. Can you foresee the havoc that can be wrought on any towns that lie at the foot of a hill where a truck in excess of ten tons gets away from its driver simply because it has been traveling at an excessive rate of speed? And as we weigh the inconvenience against the possible saving of property and lives and limb, it is a small price, indeed, to pay.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. McCANN asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 1242 on page 11 of today's calendar, bills on final passage.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1242, entitled:

An Act amending the "Vehicle Code" of April 29, 1959 (Act No. 32) entitled "An act consolidating and revising the Vehicle Code the Tractor Code the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act and other acts relating to the ownership possession and use of vehicles and tractors" increasing penalties for speeding.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, this is another of the bills of the Highway Safety package. This bill would change the present penalty in the Motor Code for speeding from ten to twenty dollars. The additional ten dollars now in the present proposed piece of legislation would be turned over to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which, in the opinion of many of the Members, would be for better government in regard to local situations, where existing speed traps are certainly a source of harassment to motorists and are opposed by the automobile clubs of Pennsylvania in their listings.

The bill was amended where there were a series of fines for a first offense, second offense, and third offense. This has been removed and there is only one offense designated, changing it from the present ten dollars, plus costs, to twenty dollars, plus costs.

I ask that everyone support this measure, which in turn is an effort to slow down the traveling public in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and to save their lives as well as all the lives of our citizens.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I again rise merely to call to the attention of the House that subsequent to the referral of this bill by the Special Committee an additional amendment has been made to the bill.

This amendment, insofar as the Republican caucus is concerned, was neither known nor discussed until the bills were put on our desks yesterday. The amendment which has been added to the bill provides that one-half of the twenty-dollar fine now imposed by this bill, under existing laws the fine being ten dollars, will go to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which is a departure from existing law with respect to the disposition of fines for speeding.

I merely want to call that to the attention of the House and particularly the Members of the Republican caucus. It was not discussed and therefore in voting upon this bill you are now voting upon a departure of philosophy with respect to the disposition of 50 percent of the fine imposed by the bill.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to briefly interrogate the Majority Leader.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman yield?

Does the Majority Leader desire to yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman, on these bills?

Mr. McCANN. I will be glad to yield to Mr. Fineman, certainly, sir.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman agree to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia?

Mr. ISAACS. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, is this not a new concept in disposition of fines where we divide a fine for a particular section of the Motor Vehicle Code between the local municipalities and the Department of Revenue?

Mr. FINEMAN. It is.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that under present law and rulings of the department the minor judiciary must issue a receipt prescribed by the department, which comes in three sections, one copy going to the defendant, one copy to the department, and one copy for retention by the minor judiciary?

Mr. FINEMAN. Well, since the gentleman is a J. P. himself, if he will advise me that they are the facts, I will have to abide by them.

Mr. ISAACS. I assure the gentleman that is correct, Mr. Speaker.

If this proposed bill becomes law, is it not a matter of fact that in every one of these violations the magistrate will be required to issue two receipts?

Mr. FINEMAN. I am not sure that the mechanics in question will lend themselves to that result. As a matter of fact, I have not thought through the mechanics of this from the standpoint of a J. P., but let us assume for purposes of this discussion that they are the facts.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Those are the facts. We cannot issue one of the state receipts for a fine or any part of a fine that goes to a municipality. And, unless the Department of Revenue makes some correction in their system, it will be necessary in every case of violation of Section 1002, for speeding, that two separate and distinct receipts will have to be issued. That I think is an imposition and I think the department should work out some system whereby one receipt would cover both portions of the fine.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, this was considered and certainly we can clear the record definitely.

The Justice of the Peace now issues a monthly report to the Department of Revenue within ten days following the month, the preceding month. At the same time they issue a report. We will say, they have collected certain types of fines that are due the political sub-division, township or borough, they issue their report to that respective political sub-division. Therefore, they still will issue the same reports that they have in the past.

The question involved is with the Department of Revenue, and may I assure the Members that the request of Mr. Isaacs representing the magistrates or Justices of Peace of Pennsylvania, with whom the Department of Revenue would work it out so that you would issue one receipt to take care of the splitting of the fines, can be accomplished very easily, and I assure you that that is what we will do. Satisfactory?

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I briefly want to make a reply to the remarks made by the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman.

First, concerning the fact that the present amendment in the bill was not considered at the meeting. Apparently, and I think Mr. Bowman will have to agree with me, the individual Members of the House who were appointed to that committee did not represent the best thinking available in the House. I was subsequently enlightened on the point in question, and I am sure that if the amendments had been presented at the time, Mr. Bowman would likewise have accepted that enlightenment.

Secondly, about the change of philosophy. Simply because a certain philosophy has prevailed for, lo, many years in this House, it does not of necessity mean that it is the best thinking available.

The purpose of this bill's increasing fines is to set up an additional deterrent to those who violate our speed laws and who recklessly drive their motor vehicles at an excessive rate of speed on our highways. It would cost the local municipalities no more money to assess a fine of twenty dollars than it does to assess a fine of ten dollars.

The purpose of this bill is not to further enrich the treasuries of the local municipalities, but to set up a deterrent to discourage our motorists from going at an excessive rate of speed. Likewise, if we were to allow the additional fines to go into the local treasuries, there is the ever-present threat that fining mills will be encouraged. This course of action we do not want to encourage.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, I concur with the gentleman's remarks that the best thinking was probably not represented by the membership on that committee. However, that is completely irrelevant, in my opinion, to the real issue here involved. I am very much interested in the safety program. I am very much in favor of increasing the fine for speeding. Regrettably, at least in my opinion, however, we have injected into essentially a safety program, a completely different subject-matter. And, it is that subject-matter which is properly the subject for, perhaps, debate for change, for modification, but it has no place in this legislation.

This is safety legislation, not legislation dealing with the philosophy of whether the state should or should not share in fines, and that is precisely the position of the amendments to this bill, which are now placed and which we are considering in passing upon this bill. If there had not been injected into this bill the question of how fines should go, to whom and in what amounts, I definitely would have voted for this bill. In its present form I do not believe it proper to be injected into the bill and, therefore, in spite of the fact that I favor the basic principle of the bill, I intend to vote against the bill and I request all Members who feel the same way to do likewise.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to inject this expression into this debate at the present time. I intended to do it when a motion is brought up today to recommit another bill to a committee.

However, since the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman, seems to insist, as he did yesterday, and again today on bringing fining bills into the debate, and the tendency possible in certain municipalities is to impose more fines, I take this opportunity to remind the gentleman that under the Motor Vehicle Tractor-Trailer code the city of Philadelphia is the only municipality in this state which keeps all the fines for summary convictions under the Motor Vehicle Tractor-Trailer Code, and while the gentleman was speaking—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SHERMAN. I ask that the gentleman be confined to the bill. We are not talking about Philadelphia or what Philadelphia does.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The point of order is well taken. The gentleman will confine his remarks to the bill before the House.

Mr. ISAACS. Mr. Speaker, I am speaking about what this bill does, and I think I am in order in so doing.

As I said, the city of Philadelphia is the only one that keeps all the fines—

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has ruled that the gentleman must confine himself to the present bill, and there is nothing in the bill concerning Philadelphia or the Tractor Code. This bill refers specifically to speeding and the fines for speeding. The gentleman must confine his remarks to the bill.

Mr. ISAACS. This bill would become a part of the Code, Mr. Speaker. But I will make those remarks at another time today.

I will back up the remarks of the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman, and ask the Members on this side of the House to vote against this bill.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FINEMAN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, will the split fine that comes to the state under this bill go into the Motor License Fund or will it go into the general fund?

Mr. FINEMAN. It will go into the general fund.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Will the split fine that is designated in this bill for the Commonwealth, where the fines are limited to the city of Philadelphia, be paid into the state general fund.

Mr. FINEMAN. Will the gentleman repeat that question?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Will fines paid in the city of Philadelphia, the share which is designated under this bill to go to the Commonwealth, will that share from fines collected in Philadelphia be paid into the general fund?

Mr. FINEMAN. I think on a point of order raised the Chair has ruled that this type of question is improper.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair did not so rule on this specific question. The gentleman, I believe, is in order at this particular time.

Mr. FINEMAN. If you will pardon me for being facetious, Mr. Tompkins. I see nothing in this bill that would indicate the conclusion that you want to bring me to.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Is it not true that under a section of the Constitution all fines levied and collected under the magistrates of Philadelphia, under this bill are paid into the city of Philadelphia or county treasury instead of paid into the state?

Mr. FINEMAN. I cannot answer with certainty.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Well, I do know because I have raised the issue before. I have recently gone through that very thing with the Constitutional Revision Commission. All fines, or additional fines, or the share which the 66 counties will receive otherwise will be paid into the general fund of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Where they are levied in Philadelphia they will be wholly kept in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. FINEMAN. All I can do is compliment the wisdom of the draftsmen of the Constitution.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Having had experience on this very question before in other matters, I think I know whereof I speak.

I want to endorse the remarks of the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman. I am very much confused on this bill right now because we have brought fining mills into it, we have brought safety into it and a whole host of other things. If we are trying to break up fining mills, certainly leaving a portion of the fines in the community where the events took place is not going to accomplish your purpose. I am not satisfied in my own mind, or from my own experience, that increasing the fines on speeding is going to have the beneficial effect which you are trying to accomplish.

You know and I know as legislators, and I know as a practicing attorney, that the one thing that deters people from speeding is the fear of the loss of their license and not the fine they have to pay. Until I am convinced to the contrary, I am not satisfied that an increased fine upon anybody is going to deter them from speeding.

Mr. BRENNINGER. Mr. Speaker, before you rule against me, let me make something very clear. The end results will come about after I make a few basic remarks.

First of all, I am surprised that the Chairman of the Republican part of that sub-committee did not know about the changes.

Secondly, I heard a remark about the better thinking of the Committee. The better thinking of the committee can only be utilized if they are given a chance.

I am sorry that the gentleman from Philadelphia would start the meeting and keep talking until it was over. He was interested, which he told you today, in technical parts of the program. That is not what everyone in this room is interested in. Now I think, and not alone, because the Republican side of the House did not know about the amendments, every Member of this House, to keep the committees and sub-committees active, should vote against this bill.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman who just spoke.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Brenninger, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BRENNINGER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FINEMAN. Will you break down for the Members of this House and be explicit in the comment you made that the gentleman from Philadelphia started to speak at the beginning of the meeting and did not finish speaking until the end of the meeting?

Mr. BRENNINGER. I said that the gentleman from Philadelphia started the meeting, and would address the gentlemen on the Republican side and after that he would agree, and that is exactly what happened. You brought up the points you thought should be changed and you admit they were technical, which was all right. They probably are and they probably were, but there is more involved in this bill than that particular part. At the meeting we tried, I think, to help the safety program, and I think it is not only my conclusion but other Members of the Committee that—

Mr. FINEMAN. Are you suggesting by your comment that I usurped the time and the function of the balance of the Members of that committee?

Mr. BRENNINGER. Oh, I wouldn't put it in just that language, no. I shall put it in this language and I will repeat what I said, that you took over the meeting, that you kept talking, bringing the points about. If that is what you call usurping, go ahead, that is it. But I did not make those statements; you did.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair believes that the entire subject is out of order.

Mr. FINEMAN. Could I ask just one more question, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. McCORMACK. I rise to a point of order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman yield to Mr. Fineman for just one question, then he will be recognized?

Mr. FINEMAN. Agreeable to the Chair, I would like to pursue this further under a question of personal privilege, and I think I am in order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would suggest that the question be brought up after the bill has been disposed of, and that the question of personal privilege be discussed at length after that if necessary.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I rise to state a point of order. The point of order that I would like to raise—maybe it is moot now—is that I think we do not lend dignity to this Chamber by discussing personalities and I think it might be out of order if they continue this discussion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Personalities have no place, and the Chair has ruled that under personal privilege later on you might discuss these questions.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, this is a highway safety bill. I certainly do not come from Philadelphia but I believe, and so do many of us, that the speeding fine should be increased just as it is in here from $10 to $20. Why was the provision put in the bill whereby one-half of the fine would go to the Commonwealth? To put it point blank, you know and I know that we cannot pass legislation to wipe out some of these speeding mills. If we could, we would; but this we intended to try to do. We are not going to try to help to build any more of them. I think you will agree that when you send one-half of the fine money to the Commonwealth, you are not encouraging that which you and I agree should not exist.

If you recall, a year ago or perhaps two years ago, the speed traps of Pennsylvania were listed by route number, location and the counties they were located in, and the automobile clubs of Pennsylvania time and time again have specifically objected in certain areas to nothing more than speed mills and speed traps in which they did nothing but continually fine people on a theory and it held up speeding. That is not good law. That is not what we believe in and neither do you believe in that, but we do believe in safety.

I think that the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, who stated here on the floor about the fines pertaining to the city of Philadelphia, knows the record has to be clear. Their fines do not come to the Commonwealth and his statement was correct, and rightfully so. That is the way it is written and that is the way they abide by the law and they handle it.

Therefore, it is not a problem of voting against this bill because Philadelphia fines do not come to the Commonwealth. I am voting for the bill. I am certainly not voting to support getting money for the city of Philadelphia. I represent my own legislative district in which the money from these fines would go to the Commonwealth. It is time we wiped out these speed mills and if we know a way to do it, let us do it.

This is a highway safety package, and let us keep it in that light, even though it has been brought up that the bill was amended after the Committee had worked on it very carefully. I compliment that committee, I complimented them yesterday because they did an outstanding job on a series of bills. They did a lot of work.

I say that you should vote on the merits of the bill, support the bill and support the highway safety package program. There are those who say that by increasing the fines of speeding it has never been proven that you save any lives, but has it been proven that by doing this you may have saved those that are living? Those that are dead cannot speak for themselves. I would like for this package to be considered in the light of what it stands for and support the package.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I was a member of that committee; Mr. Bowman was a member of that committee. I do not think that there should have been a discussion here as to what took place in that committee. I think that the prohibition about revealing what takes place in committee applies to that committee as much as to any House committees. However, I do not think that there should be any misconception or imputation or aspersion cast on any member of that committee.

I did not take offense at the fact that Mr. Fineman or Mr. Bowman were the two leading members of the two parties in that committee. I served on the committee; the other gentlemen served; we all took part in the consideration, in the decisions. It was extremely friendly. We were almost in complete agreement. It was an amazing thing. I think it was truly bipartisan and this is one of the conclusions we came to on a very debatable issue, on a bill which was given to this committee, which would have been very difficult to administer under the way it was originally drafted. We all felt that something ought to be done in addition to what we are doing now to deter speeding on the highways. The main conclusion we came to as to the increase of the fine, I think, was mutual and unanimous as far as making this some kind of a workable bill that this Legislature could vote upon.

I agree with the Majority Leader. We are trying to deter speeding on the highways. Let us forget the other facets and the other things that have been thrown in here. I believe that this will deter speeding. You hit people two ways, not only through the loss of their license, but through their pocketbooks. I think this is good legislation. We ought to pass it.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I am one of the sponsors of the bill and as a parent I do not recognize it. However, I am going to vote for it because it is a part of a constructive highway safety program. I am also going to vote for it because it may help to solve the tax problems of the city of Philadelphia and then everybody in Philadelphia will be able to vote for our state tax program.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, for the record, in order that there cannot be any misunderstanding, the remarks of the Majority Leader with reference to my position on fining mills I think has been misunderstood. I am just as much for the elimination of fining mills as he is and as are the rest of the motorists in the state of Pennsylvania.

I want to call attention to the fact that in this bill the fining mills will still be able to keep the same amount of money that they now do under present law.

Mr. BOWMAN. I merely want to state, and I am out of order but I feel impelled to state, that the Committee worked harmoniously. I personally do not feel that any particular Member monopolized the Committee. I think it did a good job, and I personally want to compliment all the other Members of the Committee.

Mr. HELM. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Seconded by the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, and the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Hocker.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, they do not need to do that. The total is 104 at this point. It was 105. Now we know what we have to do, and they do not have to verify any roll call. We are going to eat.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman insist upon a verification?

Mr. HELM. Mr. Speaker, I have no assurance that the roll call is as the gentleman stated, but with the approval of the two Members who seconded the request for a verification, I withdraw the request.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. CURWOOD asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I do not want to keep you people very long, but I have a very, very important and a very, very brief announcement.

After reading the paper last night, the Evening News, and the morning Patriot this morning, about this fishing situation, it really deplores me.

As Chairman of the Fish Committee, I thought it was kind of knocking us fellows on the Fish Committee, but we have been doing our best, and my Committee has been arguing about it pro and con all through the session.

I am under the impression we are down 90,000 licenses this year already, which is out of reason in my estimation. So I feel the sportsmen should have an opportunity, especially those who are fishermen, to speak their piece. I feel the Fish Commission should have an opportunity to give us ideas on the situation, and I feel the public Press should be allowed to be in on the thing too. So this afternoon I will introduce a resolution for a series of public hearings to be held, and a report to be made to this Session of the General Assembly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BRETH asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

I am very much interested in the remarks of the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Curwood, and in the fact that he intends to introduce a resolution, which I have co-sponsored, to hold open public hearings on the matter concerning the decline of fishing license sales in Pennsylvania in the past few years.

I believe this a very important matter affecting a very tremendous recreational and natural resource. I think this House should take steps to inquire into the situation, and make completely public all the facts and information that can be obtained from fishermen, the public and the citizens of Pennsylvania, and to hold these public hearings which will be proposed in the resolution.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask that we take a 45 minute break in the proceedings. We will reconvene at 2:15 on the dot, and start right where we left off.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair, before declaring a recess, would suggest that the Members come back immediately at the expiration of the recess time. The sooner we get back and get started, the sooner we will be able to adjourn for the day. We would like to get started immediately with roll calls as soon as the recess is over.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair declares a recess of forty-five minutes.

The Chair hears none.

AFTER RECESS

The time of recess having expired, the House was called to order.

Mr. LOPRESTI IN THE CHAIR.

BILLS ON CONCURRENCE IN SENATE AMENDMENTS

Mr. McCann asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 605 on page 33 of today's calendar, bills on concurrence in Senate amendments.

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 605.

An Act authorizing the Department of Property and Supplies to convey a certain parcel of land situate in Bear Creek Township Luzerne County Pennsylvania in exchange for another parcel of land situate in Bear Creek Township County of Luzerne.

With the information that the Senate had passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Section 2, page 4, line 18, by striking out after the word "page" the numbers "475" and inserting in lieu thereof the numbers "475."

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I request that the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate.

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 90.

An Act permitting the completion of baseball games in cities of the first, second, second class A or third class and townships of the first class notwithstanding provisions to the contrary.

With the information that the Senate had passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Amendments. The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Title, page 1, line 1, by striking out after the word "first" the word "or"; page 1, line 2, of title, by inserting after the word "second" the following: "second class A or third"; page 1, line 2 of title by inserting after the word "class" the following: "and townships of the first class"; Section 1, page 1, line 1, by striking out after the word "first" the word "or"; line 1, by inserting after the word "second" the following: "second class A or third"; and line 2 by inserting after the word "class" the following: "or township of the first class"; page 2, line 9, by striking out after the word "of" the word "six" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "five."

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, when House Bill No. 90 passed the House of Representatives and was sent to the Senate it had a time of 6 p.m. as to the starting of baseball games on Sunday.

The Senate amendments change the starting of the second game at 5 p.m. This is the same amendment that Rev. McInroy, the gentleman from Tioga, I believe offered, which was defeated in the House. In a conference in the Senate this is the only position in which we can secure this bill. But the additional information placed in the bill takes care of our other major ball leagues, such as the Eastern League in Pennsylvania, that would be Scranton, York, Williamsport, the various towns in that league.

This means in double-header baseball games on Sunday the second game can begin providing it begins by 5 p.m. or rather 6 p.m. daylight saving time. That is one hour different than when the bill left the House. The other section was added to take care of the other league.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that everyone support these amendments because it certainly will be helpful to all those ball leagues to complete their games on Sunday. As I repeated a moment ago this is the best situation that could be worked out on the starting hour of the second game, so we will accept this at this time.

Mr. McINROY. Mr. Speaker, the Majority Floor Leader referred to the two amendments that I proposed in regard to the starting time of five o'clock and I am heartily in favor of that.

However, I do not like the change of the extension to Second-Class A and Third Class and now to the First Class. Therefore, I am going to vote against the amendments, not because of the change in time but because of the inclusion or extension of these other classes.

Mr. McCORMACK. May I interrogate the gentleman from Tioga?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Tioga, Mr. McInroy, consent to be interrogated?

Mr. McINROY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. Would the gentleman vote for the bill if we restored it to just cities of the First Class?

Mr. McINROY. Yes, I would, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. Well, Mr. Speaker, if there is any disagreement with respect to the addition of the cities and townships in this amended version, perhaps we could amend it again.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, could I have a short conference with the gentleman?

Mr. McCORMACK. As long as it is going to pass I am satisfied.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House will be at ease temporarily while the two gentlemen have a meeting of their minds.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I believe everyone is in accord with this because the Eastern League has to have this as well as the Major Leagues.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have a slow roll call in order that we can get a record of those who have returned to this Hall this afternoon. This morning we got some variations in our total roll call and I would like to know who we now have present.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

DISCHARGED

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the conference committee appointed on the part of the House be discharged from further consideration of House Bill No. 260, Printer's No. 849.

The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE RECEDES FROM NONCONCURRENCE

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recede from its non-concurrence and concur in the amendments made by the Senate and that the House concur in the amendments to House Bill No. 260.

On the question,

Will the House recede from its non-concurrence and concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. McCANN. This is on House Bill 260, Mr. Speaker. For the information of the Members we had nonconcurred in the amendments placed in the bill, House Bill 260, and the only question involved was the last lines of the House bill dealing with when the legislative Budget Finance Committee would be activated.

In a conference committee of the Members of the House and Senate it was agreed that upon the sine die adjournment this committee would be activated and would not require the activation after each Session. It would then be permanent from there on unless repealed by law.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that everyone support the amendments.

Will the House recede from its non-concurrence and concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to ask for another slow roll call, but—now just a minute—on the first roll call of the afternoon we had 184 votes. On the second roll call this afternoon we had 174 votes. Now, we are up to 185 votes on our fast roll calls. There is something wrong someplace.

I am going to ask for a slow roll call on every bill unless that situation is corrected.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk has informed the Chair that many of the Members are sitting in their seats and at different times do not answer, because they do not wish to be recorded perhaps. So, the Clerk will call the roll slowly and we will ask that each person answers to his or her name, and then we can get the correct roll for the gentleman.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. TOMPKINS. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, in doing so I must go back to a previous statement made by the Speaker on my last inquiry. Did I understand the Speaker to say that on some of these roll calls Members were sitting in their seats and not voting?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk informed the Chair that they had not answered to their names, and also that some of them had walked out at different intervals.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, as a matter of parliamentary inquiry I want to pose the question: Can a duly elected Member of this House of Representatives sit in this Hall during a roll call and refuse to cast his vote?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. A Member if he is present in the Hall of the House is required to vote under the Rules.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Then if it is so that some are sitting here and are not recording their votes, I think something should be done about that in order that we get these roll calls accurate.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot speak for the gentleman who was absent yesterday, and who was absent Monday, and who was absent all last week, but the papers this morning reported the gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. George, as having voted on the radar bill yesterday, and he has not been in the Hall of this House in the last ten days. Now that man is going to get into trouble because of that reported vote. I do not think it is fair.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair is informed that on the official roll call the gentleman is not recorded as having voted.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I hope the newspaper will take note of that and please report it as such.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the question involved is that the newspapers are not the official record of the vote of this House. The official vote of this House is in the possession of the Chief Clerk of this House, and that is the official record printed in the Journal. The gentleman is not recorded, even though all the newspapers say he voted for the bill. They have to get their information otherwise.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The situation as stated by the Majority Leader is correct. The Chair has before it the official roll of the House, and the gentleman is not recorded on the roll, and he has not been recorded all week.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I thank the Chair.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 2153, entitled:

An Act amending "The Penal Code" approved June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872) prohibiting the use of spotlights or other artificial lights on big game between certain hours and prescribing penalties.

On the question?

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, we have before us at this moment a penal statute, an amendment to the Penal Code. I believe it is incumbent upon this House of Representatives to be particularly careful in the draftsman-ship and the passage of Acts in which this Legislature designates a crime.

This particular bill, which again is one of the bills having much merit, in my opinion however is extremely loosely drafted. This bill as drafted would permit a wholly innocent person to be found guilty of spotlighting deer by the mere fact that he was present at a time when another member of his party or group put a spotlight upon a deer. That could conceivably happen, and probably would happen, in many instances when the innocent individual had no method to protest and no chance to avoid being part of this designated crime.

It is quite obvious that if a spotlight were on a car traveling along the highway, and you were not the operator of the spotlight or the driver of the car, the spotlight could be turned upon a deer. You, the innocent passenger, would be found guilty of the crime, as we prescribed it in this bill.

I would also call to your attention the fact that a farmer happening to turn on a spotlight on his house, barn or other out building, which spotlight falls upon a deer, is guilty of the crime, as this bill is written.

When we are dealing with penal provisions we should be precise and concise, and I ask that the Members of this House who are interested in being precise and concise with respect to the designation of crime oppose this bill because it is too loosely drawn.

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Speaker, in line with what the gentleman from Dauphin County has just said, I was going to question the Speaker on the same proposition, because I live in the country and many times we have deer come practically down in what is our front yard, our field adjacent to my house. Under this bill as written, if we were sitting on the porch late at night on a summer evening, or summer afternoon, or in the fall, and the deer came into the yard, and in order to look at the deer I turned a spotlight on it, or somebody on the porch did, we would be guilty of a crime. I think this bill, as the gentleman from Dauphin said, is loosely written and should be recommitted for further study.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I believe this bill is ill-advised. I think there is a sincere desire on the part of the sponsors to try to remedy a serious situation in some parts of the state where violators, smart violators, manage to elude the Pennsylvania Game Commission's game protectors.

However this bill does not amend the game law. It amends the Penal Code, which I think, and agree with the previous speakers, is quite dangerous. Furthermore I believe the provisions now in the Game Code are adequate and place the finger on the violator or would be violator.

The present Game Code provides that if you throw a light, spotlight or otherwise, on a deer at any hour of the night, if you have a gun in your car, a bow and arrow or any other instrument that can be used to kill deer, you are liable under the Game Code. I do believe there are a great many citizens in Pennsylvania who might be innocently trapped and made criminals of, if this bill passes. Therefore I do ask that this House—well, shall we say—refuse to pass this measure of legislation.

Mr. HOCKER. I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman, Mr. Yetter, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. YETTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, the way I have read this bill, this bill reads from 12:30 midnight until 6 in the morning; is that correct?

Mr. YETTER. That is correct.

Mr. HOCKER. Will you tell me the difference between spotlighting a deer from sunset until 12:30 midnight, and spotlighting one between 12:30 midnight and sunrise? What is the difference?

Mr. YETTER. Mr. Speaker, there are a lot of sportsmen as well as other people who like to go out and spotlight deer. In drafting this bill we took that into consideration. We did not want to deprive anyone of the pleasure of going out and spotlighting deer. The game protectors and anybody interested in trying to control the slaughter of deer illegally with spotlights all agree that the most violations are done from 12 o'clock until sunrise.

A good example of that happened at my home last week. At 3:30 in the morning the dog barked. I looked out the window, and somebody was stealing gas out of one of the trucks. They do not do that early in the evening. They do it when they figure everybody is in bed. That was the reason for making this from 12:30 until sunrise.

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman agree with me, though, that the same thing could happen between sunset and 12:30 midnight that could happen between midnight and sunrise?

Mr. YETTER. That is correct.

Mr. HOCKER. That is all. Mr. Speaker.

I will have to agree with my colleague, Mr. Bowman, there may be a great need for this, but I do not think this piece of legislation is the answer.

Mr. YETTER. Mr. Speaker, there has been a lot of study and thought put into this bill. I have discussed the bill with the Chairman of Game and Conservation; he has amended it. I discussed it with the Game Commission. In fact the law enforcement officer in the Game Commission and the executive director helped draft the bill. I talked to local sportsmen at home, and they are actually the ones who urged me to introduce this legislation. I talked to the Pennsylvania Federation; they are in support of the bill. In fact the situation at home is at the state right now that the sportsmen are accusing me of working with the outlaws by not getting legislation through. For that reason I would like to have a lot of support for this bill.

Mr. BRETH. Mr. Speaker, I would correct the gentleman just to this extent: The endorsement of this legislation by the Federation of Sportsmen's clubs was on House Bill No. 1871, which amended the Game Code and properly put the enforcement with the Game Commission.

This new bill, House Bill No. 2153, amends the Penal Code and permits any officer anywhere to enforce this particular bill. Therefore the sportsmen have withdrawn their support of House Bill No. 2153 because it does amend the Penal Code and does not amend the Game Code.

Mr. GOODRICH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Yetter.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Monroe permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. YETTER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GOODRICH. Mr. Speaker, if a farmer used a light after 12:30 at night for any reason on his own property, and the light were to fall on a game animal, he would be guilty under this bill, would he not?

Mr. YETTER. I suppose he would.

Mr. GOODRICH. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, there are a great many times that a farmer is required to use a light on his own property. His cattle can get out of the pasture, even on his neighbor's property, and he certainly would not be permitted to use a light there.

Also, in many parts of the state, including the northern tier, we have a great deal of bear damage in regard to sheep. Certainly with this bill a farmer could not protect his own property. It has always been a tradition in Pennsylvania to permit a farmer to protect his own property.

For that reason and for the reasons stated before, I would like to have all the votes against this bill that we can get.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I am in agreement with the general theory behind this bill, but this bill is not the answer to it; it is too broad. If it were limited to motor vehicles or something like that, I might be able to go along with it.

There is a need for legislation of this kind, there is no question about it, but this is too broad and would defeat the purposes of the theory behind the bill. For the purpose of getting the bill into the shape in which it should be,

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Law and Order for the purpose of getting the bill into the shape it should be.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. FRANK. Mr. Speaker, I am one of the sponsors of this bill. I am known as an indoor sportsman. I am more of an expert on two legged deer than four. This is a good bill. I would not like to see it recommitted. I would like to see the House vote on it.

Mr. YETTER. I wish to oppose the recommitment of this bill. This bill has been studied, has been on the calendar, and there has been lots of time for anybody to amend the bill. Nobody has come up with any amendments but Mr. Breth, and he amended it. Supposedly this bill is in good shape, and I would like to have a vote on it today.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

A division was called for, eighty-nine Members having voted in the affirmative and forty-two in the negative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of Senate Bill No. 95, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 29, 1959 (Act No. 32) entitled "The Vehicle Code" authorizing the issuance of dealer registration plates to certain collector-repossessors and limiting their use thereof.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

RESOLUTIONS

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS offered a resolution which was filed with the Clerk, and requested permission to have the following remarks noted in the Journal.

The SPEAKER. Permission is granted.

Mr. A. D. WILLIAMS. It seems to me that it is time that William L. Batt, Jr., Secretary of Labor and Industry, explains to the General Assembly why he has failed to check all of the state-owned Teachers Colleges and some other state-owned property, like the State Museum next door to us, for dangerous fire conditions.

He was quick enough to investigate elementary and secondary schools and insisted that some of them be closed. I am not for a minute intimating that they should not have been carefully inspected and hazardous conditions brought to the attention of the public. We all want to be sure that our schools are safe for our children.

But why is the Secretary so loath to take a look at the state-owned Teachers Colleges? Or the Capitol itself and the Museum next door? More than 15,000 students attend our Teachers Colleges and some live in "Fire Traps."

Could his reluctance come from the desire of the Lawrence Administration to face up to the failure of the Leader Administration to do anything practical about the old buildings on the campuses of all fourteen of the colleges? Could it be that they would prefer to bury the whole problem and not face up to it?

It certainly seems to me that there must be some reason that the Secretary of Labor and Industry could have been so aggressive in the field of public schools and ignore the State Teachers Colleges and the State buildings here on the hill. I would suggest that it is time that the House looks into this situation through the appointment of a special committee with authority to call the Secretary before it and then report the findings to the House for corrective action.

I understand that the Department of Public Instruction made a hasty survey of the Teachers Colleges and found that more than thirty-five hundred students would be sent home through the condemnation of fire hazardous dormitories and unsafe classrooms. Perhaps the real reason the Administration is not interested in arousing the ire of these students and their families is for political reasons. Perhaps they would prefer to risk a serious fire before they make a move.

I am sending to the desk a resolution providing for a special committee to look into what could become a major tragedy unless the situation is immediately corrected. I am sure that no member of this House, on either side of the aisle, wants to be responsible for the possible death by fire of any of the young people of the Commonwealth preparing to teach in the public schools of Pennsylvania.

Mr. CURWOOD offered a resolution which was filed with the Clerk under the Rules.

In the Senate, July 27, 1959.

The people of Allegheny County deeply mourn the death of Representative John R. Haudenshield who died on July 27th after a long illness.

Born on September 10, 1888, a son of John E. and Mary Holmes (Burk) Haudenshield, he received his elementary education in the Scott Township schools, attended Carnegie High School, and was a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh. For many years he served as a director of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Pittsburgh.

Active in civil affairs he was a member of the State Board of Management of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Fairview Grange, and the Kiwanis Club of Carnegie.

A member of the House of Representatives at the time of his death, he was serving his tenth term as a member of that body.

He will long remain with us, not only because of his prowess as a businessman and Member of the General Assembly, but also for his contributions to the benevolence and well being of his fellow citizens. His entire life was dedicated to the service of his fellow men and he gave freely of his time and unreservedly of his effort; therefore be it

Judge Millen, a native of Lancaster County, graduated from Lincoln University, Oxford, Pennsylvania and the University of Pennsylvania Law School. His first public office was that of Deputy Attorney General during the Pinchot Administration. When he was appointed in 1940 to the position of Assistant Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia, he was the first of his race to attain a high position in the government of that city. Another first was scored by Judge Millen when the former Governor James H. Duff, appointed him to be the Philadelphia Municipal Court on October 29, 1947. Thereafter, he was elected to a ten-year term and this year nominated for another full term. Judge Millen's achievements and outstanding personal qualities marked him as an exemplary leader, jurist and citizen; therefore be it

Resolved, That each Member of the Senate extend his sympathies to his widow in her hour of loss and bereavement; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to his widow, Mrs. Herbert E. Millen, 363 Pelham Road, Mount Airy, Pennsylvania.

URGING THE PENNSYLVANIA TURNPIKE COMMISSION AND THE COMMISSIONER OF THE PENNSYLVANIA STATE POLICE TO GIVE THEIR IMMEDIATE ATTENTION TO THE DELAYS AT THE LEHIGH TUNNEL ON THE NORTHEAST EXTENSION OF THE TURNPIKE

Mr. VAN SANT offered the following resolution (Serial No. 45), which was read, as follows:

In the Senate, July 27, 1959.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike is world known as one of the best highway systems. It was designed to cut the driving time between two points to a minimum; yet, there are times when it takes longer to travel via the turnpike than it does to travel by the toll free roads. This is especially true on the Northeast Extension where on a Sunday night the time it takes to drive from Scranton and the Pocono resort area to the Lehigh Valley is extended because of delays at the Lehigh Tunnel.

There are thousands of cars streaming southward on the two lanes which make up the south bound strip of the highway, but when they arrive at the tunnel they must be diverted into one lane. The north bound traffic is relatively light and delays are unknown. Something should be done to correct this situation.

We realize that the tunnel should be widened to three or four lanes but that wouldn't help the immediate problem. Instead, the Pennsylvania State Police who patrol the area and direct the traffic should be called upon to use a better system for moving traffic through the tunnel.

One method which could be employed would be to stop all north bound traffic which is light at the peak of south bound traffic and then allow the cars proceeding south to use both lanes of the tunnel for five or ten minutes. True, this would cause a slight delay for those heading north, but the number of people affected would be nothing compared to the number who have to suffer long delays now.

Another suggestion would be to increase the speed limit within the tunnel during the peak hours. This method has been used successfully in the tunnels connecting New York and New Jersey.

No matter what method is used, something certainly should be done, and it should be done as soon as possible. The problem occurs every Sunday night during the summer months and, if it continues, we will find less people using the toll road with a resultant loss of revenue and an overburdening of the other north-south highways; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Senate urge the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission and the Commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Police to give their immediate attention to the delays which occur at the Lehigh Tunnel on the Northeast Extension of the turnpike; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Commission and to the Commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Police.

Mr. VAN SANT asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

CONGRATULATING THE BOROUGH OF EMMAUS, IN LEHIGH COUNTY, ON THEIR CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

Mr. VAN SANT offered the following resolution (Serial No. 46), which was read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, July 27, 1959.

August 2nd marks the beginning of the centennial celebration in the borough of Emmaus.

Just 100 years ago, the community became a borough and their progress hasn't been slowed since. At the time of its becoming a borough, the population was about 277 people; yet today, this proud little community which stands among the best in Lehigh County has an ever-expanding population of about 10,000 people. The fact that more people are moving into the community every-day is evidence that Emmaus is the kind of a town that people like to call home.

Actually, Emmaus is much older than 100 years. Documents show that in the 1730's, the area was quite thickly settled and, in 1742, a loghouse for worship was erected in the borough. The people who populated the area devoted themselves to God and, by 1758, they had established a closed congregational village. In the beginning, nobody but a member of the Moravian Church could lease a lot on which to build a house, but as time marched on and the young people married outside the church the town became open and a new era was born.

The middle and late 1800's brought the industrial revolution to Emmaus. Iron ore was discovered in the area and not long afterward the railroad was brought in to carry out the ore. With the advent of the railroad, Emmaus was soon known as a manufacturing and textile center. Today the community can be proud to say that they have helped in our rocket and missile age for it is in Emmaus that the Air Products Company which manufacture missile fuel has one of its main plants and the home office of this company is located nearby. As one looks back, he can see the gigantic transition from the age of iron ore to the age of missiles, yet this town was able to take it in stride because of the foresight of its public spirited citizens.

We, the Members of the Senate, take off our hats to the community of Emmaus because we are proud of the work you have done in the past 100 years; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Senate of Pennsylvania extend its heartiest congratulations to the borough of Emmaus in Lehigh County upon the advent of their centennial celebration; and be it further

Resolved, That we wish them the best of luck for the next 100 years, and we only hope that they will be as successful in developing their community during that time as they were during the past decade; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Theodore Iobst, the burgess of Emmaus and to the Emmaus Centennial Committee.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of Senate Bill No. 623, as follows:

An Act amending the act of May 1, 1929 (P. L. 905) entitled "The Vehicle Code" permitting civil defense directors to equip their vehicles with sirens.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, this bill came up some time ago and we discussed it at quite some length. At that time, it was defeated. Since the bill has been back on the Calendar, I have received a letter from the State Police in regard to this matter. I do not want to take the lengthy time it would require to read the entire letter, but I would like to read just a few excerpts from it. If, after I read part of the letter, the Members see fit to vote on this matter, I think they should consider it very carefully before they do so.

The Commissioner of the State Police goes on to state that the reason he is opposed to this bill is because it would, first, provide 2,000 automobiles in this Commonwealth with sirens. Secondly, he feels the effect of a siren, as it is now heard, might be lost, with all these people using it. The third phase of this bill, about which the Commissioner is concerned, is that there are no particular laws governing the authority vested in the officials of the State Council of Civil Defense, and, therefore, it would not limit their right to use this siren. If they saw fit to use it at any other time, other than the regular time, nobody could say anything to them if they thought they were calling for a drill.

These two thousand people might be fine, wonderful, upstanding American citizens, but there may be some occasion when they might not be in full control of all their faculties. This might create some further problems.

Mr. President, I think this is an unnecessary piece of legislation. I think we should not do that which is unnecessary, when there are so many other important things before us.

Therefore, I would ask my colleagues to vote "no."

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I quite agree that the State Police may have some objections. However, if the Members of the Senate will read the bill, they will find that the siren can only be used in a practice test for the efficiency of the Civil Defense Unit in any municipality. Any other use would be clearly illegal.

We have now, and have had for a number of years, a Civil Defense Director in Pennsylvania; namely, Doctor Richard Gerstell. If this is such a bad bill, why does the Administration not bring Doctor Gerstell, one of its appointees, up to oppose the bill?

I am quite sure that everyone realizes the seriousness of civil defense. It is not a plaything. We are not granting Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts the right to run around with a whistle. This is a serious matter. It is a matter of life and death. I am really surprised that we have had the difficulty in passing this bill which we have had.

Therefore, Mr. President, I urge all members, on both sides of this august Body, to vote for its passage.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, the reason that Doctor Gerstell has not said anything in regard to this matter is that it is primarily a police matter. I think the question of putting sirens or not putting sirens on automobiles should be referred to the State Police, and let them give us their expert opinion in regard thereto.

Mr. President, I do not see where this bill would add anything or change anything. As I stated earlier, when the discussed this bill, if a catastrophe struck this Country, I am afraid there would not be much time for the sirens. The only thing sirens would do would provide a petty annoyance during the time when we do not have any kind of problems whatsoever.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?
The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following bills, on third reading, go over in their order:

Senate Bill No. 321, Printer's No. 346; and
House Bill No. 345, Printer's No. 695.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

REQUEST THAT BILLS GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following bills, on third reading, go over in their order:

Senate Bill No. 471, Printer's No. 505;
Senate Bill No. 472, Printer's No. 1008;
Senate Bill No. 473, Printer's No. 507; and
Senate Bill No. 684, Printer's No. 745.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, these bills have been on the Calendar for a good while, and they are bills which have been approved by the Department of Banking. Therefore, I believe it is now time that we bring these bills to a vote and I would object to their going over in order.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would just like to address myself to the objection made by Senator Berger.

There are a number of bills that have been on the Calendar much longer than these have been, and bills which are much more compelling than these which have received no action. If time is an element in moving these bills,—and that seems to be the pressing problem—let us take up some of the other bills that have been on the Calendar, such as, for example, the bill which just went over in its order, on the previous page, Senate Bill No. 321. That bill has been on our Calendar for a number of weeks. As a matter of fact, it appeared on the Calendar even before Senate Bill No. 471 and the bills following it. I think we should consider some of the other bills. if the time element is what is pressing this legislation.

Senate Bill No. 321, I might point out, deals with a man's salary. During the past weeks, we have run all the salary bills through. I cannot see any reason to hold one bill on the Calendar, which has certainly been on the Calendar longer than these bills. Senate Bill No. 471 and the following bills merely deal with simple banking problems which would not make any world-shaking difference whether they pass this week, next week, two weeks or a month from now.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, these bills are certainly, just as Senator Weiner said, simple banking bills and there is no reason to retain them on the Calendar. We are ready to vote on them and, of course, if Senator Weiner does not approve of them, he should vote against them. In so far as their having appeared on the Calendar is concerned, they have been on a reasonable amount of time. I do not recall that the other bill has been on the Calendar any longer than these. I am sure that in the very near future we will get to vote on that bill.

For the present, Mr. President, let us confine ourselves to the bills under consideration. The other bill was passed over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. There being objection to these bills going over in order, the Senate will proceed with their consideration.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 471, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 15, 1933 (P. L. 624) entitled as amended "Banking Code" changing provisions relating to declaration and payment of dividends and the granting of loans.

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, as long as these bills are so important that they cannot even wait another week, or cannot wait even for another day, I would like to have someone explain them to me or explain what they do. The way I read them, I think they have some problems in them that are not too good. I am speaking about Senate Bill No. 471. I am not so sure that some of these gentlemen understand what they are voting for and exactly what these bills will do.

My purpose in asking for these bills to be passed over in order was so that we could further clarify some of the problems involved in them. If someone will discuss them with me, and that person will so designate himself from the other side, I will be most happy to bat this back and forth with him. Perhaps he can explain to me, and the other Members of this Senate who may not have had the benefit of having read all the intricacies in the law, just what will be changed by this bill.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, if the gentleman wishes to occupy the time of the Senate in doing that, I have memorandums on each one of these bills which I will be glad to elucidate for the benefit of the Senator.

Senate Bill No. 471 is a bill which provides for the method of calculating the reserve funds of banks. At the present time, the method of calculating the reserve funds of banks, which are members of the Federal Reserve Bank, is determined by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, under Section 910 of the Pennsylvania Banking Code.

The method used by the 182 nonmember banks in Pennsylvania is determined by Section 908 of the Pennsylvania Banking Code, which places it upon a daily basis, while the member banks are placed upon a semimonthly basis.

The method of calculating the reserve fund is extremely important, because it determines the bank's right to make loans and declare dividends.

This bill would remove this discrimination between member and non-member banks, presently existing. Attention is directed to the fact that the reserve requirements are not changed nor are the penalty provisions changed.

This bill has been approved by the Department of Banking.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I believe that one of the important features which might have been omitted in the gentleman's resumé, unless I was not listening very carefully to him, is that this bill removes one of the requirements for having a reserve fund. At present, a dividend cannot be paid by a bank, as I understand it, if it will impair either the bank's capital, its surplus or its special or reserve funds. This bill removes the requirement in regard to the reserve fund. This makes a bank more like a corporation in regard to the payment of dividends.

I have no objection if any corporation wants to pay a dividend, whether it can afford to or not; or whether a reserve fund can stand it or not. I think a depository of people's money should be in a little different category. On that basis, I think it should be entitled to a closer scrutiny.

The fact that there have been bars let down in other banks certainly is no good reason for us to take the same position or same view. I do not feel that it will put our banks in any better position.

I think that there may even be some gentlemen sitting in this room who will remember the years 1929, 1930, 1931 and 1932, and what happened to the situation at that time. This is one of the safeguards which was instituted at that time. One of the reasons for preserving these safeguards is so that we do not have a repeat of that type of a situation. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation partially takes care of this problem, but not completely. I, for one, look askance at this type of legislation, unless it were demonstrated to me that it was absolutely essential that we have this type of provision which allows a bank to pay a dividend when there may be some impairment in the reserve fund.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, if the memorandum read was the memorandum which was read to the Republican Caucus, I can see why they were misled in their thinking.

The fact that one set of banks within the Federal Reserve System determines what their reserve is bimonthly and a set of State banks, not in the Reserve System, determines it each day, and you were going to make that reserve be determined on the same day, I can see where you would favor it. However, that is not what this bill does. There is not a word in this bill that says when you change the day, that you will determine when the reserve is ascertained. That remains as heretofore.

This bill allows you to do two things. It allows you to make a loan or it allows you to pay a dividend, at a time when your reserve is impaired. They are not changing the rule as to whether a reserve is impaired or not. That determination remains the same. It still will be impaired and considered impaired. How ridiculous can we get when we say that we will vote that when the cash reserves of a bank are beyond what we think they should be, we will permit a dividend or we will permit a loan to be made?

There have been periods, during 1952 and 1953, when some banks could not make a mortgage for as high as eighteen months because their cash position would not permit it.

Why should we say we are so prosperous that the fundamental rules, not only of banking but of any other business, do not apply and that when your cash position is bad, you impair it, particularly in banking? If they think the cash position requirements are too high, then change it. However, they do not say that. They say the cash requirement for a position of solvency is correct. If it is correct, why permit a loan or why permit a dividend at such a time?

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, our Caucus invited Secretary Myers over to explain this bill, and, as I understand it, it does not jeopardize depositors. The bill still prohibits the making of a loan or the payment of a dividend when the capital and surplus of the bank and trust company would be impaired.

The bill also provides that every institution shall give immediate written notice to the department when there is a deficiency in reserve, and that it must be made up within five days.

I, personally, do not feel that depositors, stockholders or creditors would be hurt by the passage of this bill, and I intend to vote for it.

An the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 473, entitled:

An Act authorizing trustees of employee benefit plans to transfer the assets of such plans in trust to corporate trustees for investment, reinvestment and maintenance and providing for the powers duties and liabilities of such trustees.

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I am either in a fog myself, or I think that the Republican attitude toward inflation is getting a distinct reversal in kind today.

There is no question about the fact that the series of bills which we are considering involve two things. One is the idea of permitting what was known in the early Thirties as the mortgage pool in trust funds. This was denounced then as being unsound, in fact, prohibitive. In addition to that, we have passed a series of acts which permit trustees to invest in common stocks, and we find, in trusts, that we have over $9,000,000,000 invested at purchase price—not at present market value, but at purchase price—in stocks by trusts. This is the highest figure that has ever existed in the ownership of stocks.

There is no question about the fact that one of the things that has sustained the market over the past five years is the investment in common stocks by investment trusts, ordinary trusts, pension funds and the like. It is distinctly inflationary in its aspect and in its composition. However, above that, the reason these pools, when they confined themselves to more certain things as mortgages, were declared unsound was because the banks were found to have shifted assets from one to the other, according to the friendliness they had to the people whose trusts were involved.

One of these bills also includes labor funds. We will note that big estates cannot be included. There is a limitation upon that. However, all of the money of the little man can go into this. It can be risked, and it can be jeopardized. However, a ceiling has been put on the amount of an individual's money which can go into this so-called pool.

I do not understand, Mr. President, why the proponents, who have been yelling that they are stopping inflation, are the prime movers behind these bills. Bills which contribute more than any other to inflation are here before you today, bills which jeopardize the common man's trust fund. We are talking about widows and orphans and we are talking about inflation, the things against which we should guard. Yet, here we are saying, let us loosen the law, let us make the avalanche under the same rules we had available in 1929. In 1929, it was said that the loaning of money to the stock markets outside the control of the Federal Reserve System by a few corporations led to the depression. Today we find most of the financial transactions of this Country, and most of the trust funds, out beyond the control of the Federal Reserve System.

We are limiting the amount of money that goes into savings accounts because, by these bills, we are placing it in the stock market. We are limiting the amount of money that will go into mortgages and we are placing it in the stock market. We are increasing the amount of complete credit that cannot be restricted or affected by Federal Reserve discount action.

Every man in this Senate claims that he is a man who thinks of the needy, of the poor and he is attempting to guard against inflation. If we are to be honest with ourselves, we should vote against this bill and every similar bill to guard against inflation and to safeguard the people about whom I am speaking.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WEINER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would be remiss in my duty if I did not make an observation at this point.

We have this Session passed bills for insurance companies, for the banks, for the corporations and anyone else up and down the turnpike who had some influence or affluence in this Body. I am waiting to see a piece of legislation which will help the workingman and the poor guy who goes out each day to work for a living. I am watching and hoping that the committee will meet, now that we have the important business out of the way, and take up some of these problems.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 703, Printer's No. 1143, on third reading, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 751, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 1, 1956 P. L. 1944) entitled "An act providing a permanent allocation of a part of the fuels and liquids fuels tax proceeds to cities boroughs incorporated towns and townships for their road street and bridge purposes * * *" providing for the use of twenty-five per centum of the money allocated in townships of the second class.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not want to prolong the debate on these bills. However, I think we should, at least, discuss some of these things so that we have some idea of what we are voting on and so that we cannot say that we did not understand what we were doing.

This bill allows money to be spent on the maintenance of roads and bridges when all roads of—and this is what I think is the gimmick in this bill—major importance are already improved. Originally, twenty-five per cent of this money had to be used to construct or reconstruct roads and bridges when all roads in the community were improved. The question in my mind is who is going to decide which roads are of major importance, and what is to prevent anyone who wants to use these funds for some other purposes, other than those indicated, from stating that the roads of major importance have already been taken care of and then funneling off this money for other purposes for which this money was never intended in the original purport of the bill?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, this bill is certainly self-regulatory. This bill provides that when the governing body of the township or the road supervisors—they are now called township supervisors rather than road supervisors—have determined that the roads in their township have been improved to the extent that none of any importance need improvement, they may use the twenty-five per cent for the maintenance of roads and bridges in the township. It seems to me to be a very reasonable sort of thing for the township supervisors to determine when they can use this money for the maintenance of the roads that they have already built and for the bridges which go over the streams and carry the roads across.

I do not think there is anything obscure about this bill, and I do not think there is much room for debate on it. It does exactly what it says, and it seems to be of pretty fair purpose.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to point out that the Secretary of Highways feels that this is bad legislation.

I would also like to point out that this money, from the gasoline tax allocation, was set aside to maintain highways and roads in the entire community, not to allocate it for a road which they thought was of major importance and then go on to use that money for other purposes. I do feel, if that had been the original purpose of the bill, it would have been enacted in the original act and so stated.

Why we have to chip away at those things which we have found workable, to take care of some other purpose some one else has in mind, has never been a compelling reason to me. I realize that there are certain powerful interests here who are quite interested in this legislation and have made their wishes known. I must say that I reluctantly bow to those interests.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, the Minority Leader talks about the Secretary of Highways being against this bill. However, when the Secretary of Banking is in favor of other bills, the Senator does not go according to that plan. Perhaps he wants to follow Bill Green on his tax measure, too.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not know of what that is apropos. Perhaps the gentleman can explain it a little more clearly. I think I can explain my position without any difficulty at all.

The Secretary of Banking stated to our Caucus, and I believe stated publicly, that he was not the father of those bills. If you want to know who the father is, I can tell you. Those were put in by the P. B. A. They sponsored those bills and have been harassing everyone to get them passed. As a matter of fact, they have visited this Chamber.

The Secretary of Banking did state that he is not in favor of those bills and he is not sponsoring them, but he sees nothing wrong in them. If we choose to pass them, he was not going to tell the Legislature what it could or could not do.

How Congressman Green figures in all this is beyond me. If it is your purpose to make a political speech, I think you should do that under Petitions and Remonstrances and not while we are debating legislation.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, we heard a political speech by this Minority Leader right after the last bill was passed, in talking about special interests, et cetera. When this Minority Leader accuses someone else of doing the same thing, I must assume that he is for Bill Green's tax measures, too, because that would take care of business and kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

The PRESIDENT. Is there something else that you wish to state, Senator Weiner, other than what has just happened, because I think this is out of order?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I agree that it is out of order. In keeping with the suggestion from one of the gentlemen on our side that sometimes recognized speakers are out of order, I will not call the gentleman out of order, but will speak on this point under Petitions and Remonstrances.

The PRESIDENT. I think that might be well.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, just for the purpose of clarification, I would like to point out that on page 3 of this bill, the township supervisors and the Department of Highways determine when all streets and roads of any importance have been improved. I am sure that the Department of Highways and the township supervisors, in their judgment, are well able to say when sufficient improvements have been made to all of the roads in the township. Then they can use twenty-five per cent of the money they get from the Liquid Fuels Tax for the maintenance of the roads and bridges.

Again, I repeat, Mr. President, it seems to be very clear and, in my opinion, at any rate, very reasonable.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would just like to point out on the very same page, page 3, the part which is being added:

"When all roads and streets of any importance as determined by the township supervisors and the department are classified as improved in any township of the second class the twenty-five per centum may be used for . . ."

Might I point out that the words, "other road purposes," are crossed out? In capital letters, the words, "Maintenance of roads and bridges in the township," are inserted. That was not originally intended by the Act, because if we were just changing that, we would not need this bill. What we are obviously changing is that we are taking in other areas that were never intended by this fund.

Mr. McMENAMIN. Mr. President, in view of this previous discussion, I thought, perhaps, that I might better say that I am voting for this bill. To the best of my knowledge, no one that I know is interested in it. So far as I know, I do not think any of us here have been influenced by anybody representing any so-called interests.

In so far as the bill, itself, is concerned, I agree with Senator Berger that it is sensible. I think that the remedy is if the people in a particular township do not like the way their township supervisors have allocated the road money, that they should elect a new set of supervisors at the next election. Under the Democratic process, the remedy for abuse of a person's office or failure to act to the best of their ability is at the polls. I do not think we have to have this type of discussion on a bill of this nature.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not know whether the gentleman received the same letter I did, but I received a letter from the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors. I think that association consists of people who are interested in these measures.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—34

Berger,	Keller,	Miller,	Taylor,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 758, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 25, 1947 (P. L. 1145) entitled as amended "Local Tax Enabling Law" providing that payment of certain taxes imposed by political subdivisions upon residents thereof shall be allowed as a deduction from similar taxes imposed by any other political subdivision.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lancaster, Senator Kessler.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Kessler, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KESSLER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Senator Kessler, I would like to ask you a few questions.

Number one, in the event a wage earner is living outside of Philadelphia and working in Philadelphia and this legislation was passed, and they enacted the necessary legislation in the municipality outside of Philadelphia, where would this gentleman pay the tax?

Mr. KESSLER. To his place of residence, Mr. President.

Mr. LANE. Thank you very much.

Mr. PRESIDENT, I believe that this legislation is brought out for the simple purposes of hamstringing the operations in Philadelphia. I had an analysis made of this legislation and found that what they are trying to do is insert in the Sterling Act, the law which is now prevailing under Act No. 481. It seems to me that Philadelphia will be seriously hurt, financially, if this legislation passes the Senate and the House of Representatives.

All of us realize the problems we now have in the municipalities. We have wage taxes in effect throughout Pennsylvania, under Act No. 481. I think the budget of Philadelphia depends upon the wage taxes which are in effect under the Sterling Act in Philadelphia. It is only natural to assume that a great portion of the taxes that are paid in Philadelphia are, no doubt, paid by persons who do not reside within the confines of that city. Since they make their money in Philadelphia and since it is a metropolitan area, I feel that they should pay their proportionate share.

Therefore, Mr. President, I, for one, am going to oppose the passage of this legislation.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill, but if he would like to answer my remarks I will appreciate hearing from him.

I have been reading in the newspapers, and it has been ascribed to the sponsor of this bill, that he is not in favor of many of the programs which are included in the Governor's budget. As a matter of fact, he said he will cut some money from the budget that has been specifically allocated for the Philadelphia area.

I now ask Senator Kessler, specifically, would he reimburse Philadelphia or provide the loss in income which it would suffer as a result of this type of legislation? I would also like to know from him whether he would favor this type of legislation for the cities, in his county, which surround the different areas that might fit into this particular category. Although this bill has been tailor-made for the Philadelphia area and is trying to accomplish, in a sort of backhanded fashion, what direct onslaughts have been made on this type of taxation, I do not feel that this is properly thought out. It has some political value, I am sure. However, as far as being in the category in which I know the Senator always acts in these matters, I do not believe that this has been given the same type of careful thought and consideration that he usually gives to these matters.

The loss that Philadelphia will suffer, I think, will be so great that they will have to come to the Legislature and even ask for greater amounts of money than they are now asking for and which they also are not getting.

Therefore, Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to vote "no" on this type of legislation.

Mr. KESSLER. Mr. President, last year, the city of Lancaster imposed a wage tax for city purposes, I believe, among its residents. That tax applied to individuals who worked in the city, but lived in the surrounding townships. As a retaliatory measure, most of the school districts in the surrounding townships imposed wage taxes in order to preserve the funds of their citizens to their own school districts. It so happens that we have a relatively small number of people who do work in Philadelphia, but reside in Lancaster County. Those people expressed the desire to me that as long as they had to pay a wage tax, they wanted the funds to go to their own school district and not to Philadelphia. That is the sole purpose of this bill. There is no ulterior motive nor any intention to harm Philadelphia in any way.

I have checked with some of the people living in Delaware, Chester and Montgomery Counties and I understand that they do not have any wage taxes down in that area. Therefore, I do not believe that the impact on Philadelphia is going to be very great.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I wonder whether the gentleman would address himself to the other question that I asked him. Would he be willing, as the chairman of an important committee of this Body, to provide some means of taking up the loss that Philadelphia will feel as a result of this bill being enacted into law?

Mr. KESSLER. Mr. President, it seems to me that that is a problem for Philadelphia to solve and not for the General Assembly.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman for his courtesy.

I would also like to point out to him that if those persons who live in Lancaster and earn their livelihood in Philadelphia are having difficulty with this problem, I might suggest to them, as a Philadelphian, to whom this problem has been suggested to be solved by 'the people of Philadelphia, that those people get jobs in Lancaster and remain there. Then all of their money could remain in that area and Philadelphia would not have to take anything from them. I am sure this would please the people in New Jersey and in Philadelphia who are looking for jobs at this time. They might find they will not have any problem of this type and will be only too happy to pay this wage tax.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, I am not affected by this bill in any way, as far as my own constituents are concerned, I believe. It seems to me that the essential change in the law, as contained in the passage of this bill or any other Act of Assembly, only applies to the Sterling Act. I do not know that any other Act of Assembly will be affected except the Sterling Act.

It seems to me that the proper way to amend the Sterling Act is to propose an amendment to the Sterling Act. It seems to me this is a rather unusual way, to amend one law by making an amendment to another law. For that reason, alone, it seems there is a very good reason for opposing this. If we wanted to amend the Sterling Act, the direct, open and above board way to do it is to offer an amendment to that Act.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I just want to point out one other thing to the gentleman from Lancaster, Senator Kessler. The reason the areas surrounding Philadelphia do not have a wage tax is because they realize that their people—they are what is known in the Philadelphia area as "the bedroom counties"—are already paying this tax to Philadelphia and that is the reason they do not impose one of their own. I am sure that if this were to become law, they would certainly hasten to impose their own wage tax for the purposes of giving their people alleged relief and, by the same token, being able to sort of bite—if I might use that term—into the old pay check.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, in answer to Senator Weiner, I would just like to say that we do not have a wage tax in Delaware County. Therefore, we would benefit in no way by this bill. However, I can say that I think it is good legislation. I think it is fair legislation, regardless of whether the bill is drawn properly or not, I think the theory and the thinking behind it are absolutely perfect.

I think that taxation without representation is still rotten and not the American way to tax people. Even though we are paying the Philadelphia wage tax, we feel that it is unjust and unfair and we resent it very much. I want Senator Weiner to know that we are not in any way condoning this Philadelphia wage tax. I think this is a good bill and I think if he wants to be fair about it, he would vote for this bill and not against it. In my opinion, it is the most vicious and un-American tax that anyone can impose on any district adjoining their county. I think it is wrong when people are charged for the right to work.

In our county, we have as many Philadelphians working as we have Delaware Countians in Philadelphia and we do not tax them. There is no principle, right or justice in back of any county which does this.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, in reply to the gentleman, the question recurs and maybe he would like to answer the question. How will they make up this loss of revenue that Philadelphia will suffer? If he tells me it is a Philadelphia problem, I must say to him that I have already answered that question.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, yes, I would like to answer that question. I consider that a problem for the city of Philadelphia's government. That is a problem for the City Council of Philadelphia and for Mayor Dilworth to decide where they are going to get the money. That is not my problem here in the Legislature, to plan that we are going to give them money to pay for a tax which is not fair, not just and not American.

Mr. MULLIN. Mr. President, I am surprised to see Senator Kessler introduce a bill such as this. I would have expected it to be introduced by Senator Watkins. I do not think there are many people who live in Lancaster and work in Philadelphia, because they are about seventy-five miles from Philadelphia.

There is no question in my mind that if this bill were to pass, every community in Delaware County would have a wage tax, and probably a three and one-quarter per cent wage tax. It is my opinion that it would be to the interest of the people of Delaware County to have this bill defeated, because if it is not, they will be paying the Philadelphia wage tax because Philadelphia will probably have to increase their tax and then they will have their own tax, too.

I think that this tax is a bad tax not only because it will upset the financial picture of the city of Philadelphia at the present time, while it is being cheated out of necessary funds by the General Assembly, but I also think it would be to the interest of the voters of Delaware County not to have this bill pass. That applies to Montgomery County, also.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not want to recount political history. However, does it not seem strange, Senator Watkins, that in all these years since 1937 when the Sterling Act was passed, when you have had a Governor, you have had Legislatures, and you have even had a City Council in Philadelphia that were on the same political complexion as the gentlemen sitting on the other side, that from that time up until the present moment, we have not had an onslaught on this unfair, un-American and improper tax that we have had in the City of Philadelphia? Why has this only occurred in the last couple of years? I would like to say to Senator Watkins that if this Legislature and this Body concerned itself less with Philadelphia when it came to making prohibitive laws for Philadelphia, and concerned itself more with Philadelphia as far as its money problems are concerned, I am sure we would not have to waste our time on this type of legislation.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I must take one minute to reply to Senator Watkins who called the Philadelphia wage tax unjust, unfair, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera.

Senator Watkins, not only has the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania declared that this Philadelphia tax is just and fair and legal, but if you have read the newspapers during the past six months, you will have observed that the question was carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, and the Supreme Court of the United States said that the tax was just and fair, and was not taking advantage of the residents of your county. If the residents of your county choose to earn their livelihood in Philadelphia and take jobs in Philadelphia, which Philadelphians might fill, they should be willing to pay their just share of the costs of carrying on the government in Philadelphia.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, the Supreme Court of the United States did make a ruling on the wage tax. The Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania made a ruling on the wage tax. However, nowhere in those rulings was it said that the tax was fair. They said it was legal. I do not question the legality of the Sterling Act. I see nothing wrong with the Supreme Court's ruling. However, I still say that it is an unfair and an unjust and an unwanted tax.

I would also like to say to Senator Mullin that in Delaware County we will never have a wage tax. That is one county that cannot afford to have some of our residents pay a Philadelphia tax and, on the other hand, pay a wage tax to us in Delaware County. We are not a wage tax county. When Senator Mullin talks about a three and one-quarter per cent tax, I think he must be pulling some of Johnny Dent's figures out of the air.

Under Act No. 481, the only wage tax which could be levied in my county would be one per cent, because the Act does not permit a tax beyond one per cent.

I want to assure you Philadelphia Senators that you do not have to worry about Delaware County. We are not going to levy a wage tax. If you want to, for once in your lives, as Senators, vote for what you think is right in the American form of taxation, you will vote for this bill.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I just want to point out one thing to the Senate. I know that Senator Watkins has thought of it, but he is much too modest to mention it.

I will say that he has consistently, uniformly and continually battled against the Philadelphia wage tax ever since he has been in the Senate. Therefore, he has not been remiss in that respect, I assure you, Mr. President.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, if I represented Delaware County, I would also be against the Philadelphia wage tax, consistently.

Mr. DONOLOW. Mr. President, I was hoping that the Senator from Delaware County, as he grows older, would become mellow toward Philadelphia. I was hoping by this time that he would show the same affection, concern and consideration for Philadelphia as he does for the Secretary of the Senate.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I heard the Majority Leader make a very informative statement, and I wish to advise Senator Watkins that someone once said that consistency is the hobgoblin of small minds and the refuge of little statemen. However, since I have not had an argument this entire Session with the distinguished gentleman from Delaware County, I would like very much to interrogate him.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Watkins, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WATKINS. I will, Mr. President. He has not insulted me this year so far.

Mr. LANE. Senator Watkins, did you collaborate with Senator Kessler in bringing about this little turkey?

Mr. WATKINS. I will have to be honest with you. I did not know that Senator Kessler introduced this bill.

Mr. LANE. You did not?

Mr. WATKINS. I did not.

Mr. LANE. Do you suppose that he might some day represent Delaware County?

Mr. WATKINS. I will say this much for him. He was on his toes, and I welcome his help.

Mr. LANE. Thank you very much. Senator, I just heard you make the statement whereby you said that you would never enact a wage tax in Delaware County. Is that correct?

Mr. WATKINS. That is correct, as long as I have anything to do with politics.

Mr. LANE. Wait now. Just a moment now. You have added a little bit of projection there.

Mr. WATKINS. I do not go as far as you go, Senator Lane. I cannot tell what my grandchildren are going to do when they get in office. I do not know what is going to happen then. As long as I am in politics, we will never have a wage tax in Delaware County.

Mr. LANE. Perhaps we might say as long as you are the boss in Delaware County you will not have a wage tax.

Mr. WATKINS. No, I am not the boss. However, if you want to know who is the boss, I will tell you. Would you like to know? You asked me a question.

Mr. LANE. You gave me the answer. I wanted to hear the answer. However, I wanted to make sure that you knew what you were saying, Senator.

Mr. WATKINS. Well, I am very close to Senator McClure.

Mr. LANE. Oh, I see. In other words, you are speaking for Senator McClure. Is that correct?

Mr. WATKINS. I speak for Senator McClure on the wage tax, yes.

Mr. LANE. Then you guarantee that there will not be a wage tax in the event we pass this legislation?

Mr. WATKINS. Not as long as Senator McClure and I are there.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman very much. I wanted to get an argument from him, but I cannot get one today for some reason. Generally speaking, he gets on the floor and waves his hands. We like to hear him make a speech. However, I guess he is getting old and mellow, and does not have the enthusiasm he used to have.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE RECENT MINE DISASTER, PURSUANT TO HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION, SERIAL No. 19

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Mr. President, at this time, pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution, Serial Number 19, I should like to submit to the Senate the report of the Joint Legislative Committee created by the General Assembly to investigate the disaster that occurred on January 22, 1959, at the River Slope Mine, located at Port Blanchard, Pennsylvania, and operated by the Knox Coal Company.

This same report is being presented also to the House by the Vice-Chairman of this Committee, Representative Musto.

Members of the Committee personally visited the site of the river breakthrough. Hearings were held by the Committee throughout the months of March and April 1959. The validity of the committee was litigated in the Luzerne County Courts, the Commonwealth Court and the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. Some 1,700 pages of testimony were taken, some sixty-four witnesses were examined, and considerable hours of work were expended in research, review of the record and preparation of this report by the committee itself, counsel and technical staff.

In this report, the Committee has concerned itself with factual data and recommendations designed to prevent a recurrence of another disaster similar to that which occurred at the River Slope operation, and which claimed the lives of twelve men. We sincerely hope that our joint efforts in this regard will bear fruit. Likewise, we trust that the Legislature will effectuate the recommendations contained in this report and also pass the eight bills and one concurrent resolution that the committee is offering in conjunction with this report, which pertain to conditions that in our opinion require immediate corrective action.

The committee wishes to express its gratitude to Attorney General Alpern and her staff for its assistance and co-operation through the course of its legal proceedings; to the Luzerne County Commissioners, the District Attorney, the United States Attorney, the Bench and Bar of Luzerne County, and the people of Wilkes-Barre for the hospitality and graciousness extended to the committee and its staff; to the working press, television and radio personnel who most objectively reported the proceedings; to the State Police for their cooperation with the committee and staff; and to all of the persons and organizations who assisted and made possible the functioning of the Legislative Investigating Committee, we tender our appreciation.

Mr. President, as Chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee created to investigate the Knox Mine Disaster, I hereby submit its report to the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The report will be printed in the Appendix to the Legislative Journal.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, there is a question as to whether I can be here tomorrow when the Senate is in Session. However, I just want to take a minute to tell the Members of the Senate that last Thursday, two of our members of the Pittsburgh Police Department were seriously wounded in a gun battle with some bank robbers who robbed a bank out in Hays, in the Thirty-First Ward, and were caught over in the west end of the city. Both of these men are married and have families.

Under existing law, their families would only receive workmen's compensation in the event their wounds prove fatal. Unfortunately, on the plane ride to Harrisburg today, I read where Officer Paga had taken a turn for the worse.

This House Bill No. 2127, on today's Calendar, was introduced to provide more adequate compensation for survivors and widows and children in cases such as these.

I am only sorry that I cannot be here tomorrow to vote for this bill on Final Passage.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, over the week end, it was incumbent upon me, as the head of the family, to go out and look for a storm door. In doing so and in pricing them, I found that the price was $69.50. However, if I would purchase this door, installed, they would add $3.90. To me, this meant nothing, except that I inquired about the sales tax. They told me that they absorbed the sales tax. However, when it was an installed item, instead of paying a sales tax on the $69.50, they paid the sales tax on the wholesale cost to them of that item, or $30. In other words, by me having it installed by the fellow who sold it to me, the Commonwealth did not receive the difference of the tax on $69, practically $70, and $30, which is practically the sales tax on $40 difference.

I investigated and also found that this applies where roofing is installed. On anything which has an installation cost to it, they go back and charge millions and millions of dollars less in Pennsylvania, over a year, due to the fact that where an item is installed, the wholesale price only is liable for the sales tax.

If you will look in your banking statements, on F.H.A. Title No. 1, there are millions and millions of dollars in purchases for improvements. Many more things which are installed do not come under these loans. Therefore, there is a fantastic loss to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania when things are purchased to be installed.

Mr. President, I think the Appropriations Committee of this Senate should look into this matter, because there is a loss in sales taxes of millions of dollars each year due to the fact that installed items, or items for home improvements, if you want to put it that way, are charged on the wholesale price rather than the retail price, when there is an installation involved.

I investigated a little further and found that under the West Virginia Act, they plugged this loophole some years ago. If the Appropriations Committee is looking for a guide, I recommend that it look at the West Virginia Act. This will make a lot of difference, particularly when we are looking for extra money for our schools. Looking at it and estimating, I assume that there would be almost enough money to cover the demands which the schools are making on us in this loss on this item, alone.

Therefore, Mr. President, I think this is worthy of our consideration.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Tuesday, July 28, 1959, at 12:00 o'clock, m., Eastern Standard Time.

Mr. KESSLER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 5:45 o'clock, p. m., Eastern Standard Time, until Tuesday, July 28, 1959, at 12:00 o'clock, m., Eastern Standard Time.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MONDAY, July 27, 1959

The House met at 3:30 p. m. EST.

The SPEAKER (Hiram G. Andrews) in the Chair.

The SPEAKER. The Chair announces with profound sorrow the death on Sunday, July 26, of the Honorable John R. Haudenshield, late a Member of this House representing the 15th District of the County of Allegheny.

As a mark of respect to his memory the Chair requests that at the conclusion of the prayer we stand in silence with head bowed until the gavel sounds.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend David R. Hoover, offered the following prayer:

God, our Father, Who art in the midst of life and dost call men to come and follow Thee; we approach Thy throne of mercy in deepest humility as we endeavor to put our hearts and minds in tune with Thee; grant to each one of us the most profound trust and confidence in Thee who art the author and finisher of our faith; and instill within the life of each one of us the peace which only Thou canst give.

We pause in the solemnity of this hour to pay a parting tribute to one who served this House for many years. The Honorable John R. Haudenshield was called to his eternal rest yesterday. He was presently serving his tenth term as a Member of the House of Representatives and the kind and thoughtful deeds he performed will long linger in the hearts of those who knew him.

O God, we ask Thy gracious love and unbounded mercy upon this General Assembly; fill them with the unfailing task and responsibility of furthering Thy kingdom; and lift them with Thy eternal power and endless glory. In Jesus' name and for His sake, we pray. Amen.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HELM asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, last week I took the floor to ask the Speaker a couple of questions concerning his weekly newsletter, if you want to call it such, at which time he said he would answer me not in person from the Chair but would answer me in the next issue of "Dispelling the Fog".

I received that answer today and I believe that he has clarified it so far as I am concerned, because he says that he was referring, when he mentioned "bubbling neophytes" to the enthusiastic newer Members on both sides of the aisle.

I am happy with that explanation, Mr. Speaker, and I am also very happy for the fine course that you have given me in your letter today on the subject of semantics. I did not realize what that was until I looked it up in the dictionary also. So I believe I have had at least a slight training this week in being able to improve my vocabulary.

I was wondering how I could properly thank the Speaker for giving me that lesson. So I went to the trouble to look up a word which I thought perhaps described him. In looking that up I found a number of words that I thought I might use. One of them was a giant of learning, but I hesitate to say he is a giant of learning, although he is a very learned man, because of his size.

Then I thought I could refer to him perhaps as a walking encyclopedia, because over the years in his newspaper work, and his work on the floor of this House he has proven that he knows how to use all the big words in the dictionary. Certainly he might be called a master mind, a man of genius, but the word that I like to use more than any other is that of lexicographer. That is a person who makes a study of words and writes books such as a dictionary.

But to properly thank him I am only going to say to the Speaker of the House, thank you, Professor Andrews.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman for not calling him some of the things that some other people have called him.

The SPEAKER. The House will be at ease while the Floor Leaders complete their marking of the calendar.

If someone desires to address the House for perhaps four or five minutes, now would be the occasion. The Floor Leaders want to make speeches, but they do not want to speak while the other one is marking the calendar.

The gentleman from Cameron wants to make a speech but he wants to make it when the Floor Leaders are not busy so they can listen, but if there is someone on the floor who wants to take advantage of this opportunity to say something worthwhile he may do so.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. YETTER asked and obtained unanimous consent to adress the House.

Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentlemen of the House, for some time I have been waiting for this opportunity. Last week we passed a lot of bills in regard to safety on the highways. I think we should do something if the Police Commissioner or the administration does not. We should take the lead to have more State Police and better paid State Police.

I think we have a good police force, but they should have more help. Just in the last two weeks the Police Commissioner was in my county and decided to close up one of the police barracks. I read in the paper where he made the statement that he is going to improve the police protection in our county by taking three of the State Police out of our county.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to know how they perform those miracles, by closing the police barracks in a thickly populated section of the county, and taking three of the State Police out of the county, how that is going to improve the police protection.

I think we should do something to increase the State Police who are patrolling our highways instead of decreasing them.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. STROUP asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, since the matter has been brought up by Mr. Yetter, I thought I would contribute something to the statement he has made.

A comparison of the salary schedule of the State Police is very interesting. I just want to deal with the Trooper alone.

In Pennsylvania the annual base salary for a trooper begins at $3,549, and in the 25th year he receives $4,758.

In New Jersey the begining base salary is $4,104; in Ohio the beginning base salary for the trooper is $5,040; in Maryland the beginning salary is $3,575; in Michigan $4,448; in West Virginia $3,000 and in New York $3,150.

A comparison of the beginning salaries for state patrolmen reveals that Pennsylvania, comparatively speaking, is very low. By the 25th year in all of the states that are mentioned practically everyone of those troopers who maintain that particular status in other states are receiving higher salaries than those that are given to them in their employment in the state of Pennsylvania.

So, I would like to support the statement that has been made by the gentleman that attention should be given to increasing the base salaries of our state Patrolmen.

INTERROGATION

Mr. TOMPKINS asked and obtained unanimous consent to interrogate Mr. McCann.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, last Wednesday during our session here the gentleman from Indiana Mr. Buchanan, asked for a long roll call on House Bill No. 1460, and the vote was 108 to 66 or a total of 174. The previous roll call on House Bill No. 1411 was 177 to 7 or 184. The next one was 185 to 0, on House Bill No. 1562. I only requested the long roll call on House Bill No. 2134, and the vote was 187 to 1, or a total of 188.

I understood that a 10 vote error was found, because on the succeeding rolls they were announced by the Speaker as 188 to 0, but were changed on the record to 178 to 0. I would like to have that information verified or denied for the information of this House and for the better keeping of our rolls.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I have sent downstairs and gotten the calendar for Wednesday, July 22nd, which was the last working day of last week.

Would you start now with the bills, and these are the marks as announced by the Speaker at the time of announcing the roll call. Begin on whichever one you want.

Mr. TOMPKINS. House Bill No. 1460.

Mr. McCANN. House Bill No. 1460 would appear on page 12 of last Wednesday's calendar, and 1460 was announced by the Speaker as 108 aye, 66 nay.

Mr. TOMPKINS. A total of 174.

Mr. McCANN. That is a total of 174. That was a slow roll call and the marks indicated—my marks indicated—lots of "no" Republican votes.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I am not interested in which side voted "no", I am interested particularly in what the total count was.

Mr. McCANN. All right. 108 to 66 was the official announcement of the Speaker following the end of the roll call on House Bill No. 1460, Printer's No. 1140, on page 12 of last Wednesday's calendar.

Mr. TOMPKINS. What was the announced roll call on House Bill No. 1411? That was a bill that was voted on immediately prior to —

Mr. McCANN. House Bill No. 1411, which was the first bill on page 12. House Bill No. 1411 was, aye 177, nay 7. This was with the negative vote standing and then called off by name.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is a total of 185.

Mr. McCANN. No, 184, sir. 177 to 7.

Mr. TOMPKINS. 184, I am sorry.

What does your calendar show as to the vote on House Bill No. 1562?

Mr. McCANN. On 1562, on page 12, was a fast roll call 185 to 0, with no negative votes.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Then, what does your record show on House Bill No. 2134?

Mr. McCANN. On 2134, page 13 of last Wednesday's calendar the vote was 187 to 1.

Mr. TOMPKINS. A total of 188?

Mr. McCANN. That is correct, sir.

The SPEAKER. The Chair might, for the information of the gentleman from Cameron and the gentleman from Greene, on 2134 on quick calculation there was an error of 10 votes, which of course did not affect the result and which was corrected in subsequent roll calls.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, the very thing I am trying to get at is this: That subsequent roll calls do use the 188 figure to arrive at the final tally, when it should have been 178. Now, there were quite a number of no votes on subsequent bills, on which the basic figure of 188 was used to calculate the final count. Whether or not it would have changed the results of any of those subsequent bills, I do not know, but it looks very much as though it may have.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, if I may enlighten the gentleman, I cannot see how it could change any roll call. All of these were affirmative votes, whether they are 178 or 188. On the bill that you requested, the one particular bill, there was a very slow roll call with only those in their seats answering, and that was House Bill No. 1460 on page 12.

Mr. TOMPKINS. That is right.

Mr. McCANN. Therefore, what I am saying to the gentlemen from Cameron, Mr. Speaker, is that I do not have any information on any of the roll calls, whether it was 178 or 188, which would change the result of any of the bills.

Mr. TOMPKINS. It may or may not have changed the results on any of the calls in question on last Wednesday, but I am authorized to state on behalf of the Republicans that they took caucus action this afternoon that they will not consent to anymore consent calendars, that we will not stand for any more fast roll calls, unless we have accurate counts to support them.

Furthermore, the Republicans went on record this afternoon in their caucus, we know it cannot be done this Session perhaps, but we went on record in favor of supporting an electric roll call for this House, both for the speed which it would give in the work of this House and for the accuracy which it would promote and for the elimination of confusion which seems to arise every time we have a roll call in the House.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, do I understand the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, that beginning today, we have no fast roll calls even though some bills on today's callendar, as we approach them, are, shall we say, unanimously agreed to by both parties and no opposition in either caucus of the passage of the bill?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Only for the Members who are present.

Mr. McCANN. Well, Mr. Speaker, who else ever votes except the Members that are present and vote aye or nay?

Mr. TOMPKINS. What roll call would you use in order to establish the count?

Mr. McCANN. Well, let us say the first roll call of the day.

The SPEAKER. Could the chair intervene from his post where he has been in a position to watch the ebb and flow of the membership from roll call to roll call?

You will find that after an important roll call various Members get up and leave the floor. They will then return, if the bell is rung, for an important bill, but after you get an established roll call and they are temporarily absent, I imagine that they are included in the affirmative, especially in those cases where the Chair asks, "Are there any negative votes?"

Unless you are going to have the membership in the House all of the time, you are going to lengthen the Session which is quite all right with the Chair. I watch the Members come and go, I even see, sometimes when there is a bill upon which a Member might not like to vote, that for that particular five minutes he is not in the Hall of the House. That sometimes happens.

I hope the leadership will get together on some plan of getting a basic roll call, getting a negative vote. The only thing that happens is that sometimes Members, when a leave of absence is not asked for, because there was no leave of absence asked for them, they are included in the list of those present and voting. Now if we are going to get down to cases I think if the Member is not in the Hall of the House and no leave of absence has been asked for him that he be considered absent.

Mr. TOMPKINS. In that case, Mr. Speaker, I think if the Member does not answer he should be recorded as absent or not voting.

We have one case, entered on page 2163 of the Journal of this Session, where the party was marked as absent on the first roll call, but on all of the subsequent roll calls he was voted on all the bills as voting aye. If we are going to get a basic roll call of some kind and as the Speaker has stated, if a person goes out of the Hall of this House for the purpose of avoiding a vote on a bill, one way or the other, then that party should be recorded as not voting.

We come up to the same parliamentary question that I raised last week, can a duly elected Member of this House sit in his seat in this chamber on a roll call and refuse to vote?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the case that the gentleman has brought before the House, if a roll call today, for example, was 200 on the first roll call, and the person he speaks of was not in the House on the original roll call and then walked in on a subsequent bill, he certainly would be recorded on all roll calls following the first bill. I believe you have stood here and seen that happen every day of the legislative session. I believe it is in proper order.

This is what we are faced with. If we are going to have a slow roll call on every bill, then at this point all agreements are withdrawn as to stopping hours of the House. We had an agreement between the two parties that we would try to work to a certain hour so that the members would have an opportunity to eat and to get out of here at a certain hour in the evening. For example, last week we worked right to the dot on Wednesday and left. Another hour would certainly have been helpful to all of us, but an agreement is an agreement. This came about following the Session in which we worked until nine something in the evening. But, if there is going to be a slow roll call demanded on every bill, I believe that I have a right on behalf of the Meubers on my side, to withdraw all agreements as to working hours, as to the end of each day's Session.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, on this side of the House we do not propose to have a pistol held at our heads to have this House function in the manner in which it should function.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I would still like to have the gentleman from Cameron explain to the House what is wrong with any roll call that is now on record, or any system used last week or any previous day in which I asked at this microphone, for example, on every bill, if the bill met with the approval of the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson, as to a fast roll call. He indicated their position of fast or slow roll call. Is there objection to that procedure?

Mr. TOMPKINS. If there is no controversy in the bill and nobody wants to raise an objection to a bill, then I say that we should have an accurate roll call. In those cases where there is agreement on both sides of the House, I would agree that perhaps we can have a fast roll call because there would be no negative votes voted by the members who are present on the count for the day.

The SPEAKER. Could the Chair ask the gentleman from Cameron a question?

Has the Chair ever in his recent memory proposed a fast roll call without consulting both Floor Leaders?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I do not know that the Chair has done that, but what we have been doing, Mr. Speaker, is to establish a roll call at the beginning of the day and use that as a basis upon which you calculate all your subsequent roll calls, and we just do not think it is fair.

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to say to the Membership that he will be guided, absolutely guided, in the future, as in the past, by whatever arrangements are made by the respective Floor Leaders. When they inform the Chair that such an arrangement has been made, the Chair will act in conformity, unless some Member on the floor exercising his proper rights advises or moves that another course be taken.

STATEMENT BY MINORITY LEADER

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, the thing I want to talk about is the dispatch in the Sunday newspapers issued out of the Governor's office, and I am reading now from the Philadelphia Inquirer which says in substance as follows: A recently constructed 700-bed wing for mental patients at Emoryville State Hospital in Chester County remains empty because the Legislature has failed to provide $192,803 to purchase equipment necessary to its operation.

This was disclosed Saturday by Governor David L. Lawrence who said the funds were tied up in the tax and budget deadlock which has gripped the Legislature for nearly five months.

I want to refute this statement, Mr. Speaker, and I will give you the reasons why.

For one thing, this building was turned over by the General State Authority to the Department of Welfare on April 1 of this year. I would say that we have passed a tax program to date which will bring in a figure we have agreed upon as $1.674 billion. Had this House of Representatives known in March or April that this building was turned over and that they needed money for personnel and for equipment, that there were people standing in line to be admitted to mental hospitals, we certainly, in this House, would have passed a special appropriation bill which would have provided the $192,000 and would have set up enough money to get the hospital in operation during the first six months.

Therefore I say that the Governor's office has been derelict in not telling us, and I say this, that means both Democrats and Republicans. We have a very able Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, and I am sure had he received a message that it was absolutely imperative that we pass bills to take care of that situation they would long since have been on the statute books.

It is not the fault of this Session of the General Assembly. It is not because of any budget hold-up because we have failed to pass taxes, for, as I say, there is $1.674 billion worth of taxes on the books now and this would be a preferred appropriation which the Governor could sign without having a certification as to the full revenue picture for the biennium.

Dr. Davis says because the money was not available at this time, acutely ill and senile patients must wait in line for admittance and cannot be accommodated. I have checked the situation at Emoryville and I find that the capacity, that is the present enrollment, is 750 patients. capacity, this is the present enrollment, is 750 patients. In other words, in the hospital itself, not counting the new wing for 700 beds, there is room for 200 persons.

Also I checked the payroll and found that in the last two weeks of the biennium the payroll was $42,085. The last current payroll for the two-week period was $41,790, or three less employees. Surely there are not people standing in line waiting to get into mental institutions when there is room for 200 people in Emoryville now without even passing an appropriation.

In order to do the job so that we will not be further blamed, I have two bills prepared and I am asking them to be co-sponsored on the other side.

No. 1 will give them the $192,000 for equipment and the second will provide a stop-gap appropriaton for the first six months of operation. If we have failed to do the job because the Governor did not ask us to do it, we will take the bull by the horns here and now on these bills and do the job.

Also, while I am at it, as far as Emoryville is concerned, there is right now a bakeshop that has been ready for the last two or three years that has never been opened wherein they would make bread for Emoryville and some of the other institutions in the surrounding area. Why has not that bakeshop been put into effect? The baked goods at Byberry alone cost $121,000 a year. Therefore, I have bills prepared to pass this appropriation.

Again I repeat, the Governor should have told us last March that he wanted this money, and for the little sum that it is, it could have been done. Do not blame us now and do not use that as a stick to clobber us with and appeal to the hearts of the people of Pennsylvania, that because we in this General Assembly have not passed this appropriation hundreds of people are standing in line to get into mental institutions. The facts do not bear that out.

Vacancies in the membership of the council shall be filled in the manner provided for original appointments."

Amend Sec. 5, page 4, line 1, by striking out "Governor's" and inserting: "State."

Amend Sec. 5, page 5, line 6, by inserting after "Governor" "the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate."

Amend Sec. 6, page 6, line 1, by inserting after "Governor" "and General Assembly."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. I would ask Mr. McCann did he receive a copy of the amendments?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I received a copy. The amendments are controversial dealing with Section 4.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. The bill, we think, is a good piece of legislation. However, we feel that it is of such state-wide importance that it should be called the State Council for Economic Development instead of the Governor's Council. I mean instead of the "Governor's Council," the amendments should insert the word "State."

Also, we feel that in order to make it more representative, as of a cross-section of the Commonwealth, the fifteen members to serve on it, five should be appointed by the Speaker, five by the President pro tempore of the Senate, and five by the Governor. The effect of the amendments is to do that very thing.

The bill now reposes all the appointive power in the Governor, and we feel that we would get a much fairer, much more objective, report from the group if they were fifteen people appointed by three different people, rather than one person of the same political philosophy.

Therefore, we feel that we are taking a good bill and making a better bill out of it by offering these amendments. I am asking the House to support the amendments.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the amendments offered by the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson, we have no objection to the first part of the amendments in which it would be titled the State Council for Economic Development, eliminating the word "Governor." To that we have no objection if that is the wish to change the title and call it the State Council. That meets with our approval.

The bill calls for the appointment of 15 citizens of the Commonwealth by the Governor on this Council for Economic Development and Interdepartmental Advisory Committee. The amendments offered by Mr. Johnson would place the appointments, five by the Speaker, five by the President pro tem. of the Senate, and five by the Governor. We believe that the Council for Economic Development should, in every way, try to have at its disposal by far the best Pennsylvanians in every way, and we believe that it would be advantageous for the Governor to appoint those people from all walks of life in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, certainly most qualified to serve in their respective positions. In no way is it intended to hold to any political party the appointees. If the position of the amendments is so that they would not be of one political party, it was never intended to be that, and it certainly will not be the intent to appoint either all Democrats or all Republicans to such an important Economic Development Council.

On those grounds, Mr. Speaker, we will have to oppose the amendments but we are willing to accept the title change that is offered in the first part of the amendments offered by Mr. Johnson, if he will consent to divide his amendments.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I believe the meat in the bill is changing the appointive power.

Why do we not vote on that particular section first, changing the appointive power so that ten of the Members are appointed, five by the Speaker and five by the President pro tempore? I certainly do not want to have us vote just to change the name to State—that is merely a technical change. The meat of the bill is, who is going to appoint them? I am not saying that this Governor will, but I am afraid we will get Governors who will go to all our universities and appoint a lot of do-gooders and brain-trusters on this Committee and you will get a peculiar report on the economic situation depending on how they view it through their rose-colored glasses.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection the Chair will divide the question and place before the House the amendments to Section 4, page 3, as explained by the Minority Leader. The question is on agreeing to the amendments to Section 4, page 3. Will the gentleman accept the division or a rising vote on the question?

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Yes, Mr. Speaker, I will.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair lays before the House the amendment offered to Section 4.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

On a rising vote, ninety Members having voted in the affirmative and ninety-four in the negative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the remainder of the amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I ask that those not voting be read.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, again we come to the same position. Who are the negative votes?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will order a full roll call if that is what the gentleman would like to have, but certainly the Chair would like to be guided by some rule.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, on any roll call there are the ayes, the nays and those that are not voting. You have read the negative roll call. I am asking now that we have those not voting. Certainly they must have that on their list.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Well, in order to do that we must have a full roll call.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, there has been no objection to the roll call. The negative votes are recorded; the membership of the House present today is 192. If there are 20 negative votes, there is no question that the rest are affirmative.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I will withdraw my request at this time.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman very kindly.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILLS ON THIRD READING

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 725, Printer's No. 1085, was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the last bill for today is House Bill No. 777, Printer's No. 1126, because we have arrived at the time at which we have agreed we would recess for dinner. I ask that this be the last bill for today.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 777, entitled:

An Act relating to apprenticeship and training creating a State Apprenticeship and Training Council in the Department of Labor and Industry to formulate an apprenticeship and training policy and program and defining its powers and duties and providing for administration.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire of the Majority Leader if this is going to be a controversial bill, and if it is going to take maybe 45 minutes or an hour before we finish it?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, House Bill No. 777 carries the following notation: There are some "no" votes, it is controversial but not a division on party lines. Is that correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I do not know, I am asking you.

Mr. McCANN. It is not controversial on this side, Mr. Speaker; all the votes are for it.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, in my opinion I would say that perhaps we had better have a fast roll call on the bill and we will see how many negative votes there are on the bill. If there is a large number, then you will have to call the roll slowly.

It is getting late. Let's try it this way and see how it works out.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

STATEMENT BY MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, with reference to House Bill 777, which just passed, I would like to insert into the record the statement which was to have been used in the debate on the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I request unanimous consent of the House to offer it for the record.

The SPEAKER. The statement will be recorded in the record.

Mr. McCANN. The case for H. 777 rests firmly on the fact that in this complicated and ever-changing world, we must train to survive. The actions which we take to develop the human resources of Pennsylvania will largely determine the state of our welfare.

As Governor Lawrence put it, in a speech in Pittsburgh in January of this year, "We must train and train and train."

Within the past year there has been a remarkable upsurge in interest in training for employment in Pennsylvania. Various groups, working independently, have suddenly realized how utterly essential it is that we mobilize our training resources and concentrate them on training for employment. The State Chamber of Commerce and the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor have both called for an expansion of vocational training. Educators and industrial development groups have been pointing to the need.

The Secretary of Labor and Industry found that at the height of the recession in late 1958, and estimated 30,000 jobs were unfilled in Pennsylvania because there wasn't anyone qualified to fill them. He knew that unemployed persons can be retrained to accept employment because Pennsylvania is already doing so under Section 2508.3 of the Pennsylvania school laws, but less than 1,000 persons were trained for employment under this provision in 1958.

To understand more completely why we must do a better job in training for employment, one need only look at the changing employment picture. In 1900, unskilled labor represented 20% of the work force; by 1950 this had declined to 8.5%. By 1975, unskilled labor will represent less than 1 out of every 20 workers. All the labor force projections point to this one inescapable fact: there will be a growing demand, even a shortage of skilled technicians, craftsmen, operatives and clerical and sales personnel.

Within Pennsylvania, a shifting economy is increasing the demand for certain occupations, wiping it out in others. Within the past eight years, employment has increased in non-manufacturing industries, in wholesale and retail trade, in finance and insurance and in service and miscellaneous occupations. It has decreased in mining and quarrying, transportation and public utilities and in all manufacturing industries. A good training program will enable us to keep flexible and adjust to these shifts with a minimum of hardship.

Governor J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware hit the nail on the head recently when he referred in a recent speech to the urgent need for a national effort to retrain "technically handicapped" persons—those who are out of work because of technological change—or automation.

As urgent as the need is for retraining of "technically handicapped" persons, there is also the need to see to it that young people have an opportunity through apprenticeship or other training, to acquire skills and experiences which will enable them to fit in to our economy. But the number of people undergoing apprenticeship training in Pennsylvania today is getting smaller, not larger.

Industrial developers in Pennsylvania have found that prospective new industry is keenly interested on local programs of training for employment. Mr. Ruth in Altoona points out that the fear of losses involved in training a new work force is the greatest obstacle confronting a manufacturer who would like to relocate in Pennsylvania. Mr. Maguire in Pottsville reports that the existence of a first-class training program would be bound to help them in their efforts to attract new industry.

The Need to Do Something

The call to "do something" about the need for an expansion of apprenticeship and training programs has come from many quarters—from management, from labor, from the ten coal miners who came out of the hills near Altoona to petition the Superintendent of Schools to teach them welding, from older workers laid off in the knitting mills in Reading, from minority group members who need skills to profit fully from fair employment practices.

One of the first things done was the preparation of a report entitled, "Training for Employment." This report was written by Kenneth Carl, Director, Williamsport Technical Institute. This report details our resources for training and indicates exactly what kinds of training are most needed. It calls for immediate expansion of programs of training for employment throughout Pennsylvania.

Next, a Governor's Conference on Employment Skills was arranged in Harrisburg. Management and labor worked together on the conference which was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Manufacturers, The State Chamber of Commerce, the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, the Pennsylvania Industrial Union Council, the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, the Department of Public Instruction, the Department of Labor and Industry, Pennsylvania State University, and the United States Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training.

The response to the conference was enthusiastic. Speaker after speaker got up and called upon the State to take more leadership in seeing to it that we have adequate programs of apprenticeship and training.

What H. 777 Does

House Bill 777, the Apprenticeship and Training Act, was carefully amended in the House Labor Committee to help the State take proper leadership in this area. It takes the present labor-management Apprenticeship Council—which has no specific legislative authorization and whose members are not compensated—and it gives a broadened name, broadened functions, status, an executive secretary and authority to pay members a small compensation.

Under the bill, the council becomes the Apprenticeship and Training Council, with the responsibility for stimulating a wide variety of programs of training for employment at the community level. The council will not only continue to oversee apprenticeship agreements, but it can aggressively go out and promote the establishment of more apprenticeship programs as well as other programs of training for employment; it can convene meetings in communities and bring interested groups together; it can undertake necessary studies; it must report once a year on the status of training programs within the State.

In short, H. 777 provides a means for mobilizing the resources of the State to provide more and better apprenticeship and training programs so that:

1. No unemployed person need be denied the opportunity to make himself employable by getting new skills;
2. No employed person need be denied the opportunity to enhance his security by keeping his skills up-to-date and advancing in his job;
3. No business need be denied the opportunity to expand because a trained work force was not available;
4. No business need hesitate to locate in Pennsylvania because of a lack of training facilities.

H. 777 is concerned only with the mobilization of training opportunities and facilities. While the training of Older Workers would be made more possible than ever before, the Council proposed by this Bill would not be concerned with the problems which are the responsibility of either the Fair Employment Practices Commission or the Advisory Board on Problems of Older Workers. While members of minority groups would enjoy greater opportunity for training as a result of the proposed activities, the Council itself would in no manner or form be concerned with those problems which at present are the responsibility of the Fair Employment Practices Commission. By the same token while women would enjoy greater opportunity for job training the Council would likewise not concern itself with the problems which are presently the responsibility of the Bureau of Women and Children.

In a word, H. 777 is concerned with training of all workers so that their skills can be up-dated to meet the needs of changing technology in Pennsylvania's vast and varied business and industrial community.

Cooperation with Other Programs

Of course, H. 777 cannot do all this by itself. Many other agencies come into the picture. There is first of all, the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction and local public educational systems. Most of the actual training will be done in this manner. There is the U.S. Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, which maintains a large field staff in Pennsylvania. Much assistance can be received from this agency in stimulating communities to step up programs of training for employment. There is the Pennsylvania Bureau of Employment Security, which provides vocational guidance for many young people as well as for older unemployed persons.

The Bureau of Employment Security and the Department of Public Instruction will have membership on the Apprenticeship and Training Council, and cooperation with these agencies, as well as with the U.S. Bureau, is specifically mandated in the Bill.

Thus, the Apprenticeship and Training Council, will not, under the provisions of the proposed Act be another competing operating body, but rather it will be a mobilizing agency. It will keep constantly up-to-date on the status of programs and keep pushing and stimulating and encouraging the operating agencies to get the best possible job done.

A Great Opportunity

The Pennsylvania Legislature has a magnificent opportunity, by enacting this legislation, to give a powerful impetus to a program that has potentially unlimited significance for Pennsylvanians. If we can ever get our training programs in Pennsylvania to do the job that is needed—and there is no question that we have the ability to do so—we can give this Commonwealth a foundation for economic prosperity that will be the most solid base we have ever had; for unlike our previous reliance on natural resources which have been depleted or on industries which have faded, we will be placing our faith and our future in our human resources—the people of Pennsylvania. There is no better place to put that faith, and, at the moment, there is no better way for the Legislature to express that faith than by passing House Bill 777, the Apprenticeship and Training Act.

STATEMENT BY MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, for some reason today there has been continuous delay on various roll calls, and at the hour of 7:15 we have not acted on very many bills to this point.

An agreement made is an agreement kept as far as I am concerned, and I will abide by those wishes today that we adjourn the House.

Under the existing situation, with the number of bills coming out of committee tomorrow upon this calendar, and the backlog of bills existing, tomorrow will be a day in which there very likely will be a break to have dinner and then come back to this House and proceed right on into the evening.

Mr. Speaker, if the commitment had not been made for tonight, I would now request a recess and come back here tonight at 9:00 o'clock and work right on to midnight.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. PETROSKY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, just briefly, I believe we are not the only deliberative body that operates handy to the scene here in Harrisburg. There are some in the National scene and in other states.

I believe both caucuses of this House have selected good, and able leaders to conduct the business of this House. I further believe the membership of the House wants an expeditious and an efficient operation in this House. I believe, too, that in setting ground rules for this type of operation the leadership on both sides of the House can and will get together on ground rules, and from now on out I believe we can have such an expeditious and efficient operation, without the demonstrations we have had today.

RESOLUTIONS

CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. STECKEL and Mrs. MARKLEY offered a resolution which was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, July 27, 1959.

August 2nd marks the beginning of the centennial celebration in the borough of Emmaus.

Just 100 years ago the community became a borough and their progress hasn't been slowed since. At the time of its becoming a borough the population was about 277 people yet today this proud little community which stands among the best in Lehigh County has an ever expanding population of about 10,000 people. The fact that more people are moving into the community every day is evidence that Emmaus is the kind of a town that people like to call home.

Actually Emmaus is much older than 100 years. Documents show that in the 1730's the area was quite thickly settled and in 1742 a loghouse for worship was erected in the borough. The people who populated the area devoted themselves to God and by 1758 they had established a closed congregational village. In the beginning nobody but a member of the Moravian Church could lease a lot on which to build a house, but as time marched on and the young people married outside the church the town became open and a new era was born.

The middle and late 1800's brought the industrial revolution to Emmaus. Iron ore was discovered in the area and not long afterward the railroad was brought in to carry out the ore. With the advent of the railroad Emmaus was soon known as a manufacturing and textile center. Today the community can be proud to say that they have helped in our rocket and missile age for it is in Emmaus that the Air Products Company which manufacture missile fuel has one of its main plants and the home office of this company is located nearby. As one looks back he can see this gigantic transition from the age of iron ore to the age of missiles, yet this town was able to take it in stride because of the foresight of its public spirited citizens.

We the members of the House of Representatives take off our hats to the community of Emmaus because we are proud of the work you have done in the past 100 years; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives extend its heartiest congratulations to the borough of Emmaus in Lehigh County upon the advent of their centennial celebration; and be it further

Resolved, That we wish them the best of luck for the next hundred years and we only hope that they will be as successful in developing their community during that time as they were during the past decade; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Theodore Iobst, the Burgess of Emmaus and to the Emmaus Centennial Committee.

AMERICAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION IN USSR

Messrs. SELTZER, McCANN, A. W. JOHNSON and Mrs. KOOKER offered a resolution which was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, July 27, 1959.

Beginning on July 25th and concluding on September 4th, the American National Exhibition will be held in Moscow, USSR, the purpose of which is "to strengthen the foundations of world peace by increasing understanding in the Soviet Union of the American people, the land in which they live, and the broad range of American life, including American science, technology and culture."

President Eisenhower has said of the exhibition "it is my fervent wish that by this means, and through the corresponding exhibition which your country is holding in New York City, the people of our two great nations may gain a better understanding of one another. Thus can the foundations be strengthened for our cooperation in the achievement of mankind's greatest goal—a fruitful and flourishing world at peace."

A public spirited group of Pennsylvanians have organized a tour of Russia and other communist bloc countries. This tour will be conducted in connection with the American National Exhibition and is intended to contribute to the success of the exhibition. The group is made up of representatives of the various walks of Pennsylvania life and is expected to present a cross section of our people.

It is therefore most desirable that the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania be represented among the group. Mr. Orville Snare of this House has graciously consented to undertake the tour at his own expense and to act as our official representative; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby constitute and appoint Representative Orville E. Snare of Huntingdon County as the Official Representative of the House of Representatives at the American National Exhibition, and in all matters of contact with the people of the USSR and other countries, made in connection with the tour of the Pennsylvania group; and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be delivered to Representative Snare.

INTERROGATION

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the Majority Leader.

The SPEAKER. Will the Majority Leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I was not listening too closely when you made the announcement about a possible session tomorrow evening.

You realize that on Wednesday, of course, is the funeral. A number of people want to go to Pittsburgh, and that would mean a lot of them want to check out of the hotels. Are you in earnest about being here tomorrow night?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I realize what I am faced with in this situation. If the House will agree to come here tomorrow afternoon and work through until 6:00 or 7:00 o'clock, which would be six or seven straight hours on the floor, the answer would be "No."

I realize the Allegheny County delegation, both Democratic and Republican, must leave this House to go to Pittsburgh for the funeral, which is Wednesday, and they intend to get there Tuesday night.

For example today, Mr. Johnson, and I am not saying they were dilatory tactics, but there was continuous harassment as to the roll calls. As nearly as we can tell, this delayed the operation of this House one hour today. There are over 100 bills backlogged right now. The Committees meet tomorrow, and there will be a great many bills come out of Committees. We know we cannot be in session here on Wednesday; we do not expect to be, with one of our Members having passed away and the funeral scheduled for that date. But I do believe if we do not do that this week, that beginning Monday we probably should work until the hour of, say, 7:00, if that be the case, or 6:30, and then take a break of two and a half hours and come back here.

For example, tonight it would be very easy to work two or three more hours on this calendar, which would do a great deal to a series of bills we have agreed to.

I realize, on the statement I made, that the Allegheny County delegation cannot be here, Democratic and Republican, and I hope that in respect to Mr. Haudenshield we can work until no later, say, than 7:00 o'clock, and they can move right out and go to Pittsburgh.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I would say this, that perhaps for the balance of the Session we should probably start an hour earlier on Mondays. That would expedite matters.

I believe because of the confusion now over the roll calls it would be wise for the Majority Leader, the Minority Leader and the respective Whips to sit down with the Chief Clerk and the House Secretary and try to iron this matter out. I think it is that important, and maybe we can come to a common understanding that will be mutually agreeable to everybody. I am just throwing that out as a suggestion.

I also want to say that personally I am unalterably opposed to any evening sessions. I do not think they accomplish anything; and it is not for the best interests of this General Assembly to hold night sessions. I would rather get around earlier in the day than to be here at night.

I am pleased to hear you say you are not really going to ask us to stay here tomorrow night. Let us get around here on the job and work hard tomorrow and try to get as much work done as possible.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, it is very nice to make those statements, but there is absolutely nothing wrong with any of the roll calls, nor has there been at any time in this Session. If there is nothing wrong with the roll calls as they have proceeded to this point, I again ask what is it you want to do to any roll call. We find absolutely nothing wrong, and I believe that you, too, have agreed there has been nothing wrong with any roll call.

There have been one or two references to the Legislative Journal record as to those who have indicated an error that has occurred, but I believe the same number of errors have occurred in prior Sessions, and I think those are only human errors. If someone is insinuating that there is something wrong with the roll call, as I have said to you privately, I do not intend to steal a single bill because I can wait until I have the votes to pass it. Therefore I am not going to try to attempt that at any time.

An far as a conference about that particular operation of this House is concerned, I find it to be operating very well, and up until this point there has never been any objection. If there is anything wrong, I think the debate today would have indicated clearly what was wrong.

I say again that tomorrow will be a heavy working day here, a day in which I hope we can devote between six and seven hours. I realize we cannot work tomorrow night on account of the funeral and the Allegheny County Members, and I do not believe we should.

I do believe there is merit to the suggestion that the following week to try to change the hours so we can move continually on up to 8:00 and 9:00 o'clock, and so we can get done on the bills that have backlogged on the calendar. I believe we want to get it done. We know we must.

The SPEAKER. The Chair has searched the statutes diligently and finds nothing in the law or to Constitution against a four-day week.

What is the disposition of the Floor Leaders with respect to the balance of the calendar?

BILLS PASSED OVER

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I suggest that all the bills beginning with House Bill 846, on Page 11, to the end of the calendar be passed over.

The SPEAKER. There being no objection, all of the bills upon the calendar which have not been acted upon today will be passed over in order.

SENATE

TUESDAY, July 28, 1959.

The Senate met at 12:00 o'clock, m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor John Morgan Davis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. R. H. REID, JR., Pastor of Payne Chapel, African Methodist Episcopal Church, Duquesne, offered the following prayer:

All dominion, majesty and glory belongeth unto God. Before Him now, we come to pray.

God of yesterday, God of today, God of tomorrow and God of eternity, look favorably upon this group. Forgive us of our transgressions of yesterday, and may we be inspired to live above the intended transgressions of today. As we are thus able to grow, we shall see, also, the State blossom into a better society.

May our dedication inspire in others higher attainment to the laws of the Commonwealth and of God. Bless us with strength equal to the tasks that await our attention. May right be never compromised for personal gains. May we think in terms of being agents, first for God, after which we can then be true agents for the people who chose us.

May we approach our work as if we had only this day in which to accomplish it. May we complete our work as if we ourselves would be bound by it forever. May our efforts prove a blessing for the dependent ones of our society, both the competent and incompetent. May their future be more than their present because we, the Members of this Assembly, have willed it so. In the wisdom and strength and love of God, by the grace of Jesus, may this be done. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. STIEFEL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, there is no doubt that in the entire Union, there is no State which has a more glorious history than Pennsylvania. Unfortunately, we are not living up to Pennsylvania's heritage and sometimes we are neglecting many important events in the history of Pennsylvania.

We are just about four years, less one month, from the centennial of the Battle of Gettysburg. I maintain that Pennsylvania, at the time of the Civil War, was the arsenal of the Union and contributed immeasurably to the victory of the North.

To commemorate the centennial of the Battle of Gettysburg, it would be only proper to have a series of publications, citing the role of Pennsylvania during the Civil War.

For this reason, Mr. President, I am about to introduce this bill, on behalf of Senator Shafer and myself.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION CONGRATULATING THE JOHN CONRAD WEISER FAMILY

Messrs. ELLIOTT, FLACK, WOLFE and RUTH offered the following resolution (Serial No. 115), which was read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, July 28, 1959.

June 25, 1960, will mark a high spot in the life and times of the John Conrad Weiser Family with the celebration of the 250th Anniversary of the arrival of the John Conrad Weiser Family at New York and the 200th Anniversary of the death of Conrad Weiser.

Born on November 2, 1696, in Wurttemberg, Germany, Conrad Weiser emigrated aboard the ship "Lyon" on June 13, 1710, to New York where the family settled at a camp along the Hudson River not far from the present Hyde Park. It is from this colony, sent to extract tar from pine trees for the British Navy, that Conrad Weiser laid the foundation of his multi-colored career for when the camp broke up in 1712, Conrad was invited by a friendly Indian chief to spend the winter with him. Thus began his role as Indian ambassador and interpreter.

In 1729 Conrad Weiser moved to Pennsylvania where he built a one-room stone house at the foot of Eagle Peak in the Tulpehocken Valley. It was at this modest home that he entertained his friends, among whom were some of Europe's most distinguished citizens, nearby colonists and hundreds of native Indians, and it was from this now famous spot that he built his famous reputation as farmer, businessman, financier, church and school organizer, and outstanding religious layman. Here, too, he served for nineteen years as a Judge of which eight were spent as the first President Judge of Berks County. Although a pacifist, he volunteered as a soldier during the Indian Wars but, from 1731 until his death, formed the link between Pennsylvania's Indians and the government. It was this cornerstone of friendship and understanding that helped maintain the friendship of the Six Nations and helped turn the tide from French to English dominance on the North American continent; therefore be it

RESOLVED (the House of Representatives concurring), That the General Assembly commemorate the activities of a great fellow citizen, Conrad Weiser, and congratulate the John Conrad Weiser Family for continuing the ideals which he upheld and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the John Conrad Weiser Family Association, Box 121, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, for presentation at the observance of the twin-anniversaries of the family on June 25, 1960 at Weiser Park, Womelsdorf, Pennsylvania.

NAYS—1

Mahady,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments in which concurrence of the House is requested.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 277, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10 1949 (P L 30) entitled "Public School Code of 1949" increasing compensation and mileage rates for attendance at conventions for the election of county superintendents

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, one of the things which troubles me about this bill—and I do not have enough information nor have I heard from anyone in regard thereto—is that it raises the amount of money that school directors would receive on a trip to a convention from $8 to $12. It also raises the amount they would receive in travel from six cents a mile to seven cents a mile.

I am troubled by the fact that I am not so sure whether the people who are going to have to pay this can afford this increase. It is a fifty per cent increase in the amount which they are going to receive per diem. I am concerned about whether the people can afford to pay this or not. I do not want to be in the position of enacting legislation for some community that does not want or cannot afford the legislation which is being saddled on them by the Legislature.

If someone can answer this question for me, I would appreciate hearing from them.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I am informed that this is consistent with the amount which is paid for attendance at other conventions and, presumably, as this will only happen once in four years, the raise in compensation would be consistent with the present day expense.

Mr. WEINER. I want to thank the gentleman for the information, Mr. President.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—2

Lane,

Mahady,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 321, Printers No. 346, on third reading, go over in its order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I have no objection to this bill going over in its order, but I just want to point out to the gentleman that this bill has been with us a long time. I think that the Register of Wills of Philadelphia might be able to use some money, just like the people in the fourth through the eighth class counties, whom we took care of in previous weeks. I would just like to bring this to the Senate's attention and hope that the Register of Wills will not have to apply to the Department of Public Assistance where we will have to get some money for him anyway.

Therefore, Mr. President, I hope this will become the order of business next week, sometime.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I am sure the latter statement is correct, but I am also quite certain that the Register of Wills is not going to lose anything by our putting this bill over in order today or even another week or more. We do not intend to do that, but he certainly cannot receive this money if we pass this bill, until Philadelphia gets a new Register of Wills.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, we will arrange that latter part for him, as soon as we get him some money.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There being no objection, the bill will go over in its order.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 323, Printer's No. 505, on third reading, go over in its order.

There have been amendments prepared, but they are somewhat faulty. However, they will be here on Monday or else we will pass the bill without the amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 828, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 17, 1913 (P. L. 507) entitled "Intangible Personal Property Tax Law" providing that the tax shall not apply to property held in certain trusts established by individuals for retirement purposes.

The first section was read,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, we have discussed Senate Bill No. 828, Senate Bill No. 829 and Senate Bill No. 830 previously. The remarks I am going to make in regard to Senate Bill No. 828 are appropos to the other two bills. These three bills are predicted on the passage of a Congressional Act, known as the Smith-Keogh Act. I would like to bring to the attention of the Senate that this bill passed the House by a voice vote. There was a hearing held on it in the Senate of the United States, and the subcommittee was of the conclusion that this was a controversial matter.

This matter deals with the problem of a man who is individually employed being allowed to set aside some personal thing to provide for himself, much the same as the welfare pension funds provide for the man in a union, which is a good idea and, I think, has some merit.

The only other problem that is involved here is a local problem. These bills would remove from the local government the right to collect whatever millage or tax they receive on this intangible personal property, which makes up the basis in the Philadelphia area for school district collections.

I do not know that we are making any provision for this amount of personal property being taken out of circulation. It is much the same as delimiting what the taxing authority may tax. If building X, Y or Z cannot be taxed because it is being used for another purpose, the revenue or income is thereby cut down. Unless you provide some kind of a substitute to make up this revenue, even though the purpose is a laudable one, I think it is much more important that we educate our children or provide a means for taking care of the young people of this Commonwealth, rather than being concerned about a person's declining years because he may or may not have this if Congress does not see fit to pass this Act or if they see fit to pass it, the President may decide to veto it.

Therefore, I respectfully suggest that we put these bills on the Postponed Calendar until such time as Congress acts. I am under the impression—and if I am misinformed, I am sure someone here will correct me—that we are going to be here another week or so, and we can find out what Congress will do in this regard and we can take the appropriate action at that time.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, what the Senator said is entirely correct as far as these bills depending upon the passage of the Smith-Keogh Bill in Congress. However, I see no reason why we should not put these bills up, at least to Third Reading, and if we want to hold them there for a couple of days to see whether Congress is going to act, that will be all right.

However, it has been pointed out to me that Congress is in practically continuous Session, whereas we are here only once every two years under the present Constitution, which may be changed. Therefore, it might be well for us to pass these bills in the event that Congress will act upon them favorably at its next meeting.

I am only suggesting now that we pass them on second reading and we can discuss them later, which will be on Monday.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, might I suggest that if we are going to take up this entire problem, that perhaps the problem we should concern ourselves with and address ourselves to, at this time, is where we are going to make up this added revenue which is going to be lost by the passage of this type of legislation. It is my desire to put these bills on the Postponed Calendar so that we can explore these areas and come up with some answers. Perhaps there are not any answers. I, at least, would like to have the benefit of that type of advice before I would vote on these bills, either pro or con.

The PRESIDENT. Are you moving that these bills be placed on the Postponed Calendar, Senator?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, if there is some objection to their being placed on the Postponed Calendar, rather than prolong this debate, I will ask that they go over in order.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, we are ready to move these bills up to Third Reading. As I said to Senator Weiner, we will have an opportunity for the balance of this week, and certainly one or two days next week, at the least, to obtain further information and to discuss them. However, at the present time, I believe the bills should be moved up and I object to their going over in order.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I want to call to your attention the fact that we have gone a little too fast here today. Not only are Senate Bills Nos. 828, 829 and 830 premature, but also Senate Bill No. 814. As I understood it, the agreement was that Senate Bill No. 814 was to be taken from the Postponed Calendar for Second Reading only, and that it would be placed back on the Postponed Calendar.

Mr. BERGER. I recall no such commitment, Mr. President.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, at least I draw attention to the fact that the Senator should consider such a commitment that was made to me in relation to placing it on the Third Reading Postponed Calendar.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would just like to mention one other thing. As I said, I do not want to prolong this debate.

I think in the 1951 Session of the Legislature, we found ourselves in a similar position on the county health unit, whereby the Federal Government was supposed to return to the State, for the county units which so desired it in the States which had set up the program, $1.50 per citizen for those States which adopted this type of legislation. Pennsylvania went ahead with that in mind and adopted this program and, unfortunately, Congress never saw fit to pass that Act.

We now find ourselves in the position where we are supporting this type of legislation and will have to provide money in every Session of the Legislature, without any help from Congress. I do not think we should put ourselves in that position. Congress will probably adjourn sometime in August. I presume, unless the gentleman on the other side can advise me of a better date, that we will be here in August, also. Therefore, I think we might have some of the benefit of the advice of Congress when we do anything of this nature, before we put ourselves into the position of enacting legislation which we will have to enforce.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, fortunately a very limited number of counties have availed themselves of the County Health Act so that they might also be considered a little shortsighted, even though the Legislature might have been somewhat hasty in passing the legislation. In fact, I think they were quite hasty in passing it.

However, in regard to these particular bills, Mr. President, as I stated before, the purpose of them, as Senator Weiner said, is laudable and they are intended to assist people in setting up some kind of a security program for themselves at the same rate as provided for persons who are employed and for whom these trusts are set up, and they are tax-exempt.

For our present purposes, Mr. President, I reiterate, we can pass these bills up to Third Reading now and we will have time to further consider them at the end of the week and the beginning of next week.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section and title were read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 829, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 23, 1949 (P. L. 1676) entitled as amended "An Act to provide revenue in school districts of the first class by imposing a tax upon certain classes of personal property * * *" providing that the tax shall not apply to property held in certain trusts established by individuals for retirement purposes.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 830, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 20, 1947 (P. L. 733) entitled as amended "An act to provide revenue in school districts of the first class A by imposing a temporary tax upon certain classes of personal property * * *" providing that the tax shall not apply to property held in certain trusts established by individuals for certain purposes.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 835, Printer's No. 970, on second reading, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

REQUEST THAT BILLS GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following bills, on second reading, go over in their order:

Senate Bill No. 879, Printer's No. 1034;

Senate Bill No. 880, Printer's No. 1035; and

Senate Bill No. 881, Printer's No. 1036.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, these bills read very plainly and they do exactly what they say. They provide for some increased payments to beneficiaries under certain retirement funds. I think they, too, should be moved up to Third Reading and if there is debate to be had upon them, we can take that up on Monday.

I will object to their going over in order.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, there is a bill on the Postponed Calendar, which has been languishing there for sometime, and which we had asked to be recommitted to committee sometime ago. It is Senate Bill No. 764, Printer's No. 872. I do not think that anyone sitting in this room or anyone who has read these bills is so naive that they do not realize that they have great political implication and that the communities being affected thereby have had no voice in this legislation. I think these communities should have the opportunity, at least, to have our counsel and perhaps there are some amendments necessary to these bills.

If there is great haste necessary or someone is being injured, and we must move hastily on these matters, I would like to be so advised. If such haste is not necessary, I am sure the sponsors of these bills on the other side of the aisle, or one or them, at least, will not object to the bills lingering one more day.

The PRESIDENT. Are you calling up these bills, Senator?

Mr. WEINER. No sir, I have asked that they go over in order. That was my request. I believe the Majority Leader's statement, if I understand correctly, was that he objected to the bills going over in order. My statement is that I do not think this matter is of great importance unless someone is being injured thereby, and I am sure all of us would want to act on this immediately if someone were being injured.

The PRESIDENT. There has been objection to the bills going over in order.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, in order to clarify the situation, the Minority Leader has stated there might be some amendments which should be put in the bills, which might be desired, and I reiterate what I have always said. We will not object to the offering of amendment on Third Reading. When these bills appear on Third Reading and they desire to amend them, we will have no objection whatever to the offering of amendments. I do not want to be misunderstood, however. We might not approve them.

The PRESIDENT. You do reiterate your objection to having Senate Bill Nos. 879, 880, and 881 go over in their order?

Mr. BERGER. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. WEINER. I do not have the votes, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. There being objection, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of these bills.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 1224, Printer's No. 385, on second reading, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to point out to the gentlemen that this bill has been with us a long time and if there is objection to it, I would like to find out what it is. Perhaps we can clear it up or perhaps we cannot clear it up.

This bill regards the sale of some ground at Woodville. I did not notice any votes objecting to this bill when it passed the House. If there is some defect in the bill or it needs some amending, I think we should do that. It has been with us quite a while.

The PRESIDENT. Are you willing that the bill go over in order?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I am only in the position of an observer. I do not have the votes to either object or to make a motion.

The PRESIDENT. There being no objection, the bill will go over in its order.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following bills, on second reading, go over in their order:

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, last week, when we were nearing adjournment, I believe the gentleman from Cumberland. Senator Wade, advised the Members of the Senate, in a speech that he made, that he did not feel that the Administration nor the Governor were interested in the use of radar. I do not believe I am misquoting Senator Wade, because I have a copy of his remarks here and I believe that is what he stated.

Mr. President, I would like to advise Senator Wade that this bill passed the House by a vote of 133 to 62. In a newspaper article—I am reading from the Philadelphia Bulletin, which nearly everybody in Philadelphia reads—It states as follows:

“Senator George N. Wade, Republican and chairman of the Senate highways committee to which the bill will probably be sent, is regarded as the leading opponent of radar in the Legislature.”

I do not know whether Senator saw fit to make this statement to the newspaper or whether this was a statement merely on behalf of the newspaper, itself, based on the remarks which he has made here from time to time.

I am under the impression—and I am sure that if it is a misimpression, you will correct me—that the bill was sent to the State Government Committee. However, as an expert in highway matters, and having been Chairman of the Committee on Highways, I am sure that you will have some say in this matter. I do not wish to interrogate you, Senator, as to your thoughts on this matter, but I am wondering, in view of the fact that the House saw fit to pass it by an overwhelming majority and a good many of the persons who voted for it were not all members of the same political persuasion, because the number of Democrats in the House is about 108, whether your feeling in this matter now has somewhat changed and I am wondering whether you feel as intent upon not to pass the radar bill, as you seemed to indicate.

I would also like to point out, and I believe you stated this, that you felt that radar was a means of annoying people and also did not cut down the death rate. I did not gather from your remarks of last week—unless I may have missed it—that you could show if they did not have radar in any of the States, that their death toll or fatalities would not be higher than you indicated.

I would also like to point out that part of our problem in this Commonwealth, as members of the State Government, is not to arrest persons or people whom we feel are violating the law. However, I believe our purpose is to arrest the bloodshed which is taking place everyday on our highways.

I would like to know from you whether you feel that the Members of this Body should have some expert advice and whether we should get people who display some expertise in this area to come before us, either as the Highways Committee or this Senate as a group, so that we may have the benefit of this type of counsel before we take any action in this direction.

I did, however, gather from some of the remarks you made last week that you felt radar would only help to increase the number of fatalities that we have had. I would also like to point out to you that we received, just very recently, a plaque in regard to safe driving, and that we are number one in the Country, according to the National Safety Council's Achievement Award, for the ninth year as the safe driver State. We have a very enviable record. My own opinion is that we could make it even more enviable if we instituted radar, as some of the areas have found it to be very profitable and very helpful.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, may I submit to you, and to the Members of the Senate, that the gentleman's statement was somewhat like a personal conversation? He directed questions to me instead of addressing the Senate?

I want to renew my statements of my admiration of his ability and of him, as a person. However, I would suggest to him that he is badly confused in some of these things. He is extremely confused. As a matter of fact, if I wanted to be facetious, I would suggest to Congressman Green, from Philadelphia, that he appoint me as the gentleman's advisor; not as his legal advisor, but as his advisor. Yesterday, in a rather confused statement on Senate Bill No. 872, he made statements which were quite misleading and he voted badly. Had Congressman Green appointed me as his advisor, I would have advised him to vote for Senate Bill No. 872 because both he and Senator Mahady, at that time, were confused in their statements.

Senate Bill No. 872 merely permits trustees for a pension or welfare plan to pass over to a corporate trustee the custody of certain securities that they must hold under the National laws for safekeeping.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WADE. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I tried to follow the gentleman's remarks and I do not want to appear rude by interrupting him, but I think he is talking about Senate Bill No. 872. Unless the History of the Senate is in error, this bill is not even out of committee.

Mr. WADE. My apologies, Mr. President.

Mr. WEINER. This bill deals with the mercantile tax and school districts of the first class cities. I do not know whether I even voted on that bill. I hope I was here yesterday in order to have had an opportunity to vote on it.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I apologize to the gentleman. I am talking about Senate Bill No. 473. It might be, before I am finished, that we will get around to Senate Bill No. 273, or whatever number we were using before.

The PRESIDENT. It is a difference of roughly 199 bills.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, if I may continue under Personal Privilege, I want to say to the gentleman that he, there, voted against a group of people who want to be frugal and to lay aside something for a rainy day. However, he said, in substance, to the people of Philadelphia whom he represents, and to the people of the Commonwealth, “You should not have the privilege of putting this in safekeeping.” That is his own matter and—

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not want to interrupt the gentleman, but I think that we should get the record straight in order for me to follow this debate.

I did not vote against Senate Bill No. 472 nor Senate Bill No. 473.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I think the record will show that he voted against Senate Bill No. 473. At least, I have that record, so far as I am concerned. If he did not vote against it—

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to indicate to the gentleman that I voted in favor of Senate Bill No. 472 and Senate Bill No. 473. The record will so show. If we would like to clarify this matter, I think we should ask the Clerk who took the roll call.

Mr. WADE. If the record so states, Mr. President, I apologize to the gentleman and we will go to another matter.

Now that he has brought up the matter of highway safety, I would suggest to the gentleman that he, in this Body, yesterday, voted for a suggestion to the State Police to increase the speed limit within the tunnel—I am speaking about the tunnel on the Turnpike—On Sunday evening, which is the most dangerous time of the entire week. That was a resolution which was placed before us yesterday. It passed with the unanimous vote of this Body.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Weiner, is there some comment that you wish to make at this time?

Mr. WEINER. No; I think it was unanimous. However, the gentleman is stating then that he also voted for it.

Mr. WADE. I am not talking about how I voted. I am talking about how he voted. He is the one who opened the discussion and purports to be for so much highway safety.

Let me say further, Mr. President, that the gentleman's remarks, regarding Pennsylvania's highway safety, are a matter of record. Let me say, too, that if "Rip Van" Shipley were fully aware of the situation as it now exists, he would perhaps have a copy of the Annual Inventory of Traffic Safety Activities for 1958, which was published last week, in which it states, in part, as follows:

"The 1958 death rate per 100,000,000 vehicle miles of travel in Pennsylvania was 4.3. The average rate for the preceding three years was 4.8. The attached table shows deaths and death rates for each of the last four years. The National average for 1958 was 5.6. The lowest rate in this group of States was 4.3."

The lowest average of the group at that rate was Pennsylvania. This group of States includes California, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, New York, Ohio and Texas.

I submit to you, Mr. President, that our rating, as the gentleman said previously, is the highest in the Union. Some statements have been made on the floor of this Senate, stating that Pennsylvania is one of the very few States which does not legalize radar. I submit to you that our record is at the top of the list, despite the fact that we do not legalize radar.

Then, may I again refer, Mr. President, to a copy of News Week, of March 16, 1959, in which it points out that this same National Safety Council shows that speed is not the factor in accidents. It shows it very clearly in a detailed statement. Further, if I may, I shall point to today's Philadelphia Inquirer, dated July 28, 1959, in which it states:

"Auto Death Rate Cut in Half on U. S. Turnpikes."

The article is dated, "Chicago, July 27," and reads, in part, as follows:

"The Nation's turnpikes achieved a shining record in safety last year. Despite the relatively high speeds permitted on such expressways, they were nearly twice as safe as other roads and highways."

I discontinue quoting, and remind the gentleman that these are America's fastest highways.

Again, from the same article, I read as follows:

"Deaths on the turnpikes averaged 1.3 for each 100 million passenger miles, compared with 2.3 on other highways and roads.

"Allowing for fatalities to passengers other than the driver, that means the average turnpike motorist could expect to cover about 50 million miles before becoming involved in an accident in which someone was killed."

All this is evidence which would be very easily obtainable by the gentleman or by our Highway Safety Director. I think it is incumbent upon him, instead of supplying these half-truths to my colleague, whose duty it is to defend him in the Senate, that he submit the information which is available and place in his hands the marvelous record of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the great safety record of which we are all so proud.

The statement which the Governor made last week to the Chiefs of Police is juvenile, in a way. He is like a president of an insurance company who expects to run an insurance company without any losses whatever.

I hope we can cut it down. I have worked for years with it and it is not a new proposition. I have enjoyed Membership in this Senate for years and have worked for safety. I commend the Governor, Senator Weiner and all those who work toward safety. However, I say to them, at the same time, that they should give due and proper credit to the great army of drivers that we have in Pennsylvania, who drive so safely and who use our highways so well. They are to be commended, rather than to be constantly harassed and constantly have the finger of scorn pointed at them. They deserve our credit, our commendation and best wishes.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, we have gone from banking to the mercantile tax and we finally got to radar.

I would like to point out to the gentleman from Cumberland that he could not possibly get Congressman Green to appoint him as my counsel, because I think the gentleman from Lebanon has already usurped that privilege as of yesterday. I would suggest to the gentleman from Cumberland that he not give away his secrets or else the gentleman from Lebanon is going to leap in and grab them at any chance he can get.

I would like to point out one other misstatement which was made and, I am sure, unintentionally. The resolution that we had introduced yesterday was merely for the State Police to study this problem. Senator, unless I misunderstood you, a unanimous vote, I always thought, included everyone who was present. When I looked over yesterday, you were present when this resolution was read and I think you also voted for it. That does not give people license to go ahead and do this thing. It was merely a resolution of this Body, asking that this matter be looked into by the State Police and we agreed they should look into it. Unless you feel that we made an error, I think perhaps a resolution on your part, nullifying this, might be in order. Of course, you would have to consult your other counsel from Lebanon and have him advise you on this matter. I would not want you to act without advice of counsel.

I would like to ask you something else, Senator, in a more serious vein. Are you happy with the death toll in this State and would you like to leave it the way it is? Do you not think that it is part of our duty to address ourselves to that problem and see if we can cut down this death toll? If anything, regardless of what it is, will save even one life in this State, I think it is our duty to look into it and to take a very mature view, and a cold sober look at this problem to see if actually something can be done.

In my remarks to you originally, I invited you to bring these alleged experts, and persons with some experience in these different problems, before us and let us have the benefit of their counsel and their advice. I think for you or anyone else to take the position that we do not need this, and it is a bad thing to have or even to experiment with, is an error because if there is anything that we can do that is within our power to save a life, I think it is incumbent upon us to do it.

As to your remarks about the Governor, I believe he is unlike an insurance company because most of them do not want to recognize a loss. When I am at home and have an opportunity to try a negligence case, I always find insurance companies go out of their way to hire high-priced counsel, who always say that they did not lose anything and there was nothing to this matter and they are going to do everything they can, and if they can get twelve men to agree with them, they are not going to pay the claim, whereas, the Governor is willing to recognize that there are losses. What he is saying is, "What can we do to cut down these losses? What can we do to save even a single life among the citizens of our State?"

I think it ill behooves us to jest about this matter, because the people who are losing their lives are only causing us further problems because their families that are left as public charges become our problem in looking after them and providing money to keep them and their families and other persons who are dependent on the wage earner who might be killed or might have lost his like in any of these fatalities.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, the gentleman asked rather direct questions in a matter that I do not think is in accordance with our rules. However, I am pleased to tell him that my stand on highway safety, before this Body, began when he was a boy of about seven or eight, or perhaps nine or ten years old—since the year of 1931. With all of the people in official positions in Pennsylvania working, they have been able to bring down the record, as he could very easily ascertain if he wished to do so, from 18.3 when the first records were maintained in 1929 until today when we enjoy, according to this National Safety Councils report which has just been published, a rating of 4.3. That is a tremendous accomplishment, and it stands as a record; a commendable record on behalf of all of the Members of the Legislature over these years and, particularly, those in administration who have worked so hard to bring it down. Certainly we should all join hands.

I say to the Senator, personally,—even though it is not my privilege, as I understand the rules of this Body, to address him personally—that I will continue to do that. I will continue to fight for the things which I believe bring more safety to our highways in Pennsylvania. It is a most commendable project and one in which we should all join hands, and we have joined hands. We have great accomplishments to point to because of the highway safety efforts of those in years gone by.

We will never reach the millennium. No one can expect to do that. As long as we have almost 70,000,000 moving buses, automobiles and trucks on the road, there are going to be some accidents and some fatalities. Our great effort is to bring that number down to the lowest possible point, and it is a fact that we enjoy today great safety on our highways. Ten thousand people were killed on the farms of America last year. As long as we enjoy this fine record whereby we can ride in an automobile in Pennsylvania and in many other States as safely as we can spend the time in our homes, it is a most commendable achievement.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, the reason I did not ask the gentleman these questions directly, which I could have done, is, as I stated earlier, because if he did not want to answer them, he did not have to or if he wanted to reserve his answer until a later date, that would have been perfectly all right with me.

There is only one thing I want to ask him and if he does not want to answer this question now, he does not have to do so. If radar will save a single life and will bring down the 4.3 that Senator Wade seems so happy with to 3.3, does the Senator feel that we are justified in having radar in this State?

The PRESIDENT. Senator Wade, would you like to answer that last question?

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, very briefly, may I say that our record—I repeat, our record in Pennsylvania—is lower than the States that have adopted radar. Virginia, as I said on the floor last week, for some unknown reason, the year after they adopted radar, their fatality rate went up almost one full point. There is no evidence anywhere in the United States of America or in any State that radar brings down the fatality rate by even a single tenth of a point. There is absolutely no evidence.

I defy the gentleman to submit to this Senate any evidence where the fatality rate dropped beyond that of bordering States or other States that did not have radar. I also defy Mr. Shipley to furnish that information. Two years ago he sat along the sidelines of our Senate, and waited and hoped in the last few days that we would call a quick meeting and without study and consideration bring out the radar bill, and there is proper evidence on our record that he was selling radar but a very short time before then. There is no evidence to show that the adoption of radar—

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT. Senator Weiner, Senator Wade is not finished. Will you wait just a minute?

Mr. WEINER. I am calling a point of order, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. I would think that the point of order is not well taken, in the middle of the gentleman's remarks. I would prefer if you would wait.

Mr. WADE. Thank you very much, Mr. President.

I have practically completed my statement. I again defy the gentleman to furnish this Body with any evidence whatever that the adoption of radar or the legalization of radar would help our safety record.

The PRESIDENT. Thank you, Senator Wade.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, what Senator Wade has just engaged in is what is known to lawyers as a very irresistible impulse. I thought he was going to get through with his remarks without mentioning Mr. Shipley, but he just could not make it.

I would like to suggest to Senator Wade, while we are talking about percentages here, that we interpret them in terms of numbers. There were 1,654 persons killed on our highways in 1958 and 86,000 people injured. If Senator Wade can tell me that radar would not have saved a single life or would not have prevented an injury to one of the 86,000 people injured so that the victim may not have been maimed and unable to work for the rest of his life, I would be very happy to agree with the Senator's remarks. To just talk about this in a void, without any kind of statistics to back you up or without any kind of expert advice, I think, is a mistake and we would be erring on the side of injured people.

At the time I raised the point of order, this was because there has been no evidence that Mr. Shipley has done anything for which we can condemn him here. I think it is wrong for us to use the privilege of this floor to hurt anyone or take up personalities. That has been done on other occasions I suggest to Senator Wade that if he has some problem with Mr. Shipley, that he invite him to one of his committee meetings and take it up with him at that time. Perhaps all of us should be present when he is given this opportunity. Perhaps this will end the problem of Mr. Shipley for all time in this Session.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, I am only rising to object to my being shifted around from one Senator to another Senator. After all, I am pretty high-priced legal talent and they can shift me as much as they want as long as they pay. It is about time Senator Wade and Senator Weiner get out the green stuff.

The PRESIDENT. I am sure the Senator would not be adverse to accepting a few extra clients.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I would be remiss if I left the record go uncorrected. The fact that we voted and talked on Senate Bill No. 472 and Senate Bill No. 473—

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mahady, are you bringing up an additional subject?

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, it was one of the many and multiple subjects brought up by Senator Wade.

The PRESIDENT. Now, if you are going to speak on another subject, then I shall have to recognize Senator Fleming, unless he wishes to yield to you.

Mr. MAHADY. I think, Mr. President, that I am speaking on the first subject that Senator Wade talked about and, as a point of Personal Privilege, I think I should be able to straighten the record because he misrepresented what we stood for yesterday.

The PRESIDENT. Will you yield, Senator Fleming?

Mr. FLEMING. I yield, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mahady, you have the floor.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, the statement made was that we objected to the money of poor people being invested by the banks. We did not object to the bankers being the custodians of the funds, but we objected to them co-mingling the various funds in their hands, particularly since they were invested in stocks where the record of ownership was only in the brokers' office and by a mere bookkeeping entry, they could trade from one to the other.

We pointed out that this was prohibited when the stench from the closed banks in the early Thirties showed that mortgages, of which there is a more permanent record, were switched, one from the other. We were trying to protect the people whom he said we refused to protect. We were not trying to protect the bankers. We were trying to protect the ordinary individual, the man on the street, if you want to put it that way, and I think the record should so show.

The PRESIDENT. Are we still on the same subject?

Mr. McMENAMIN. Mr. President, in this welter of irrelevancies, my distinguished colleague from Philadelphia stated certain conclusions concerning insurance companies, with which I am in total disagreement.

The PRESIDENT. Thank you. I feel relieved.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, still replying to the remarks of Senator Wade, the Senator gave a glowing account of the constant progress of the Commonwealth in matters of highway safety and, particularly, within recent years during the tenure of Mr. Shipley. I do not know whether he intended this as a compliment to Mr. Shipley's work, but on behalf of Mr. Shipley, I wish to thank the Senator for that compliment, whether he intended it or not.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT. Will Senator Wade yield?

Mr. WADE. I would be very glad, indeed, to yield to Senator DiSilvestro.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Wade has graciously yielded to you, Senator DiSilvestro.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I do not like to hammer Mr. Shipley. However, Senator Wade had the opportunity, but he used technicalities at the meeting. I exposed this man's hypertension and everything else, which a man in his position should lack, because he would come to a better conclusion if he could decide cases this way and that way.

I do not know why Senator Wade is kicking. He had the greatest chance of his life about two weeks ago.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I think this matter has been fully explored and exploited. However, I certainly would be unfair if I were to discredit Mr. Shipley entirely. Certainly, he has had his part in the entire picture and he deserves some credit. I do not believe that he is the best possible man for the job, but I have nobody else to suggest.

The PRESIDENT. I suppose you will admit that it is an unenviable job.

Now, I think it is probably safe for me to recognize Senator Fleming. Or, are you yielding again, Senator Fleming?

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I would like to talk for a very brief moment and I, particularly, would like to have the Minority Leader, who is the Administration's spokesman, listen to what I have to say.

I have heard several other Members of the Senate complain about this same thing. I had it occur to me in the last couple of days. I had occasion to ask a department head for certain information which was submitted to me. However, before I received a letter in reply, a copy of the letter to me was released to the newspapers, probably in an overzealousness to have the department's viewpoint before the people. I certainly feel, Mr. President, that any Member of the Senate of Pennsylvania or any Member of the House of Representatives in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has a right, if they have directed an inquiry to any department head, to have the courtesy extended to that Member of having the letter reach him first, before a copy of that letter is released to the press or for public information.

In my particular instance, Mr. President, I was writing on behalf of the Republican Caucus to this department head. I was astounded last evening when I found that copies of that letter had been distributed to outsiders before the letter was delivered to me.

My request to Senator Weiner would be to take this matter up with the Administration, because I am sure that the Governor would not approve of this. I think if it were brought to his attention and a word of caution given to the department heads, they, in all fairness, would see that the Member of either the House or the Senate, who has directed an inquiry to any department head, receives that answer, at least prior to the time that the answer from the department is released in some form of a press release.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to say to the gentleman that his point is well taken and I happen to agree with him. I know the person about whom he is speaking and, in order to protect the guilty, we will not mention any names. However, I will take the matter up with that party, as well as with some of the other department heads. I will also look into this problem with some of the persons who happen to make up the Governor's official family, in order to see that this does not occur again.

I think unless a matter is a matter of public controversy, where there are letters released to the newspapers and where the battle lines are drawn in the newspapers, I believe this matter should be private, unless one of the parties thereto makes it an unprivate matter.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, speaking on this highway safety problem, I have talked with quite a number of the Members of the House and Senate in regard to this particular phase. I feel that, psychologically, it would be a wonderful thing if the Pennsylvania State Police had each and every one of their vehicles painted white, with large signs, signifying that they are State Policemen.

It seems to me that when traveling on the highways of Pennsylvania,—and, incidentally, I now drive about 500 miles per week—if the Highway Patrolmen were out on the roads in white cars and easily distinguishable, the people of Pennsylvania would know just what is going on. I believe it would be a deterrent to fast driving.

I agree with everything that has been said here. I think this thing, as far as radar is concerned, probably might work out. I do not know. I have to be convinced. However, let us use what we now have. Let us have the State Police cars painted white.

I know, for a fact, that when I go through a town and I see a local policeman with a white car, I always check my speedometer to make sure that I am not exceeding the speed limit. I have noticed, too, when driving out of the Commonwealth, where these cars are plainly marked, that the people slow up. I believe that is the thing which we are trying to accomplish. I am proud of our highway safety record. I think this bill regarding radar is superfluous at this particular time. Let us use what we have today.

If it is agreeable with the Membership, I would like to see someone draw up a resolution, requesting that the State Police have their cars painted white. In that way, I believe it would slow up the traffic in Pennsylvania.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, may I say to you, and to the Members of this Body, that I wholeheartedly agree with Senator Lane? I will be glad to have the bill drawn and I will co-sponsor it with Senator Lane. Let me also inform the Body that there is such a bill, sponsored by Representative Gramlich, of Venango County, in the House. Apparently, it has not moved from committee.

PRAYER

Reverend Roland W. Renkel, guest Chaplain and Pastor of the First Evangelical Lutheran Church of Chambersburg, guest of the gentleman from Franklin, Mr. Horst, offered the following prayer:

O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth. Thy way is the way of holiness and righteousness. Thou hast crowned man with glory and honor and made him a steward of all Thy creation. The soul of man is Thy candle and his purpose is to glorify his Maker.

Stop us, O God, for a moment of communion with Thee. Preside over this Assembly. Help us to live up to the nobility of our creation. Enlighten, sustain and guide us to walk in the counsel of the godly and righteous, and to sit or deliberate with men of honest and good report. Lead us to delight in Thy law and to pursue a sincere study of it as we consider and legislate the laws of the Commonwealth.

Give us courage to work for the right and to oppose the wrong; to legislate laws beneficial to the many and not to the favor-seeking few; to be honest, honorable and holy in all our dealings; to prefer the crown of righteousness from Thy hands to the earthly crowns of position, power and kingdoms.

Purify our hearts of all selfish interests, our minds of evil thoughts, and our souls of earthly claims. Grant that the righteousness of this Assembly may exalt our Great Commonwealth.

In Jesus' name we ask it. Amen.

The cost of Blue Cross Insurance has risen twenty-eight percent in the last six months and the number of days covered by the insurance has been cut from one hundred twenty to seventy-five.

This matter is of grave concern to residents of Pennsylvania, since it not only raises insurance costs but gives less insurance protection in the vitally important area of hospitalization; therefore be it

Resolved (the Senate concurring), That the Joint State Government Commission be directed to study and investigate the costs of Blue Cross Hospitalization Insurance and the length of time for which protection is given by such insurance; and be it further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission report to the next regular session of the General Assembly its findings and recommendations, with drafts of legislation necessary to carry the recommendations into effect.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

VISITORS WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair has been informed that there is present in the Hall of the House, Mr. Phan of Vietnam, Indo China. He has received his Ph.D. degree in economics and political science from the Paris School of Political Science. He is the guest of the gentleman from York, Mr. H. H. Perry.

VISITOR WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. And since we are noting the presence of guests, the Chair incidentally notes the presence in the Hall of the House of his favorite niece, Mrs. Joseph Bailey, her husband and her interesting brood.

FORMER MEMBER WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. We note the presence in the Hall of the House of a very dear friend, a former Member of this House, a very astute parliamentarian and Legislator he was, none other than Wilbur Hamilton from Philadelphia.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Mr. McCANN asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order Senate Bill No. 405 on page 3 of today's calendar, bills on second reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 405, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872) entitled "The Penal Code" prohibiting certain business activities on Sunday.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

MOTION TO POSTPONE

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I move that we pass over consideration of this bill.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. GELFAND. I have very, very cogent reasons for making this request and they are as follows:

When we had planned this special order of business last week, we had presupposed that we would have a three-day session this week and, inasmuch as we had presupposed a three-day session, we were prepared to spend long hours here for full consideration of many, many pieces of legislation which are on the third reading calendar.

The SPEAKER. The bill has been called up and the Chair is of the opinion that the motion should be to place it on the second reading postponed calendar.

Mr. GELFAND. I was trying to get the attention of the Chair before the bill was called up, but due to the noise in the House I was unable to do so.

Mr. McCANN. If the gentleman is making a motion to place Senate Bill 405 on the second reading postponed calendar, I rise to oppose the motion.

The SPEAKER. That was simply a suggestion from the Chair. The Chair referred to the gentleman from Philadelphia and the Majority Leader. The Chair will entertain any motion.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I will make such a motion to place this bill, Senate Bill 405, on the second reading postponed calendar.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. McCANN. On Senate Bill 405, the scheduled date for the amendments had been designated and agreed to without, of course, any knowledge of the situation which has occurred in the passing of one of our Members of this House.

Mr. Speaker, by postponing it, it is just another day in which the amendments be debated and, for that reason, since the date had been agreed to, I rise to oppose the motion to place the bill on the postponed calendar, and I ask that the Members support this position, and that we debate the amendments today.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, when we had agreed to this special order of business last week we did not foresee the circumstances which occurred this week and which would make it impossible for us to have a full day on Wednesday.

Although the bill should be debated at length and given ample consideration, the time is not now because we have a calendar, a third reading calendar, which consists of 156 third reading bills which are of great importance to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. If this Session of the Legislature was about to adjourn sine die I can see about the immediacy of debating the legislation before us, but inasmuch as it is highly probable that we will be here at least another month, I can see no need for the immediacy, especially in view of the fact that we now have a third reading calendar which consists of 156 bills.

We all know from the discussion that has gone on in our caucuses that there are a great many amendments to be presented to this bill, which are going to be debated at length and which will take up the whole afternoon.

I can see no reason why, for the sake of one piece of legislation, we should forego consideration of an amply full calendar which has legislation of great importance to this Commonwealth.

For those reasons and because we will have ample time to consider this bill in full, I think we should place this bill on the second reading postponed calendar and go on to other more important business.

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this motion.

Senate Bill 405 has been on the calendar for many, many weeks. It has been slated as a special order of business on several occasions and continued. Most everybody in this House, particularly in the caucus, has thoroughly considered the possibility of amendment. Majority Leader and the Minority Leader of this House have gotten together and set aside this particular time for consideration of these amendments. It is true that we have a heavy calendar but this is an important piece of legislation to all the citizens of the Commonwealth. The time has been earmarked for it and I can see no valid reason whatsoever presented by the gentleman from Philadelphia for the motion which he has presented to the House. I ask everybody to defeat this motion.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I am fully apprized that we had set this up as a special order of business, but last week when we did set this up as a special order of business, I feel the whole House planned to attend the complete Session consisting of three days, and we expected to spend three full days in consideration of legislation which was important to this Commonwealth.

Due to the unfortunate circumstance of Representative Haudenschild's death, we are forced to dispense with tomorrow's Session. Inasmuch as it is important to the Commonwealth and to the legislation which we must consider for the benefit of our constituents and in view of the fact that we are not going to be here for a full day tomorrow to consider other worthy legislation, I can see no reason why we should spend one entire afternoon considering one single piece of legislation for the second reading calendar when we have a complete, full third reading calendar consisting of 156 important bills, at least.

For that reason I think it behooves all of us to vote in favor of the motion to put this on the second reading postponed calendar and consider it fully next week on Monday or Tuesday and vote either for or against it on Wednesday. I cannot see why we should in haste just dispense with an entire calendar for the sake of handling one piece of legislation. For that reason I think it is important for us to place this bill on the second reading postponed calendar, and I call for a slow roll call.

Mr. McKEEVER. Mr. Speaker, this bill will not require the entire afternoon if no amendments are offered to water down and nullify the bill.

I heartily agree with my leader, Mr. McCann. Roll the bill today.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

So the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

Mr. FINEMAN. I believe Mr. Polaski was on his feet requesting recognition, and the Speaker did not recognize him.

The SPEAKER. No one addressed the Chair asking for recognition, and the gentleman from Philadelphia will note that after having said "The first section will be read," and "Will the House agree to the section?" there was a very noticeable pause.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I was under the impression that Mr. Polaski was standing in front of his desk asking recognition of the Chair, and therefore I did not ask recognition. You can verify it by questioning the gentleman from Erie.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will confess that he was looking in the direction of the gentleman from Philadelphia, and was not looking in the direction of the gentleman from Erie, who could only have attracted the Chair's attention by addressing the Chair.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. Polaski offered the following amendment:

Amend Enacting Clause, page 1, second line of Enacting Clause by striking out "by."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, line 2, by striking out "housewares."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would request the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Helm, and the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti, to come to the rostrum as the Chair's advisors and assistants.

Undoubtedly a great many amendments will be offered and we want to be sure there are no conflicting amendments adopted, and so we are asking these two gentlemen as technicians to advise the Chair and see that we make no mistakes, and finally emerge with a bill that is coherent.

Mr. POLASKI. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of my amendments is to eliminate from the ban on Sunday selling the general merchandise category called "housewares."

If we were to run the gamut of all the merchandise produced in our Pennsylvania factories, I do not think there is a single category of merchandise which would be as all-inclusive and include so many thousands—in fact, hundreds of thousands—of items as the category of "housewares" which we are striving here to amend out of the bill.

Housewares can include a general category commonly referred in the grocery trade as grocers' sundries. Many of these items are sold not only by grocers, small grocers on a Sunday, but are also sold on Sunday by small neighborhood confectionery stores.

Included in this general category are many Sunday picnic items, such as picnic plates, paper plates, paper cups and paper napkins, sold by the corner drug store. This general category includes everything from can openers, potato peelers, measuring cups and measuring spoons to bread boxes and clothes hampers.

Mr. Speaker, in introducing this amendment it was not my idea nor my intent that these small neighborhood stores, namely grocery, confectionery and drug stores, should sell any of the larger items covered in this general category of housewares.

In striving to prepare an amendment which would be fair and which would attempt to exclude the larger items in this category, I found it very difficult to write any fair and equitable amendment. If we attempt to take out of this category and ban for sale on Sunday the larger housewares on the dollar basis, we would not know where to begin or where to end. If we were to try to prepare amendments to subdivide the various categories on housewares on a yardstick basis, again we would not know where to begin nor where to end.

I was thinking for a time of introducing an amendment providing for the permission of sale on Sunday of small housewares, and excluding from this bill large housewares. But, it is difficult again to determine what you would call a small houseware and a large houseware. Yet, hundreds of thousands of small neighborhood merchants in the three categories which I here mentioned today, namely grocery, confectionery and drug store, sell many of these small items on a Sunday.

I have been told that I need not worry about my enforcement officer walking into a neighborhood store and examining whether any of these three small merchants are offering for sale any of the small items which I have quoted in the category of housewares. But we are banning the entire line of housewares in this bill, and any competitor can send an enforcement officer on a Sunday to another small grocery store, confectionery store or drug store and have him investigate the sale, or the offering for sale, of any one of a hundred thousand of these small items.

The small neighborhood store in America is going out of business. It is just a question of time. To my way of thinking, I would like to know just how much we should do in this House of Representatives to accelerate the process. These small merchants whom I have mentioned have begun opening on Sundays after the terrific multiplication of super markets and plazas. They are opening on a Sunday not because they like to open on a Sunday, but because they are trying to come up in the black at the end of the year. I feel if this general category of housewares is included in the bill, the only recourse for these small stores is to either go out of business or to place a blanket over any of these items which they find on their shelves.

I maintain that these small merchants already are having terrific difficulty in making out income tax returns, sales tax returns and excise tax returns. In fact you have to be a Harvard graduate today to carry on a small grocery, confectionery or drug store business just in the neighborhood. Why saddle the small merchants with these further stumbling blocks to his doing business?

I am well aware of the intent of this bill. I am conscious of the type of operation that is intended to be eliminated by this bill. I would like to sound a word of warning: Let us try honestly and sincerely to eliminate the type of operation which this bill is intended to eliminate. But let us not, in the process, remove the final vestige of private enterprise on the neighborhood corner.

Mr. Speaker, I ask for a slow roll call.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the amendments of the gentleman from Erie, Mr. Polaski, at this time, and I do so not in the belief that this bill we have here on the calendar is something sacrosanct or something that is perfect.

We realize that a lot of hard work went into the classification of items spelled out in Senate Bill 405. There probably is some merit to these amendments which would include and exclude various items or various wares.

As I said, the amendment, although it has the best intention of the sponsor, will serve to cut up this bill and to put it into such state that everybody will want to come in and amend it. It seems to me if we can pass this bill in its present form, we can at a later date amend the bill, after we hear the presentation of evidence that would militate against the enforcement of the particular item or items enumerated in this bill.

With respect to the small businessmen, we certainly have had a lot of communications from them, the small merchants. It appears to me, looking at this as factually as possible, the small merchants are overwhelmingly in favor of the bill as it now appears on the calendar. We have had a petition sent to us from the small merchants of Philadelphia, and I believe over 1,000 small merchants and businessmen have subscribed to this bill as it presently appears on the calendar.

With respect to discrimination in this bill, I say that discrimination is the essence of classification, and it is for the Legislature to decide which items should be included and which should not be included, so long as the inclusions and exclusions are reasonably based upon facts. There has been nothing to indicate that the bill as presently drafted violates the wishes and desires of the overwhelming majority of the merchants, the labor unions and the people in this Commonwealth.

Therefore, I ask that we vote against this amendment. I ask for a division, Mr. Speaker, to save the time of the House.

Mr. McKEEVER. Mr. Speaker, if we took out of the bill the words "household articles," the drug stores in Philadelphia would close. You have to fight your way to the drug department by going through parakeets, hardware store articles, monkey wrenches, and so forth.

I have in my hand a list of 1200 persons appealing to us to relieve them of the responsibility, to give them one day off per week.

Please vote these amendments down.

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, I shall be very brief. I rise in opposition to the amendments offered by the gentleman from Erie.

I think the gentleman has effectively defeated his own amendments when he specifies the entire width and breadth of the articles of housewares, so many of them there are. So many of our stores, not just the small stores, but the merchandise marts and the merchantile establishments, deal in housewares.

Housewares is a term in itself. The definition is so broad that it is all-inclusive. As a consequence, therefore, to delete from this bill the word "housewares" is to nullify the effect of the bill. Certainly you would have practically all our merchandise marts and mercantile establishments open in order to sell housewares.

If you sell housewares only, then indeed you face the proposition of enforcement. You would need to have people there practically constantly in order to determine whether or not they are selling housewares or selling something else.

Furthermore, he pleads, the gentleman from Erie, for the small merchant. Those gentlemen have spoken relative to the requests by the small merchant not only in Philadelphia but also throughout the Commonwealth for the passage of Senate Bill 405. I should like to substantiate the claims of the particular small merchants from the city of Philadelphia, and call attention to the fact that of the 1200 there is a certification by the research group, Research, Incorporated, that every name on that list has been signed by those who are so certified and it is a bona fide list.

It seems to me that to delete the word "housewares" from Senate Bill 405 will do nothing more than defeat the full intent and purpose of this bill, and I ask the Members of the House to vote these amendments down.

Mr. POLASKI. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Bedford that by my arguing against housewares being in the bill, I am defeating my own purpose, the discount and the large Sunday operations are already going to be out of business by the other items which you have included in this bill.

You are including furniture, all household items which are electrified, tires, paint. You are already including every conceivable profitable category which would make it reasonable for them to operate on a Sunday. You are only leaving out housewares, and I am sure no discount house is going to open on Sunday simply to operate on large housewares.

In answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia concerning another matter, concerning all the retailers in this state, they having spoken in favor of this bill. I am in possession of a letter signed by Mr. Al Vicks, secretary of the Home Owner Food Stores in Pennsylvania, 25,000 strong, that they want this housewares amendment in the bill, want this exclusion in the bill to protect the small grocers.

Mr. Speaker, I again maintain and I again plead with this House. You can be charged $100 for selling a can opener on Sunday in a corner store. This is a serious matter, and I am again repeating my request for a slow roll call.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I want to make a brief reply to a comment that was made by an earlier speaker concerning reasonable classification.

It was his thinking that this bill does set up a basis of reasonable classification. I wonder by what stretch of the imagination the exclusion of novelties and souvenirs in this bill can be labeled a reasonable classification. What is so holy about a novelty as distinguished from a toy that makes it merit the place of exception that it has in this bill? This bill will yield the incongruous result of permitting a druggist, as an example, to sell to me on a Sunday a pair of dark sun glasses, but if I were to purchase from that druggist, that same druggist, a clock that sat on his counter he would be subjecting himself to a $100 fine.

What is so reasonable about a classification that distinguishes between a toy and a novelty. What is a toy, and what is a novelty? Does the merchant have to be a soothsayer, some kind of sage to be able to tell the Legislature what the Legislature itself doesn't know, which toys he can sell because they are toys and what he cannot sell because they are novelties. By no stretch of the imagination can the classification in this bill be termed a reasonable classification.

I ask the Members of the House to support these amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Blair,	McInroy,	Schuster,	Varallo,
Cooper,	Mihm,	Stevens,	Varner,

Farabaugh,	O'Donnell, J. P.	Thompson,

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, we have been at this now for about an hour and a half, I think, and I know roughly ten or twelve amendments to be offered, none of which infringe on the other. They are all separate and distinct. They do various things as far as 405 is concerned. Some of them are restrictive amendments to make this bill much more logical than it is now. Some of them are a similar type of amendment that we just consider deleting certain other items from this Senate Bill 405.

I think and I am naive enough to feel that amendments that are offered in good faith should be given mature consideration. I don't believe that a number of amendments such as I am speaking of at the moment can be adequately considered on the floor of this House. I do not think that time allots itself properly and it is for that reason and further reason, the question of constitution-ality of this particular bill, which I intend to raise a little later, if necessary, also the question of the infringement of this bill upon society in Pennsylvania. I therefore, believe that this should be recommitted to a standing committee of the House where it can receive bi-partisan consideration maturely of each and every amendment to be offered here.

I do not think there is any haste as far as this bill is concerned and I think that any number of committees could receive this bill and give it such consideration—the Judiciary Committee, the State Government Committee, Law and Order.

I, therefore, move at this time, in order to save the time of the House that the bill be recommitted to the Committee on Law and Order. I ask for a slow roll call on the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, a motion to recommit the bill has already been made and defeated. It is not in order for this House to again move to recommit the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I am sorry. I misunderstood the gentleman. I understood it was to recommit and place it on the postponed calendar. There has already been a motion to place it on the postponed calendar and, therefore, the point of order I submit is out of order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair reminds the gentleman from Philadelphia that there is a difference between a motion to place on the postponed calendar and a motion to recommit. No motion to recommit has been brought before the House.

The Chair, therefore, cannot agree with the gentleman from Philadelphia and the motion to recommit if made and properly seconded is in order.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, the reasons assigned by the distinguished gentleman from Philadelphia to recommit Senate Bill No. 405 should be considered very carefully by each of us.

In the first place he gave his reasons that there are numerous amendments which will be placed before the House this afternoon, and he further states that those amendments cannot receive careful consideration by the House as it is presently constituted in session.

I take issue with that position. There is no better place to consider the amendments to this bill than by the entire group that sits here in session to determine in debate the validity and the worthwhileness of those amendments as they effect Senate Bill 405.

He further says that he intends to raise questions later on if we continue in session considering Senate Bill 405 and do not recommit. The questions that he raised and which he may raise relative to the constitutionality are important and certainly should be considered by the entire House and not just by a Committee.

I, therefore, oppose the motion to recommit. We are in session designated to consider the amendments. Those amendments should be considered at this time and as many as possibly can, in their conscience to vote against this design to destroy Senate Bill 405.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, the previous speaker was going along pretty well until he hit the end of his peroration and said something about a design to kill Senate Bill 405.

I want to state that I do not care to what committee the bill is sent. I am really sincere in my opinion that ten or twelve amendments of the kind that are to be offered should be received and considered by a committee. In fact, I may move here a little later that we resolve ourselves into a Committee of the Whole for that purpose.

I say that I do not want to kill Senate Bill 405. I am perfectly satisfied to state here that whatever such a committee would do with these amendments with the question of constitutionality will be perfectly satisfactory to me.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the motion.

The true working arm of both Houses of this General Assembly are its committees. All of the groundwork and all the laborious detail is done at committee level and not on the floor of the House. It is the function of our committee to carefully review the bills that have been referred to that committee for the purpose of determining whether or not they merit the consideration and attention of the entire House.

I do not think anyone can take issue with the fact that if this House were to abolish its committees and refer to the House as a whole all of these two thousand and some pieces of legislation that have been introduced in the House this Session, we would indeed never finish our work here in Harrisburg.

The Committee is the proper place to consider the dozen or fifteen or sixteen amendments that are proposed, each of which is going to require a slow roll call, and I rise in support of this motion.

Mr. McKEEVER. Mr. Speaker, I think this is a dilatory tactic utilized by the opposition. We have had many bills before just as important as this bill is without having to send it back to Committee.

As to the unconstitutionality, I believe that word was mentioned here by one of the previous speakers. I have not heard anyone get up and read any notification from the Attorney General's office that this legislation is unconstitutional. I have inquired diligently from those who have that knowledge and they stated it is not unconstitutional.

These gentlemen getting up opposing and trying to recommit, trying to place it back in Committee again, they are only stalling, because in this House today, as you must admit, you can hear a pin drop when the Speaker speaks. We will never have a better opportunity than we have at this moment. I oppose that motion.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I speak in favor of the motion.

I am not a believer in dilatory tactics and I will meet the issue head on. The reason I speak in favor of the motion is this: I believe that this particular bill, a bill of vast import and tremendous possibilities on the economic life of this Commonwealth, should have been referred to a bipartisan committee consisting of Republicans and Democrats. This bill was referred for some unknown reason to the Committee on Rules in the sound discretion of the proper party, but I believe it should have been examined by a committee of both Republicans and Democrats. I am in favor of the motion.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the Majority Leader. Would the Majority Leader yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Gelfand?

Mr. McCANN. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I rise also to speak in favor of the motion for recommitment of this bill.

As Representative Fineman has said before me, I reiterate his remarks. The standing committees of this House are well constructed to consider all types of legislation. That is why we have them. They have the flexibility of being able to appoint sub-committees to consider every ramification of every type of legislation that is introduced in the House.

We here today in the House have a multitude of amendments, every one of them of some import to the people who are presenting them. Each of these amendments could modify this bill, change the bill, either make it better or worse, and each one of them requires careful consideration.

I, too, attended the hearing of the Rules Committee when they heard people present their views with regard to this legislation. There was quite a considerable number of people at the hearing and there were many, many different views presented. As a matter of fact we had many, many people representing each source of our economics and industry in the Commonwealth. We had labor unions who presented viewpoints to that committee, on each side of the bill; some said the bill was bad for them; some of them said the bill was good for them. We had religious groups who attended that hearing; some of them said the bill had no religious impact; some of them said the bill did have a religious impact. We had eminent attorneys attend that committee hearing, some of whom said the bill was unconstitutional, some of whom thought the bill was constitutional. In any event, we had an ample amount of remarks concerning the legislation. We had people who signed petitions and these petitions should have received full consideration.

At the same time that these committee hearings were held I received comments from people in my own community. I know other Members of the Legislature received comments from their part of the community in which people have requested that they present amendments to this type of legislation.

The amendments to this legislation, as I indicated before, would change its complete structure and they should receive full and complete consideration. I know that we are here today supposedly on a special order of business in which we were to give consideration to the amendments to the bill, but so far we have heard two or three amendments. Only one or two speakers have spoken on each side of the amendment, and the consideration that was given was rather hasty, I believe. I know that if we were to give full consideration to each one of the amendments that will be presented this afternoon, not only will we be here the rest of this evening, but we could go on until tomorrow or possibly next week.

For this reason I support the motion to recommit this bill, so that the proper committee can set up possibly a sub-committee to consider fully and possibly hold a public hearing, since every type of amendment has been presented here or will be presented, and then come back with a reconstructed bill which would satisfy the needs of our Commonwealth. Then we could be proud to pass legislation that would serve a real purpose.

The SPEAKER. For the purpose of the record, the Chair desires to clarify it.

The bill originally was referred to the Rules Committee. The Rules Committee reported the bill placing it in the custody of the House.

The House wisely or unwisely by action taken by the House recommitted it. The Rules Committee did not recommit it. This House recommitted the bill which was in its possession. It could have been sent to any Committee of this House by proper motion, but upon proper motion the bill was recommitted to the Rules Committee for the purpose of the hearing. The hearing was held all in conformity with the action taken by the House.

Now the bill is again in the custody of the House. It can be sent to any committee, but as far as the action of the Rules Committee was concerned, as to the hearing, as to the position of the bill in the second instance, we had it by reason of a vote taken in this House to which at the time there were no objections. Anyone who objected to the recommitment to the Rules Committee could have risen in his place and opposed the motion.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I would like briefly to state my objections to this motion.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Greene yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia? He had the Floor.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman. I was wondering if you missed me.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Greene yields to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, as a Philadelphia lawyer, I can certainly tell a dilatory motion, and I submit that this is certainly if not one, in the nature of one. I say that not without basis. This bill I believe was introduced in the Senate in March of this year—

The SPEAKER. Is the gentleman about to make a motion or raise a point of order?

Mr. McCORMACK. I am addressing myself to the motion, Mr. Speaker, that is now before this House.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. McCORMACK. The bill was passed on May 5 and referred by the Speaker to the Committee on Rules on May 11. Now if this is not a dilatory motion, Mr. Speaker, I would like to hear someone in this House get up and inform the House as to whether or not they had ever presented the amendments which are now being offered on the floor to the Rules Committee for the purpose of serious consideration at or before the time when the bill was reported out of that Committee.

There has been an abundance of opportunity to do so where the amendments which require serious consideration could have been submitted to that Committee, but I submit the desire was to wait until the bill came up on the calendar and to delay and delay and delay so that we could never—

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Erie rise?

Mr. POLASKI. To answer the gentleman, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia has the floor.

Mr. POLASKI. Mr. Speaker, I object to the use of the word "dilatory."

The SPEAKER. The Chair will say that the Chair is not yet prepared to rule upon any points of order raised directly or indirectly regarding dilatory motions, and the gentleman from Philadelphia by inference raises a point of order which the Chair does not at this time desire to entertain.

Mr. McCORMACK. I would like to give the Speaker some factual information upon which he might decide to invoke Rule 52.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would not consider the factual information pertinent at this time.

Mr. McCORMACK. Very well, then, Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I ask that when we vote on the motion we vote against it.

Mr. POLASKI. I would like to address a few remarks, Mr. Speaker, if I may.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order.

Mr. POLASKI. Mr. Speaker, I have submitted a letter to the Governor with my amendments four or five weeks ago and received a fine reply from the Governor with respect to my amendments. He did not necessarily agree with them, but I submitted copies of my amendments to the leadership five weeks ago. Therefore, these are not dilatory tactics.

Mr. WELSH. Mr. Speaker, I just want to say for the record that labor, all of labor, is for this bill right now.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I am certain that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, has a keen insight, but I think he must have been looking to the east and not to the west in connection with the various details in this bill.

I cannot pinpoint the gentleman with whom I discussed my amendments before the bill was discharged from Committee. But, my position upon this bill has been well known. It was expressed during a hearing on before Rules, to which I was invited as an observer and unconsciously became a participant. I have in my records right now one of my amendments which reads June 12, 1959, which was before the bill was reported from the Rules committee. These tactics are not dilatory. I have stated my position in the House at all times.

The SPEAKER. The dilatory matter is not before the House.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. It was raised by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

The SPEAKER. The Chair declined to recognize the issue, and the Chair would prefer that the question be not raised at this time.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Well, I will meet it by denying it.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I, of course, was glad to yield to any of the other Members. I just ask for a roll call and that we oppose the motion to recommit.

So the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. GALLAGHER offered the following amendments:

Amend Bill, page 2, by inserting between lines 15 and 16: "Section 2. Section 699.4, act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872), known as "The Penal Code," is repealed."

Amend Sec. 2, line 16, by striking out "2" and inserting: "3."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to discuss the amendments.

These amendments do not in any way harm Senate Bill 405, nor do they try to prevent anybody from voting for it. The amendments are designed to stop the unscrupulous tactics of a certain justice of the peace who unfortunately resides in my township, who not just recently but as far back as two or three years ago took advantage of section 699.4 and made himself a very nice fining mill.

In the township of Bristol in Bucks county there are located two farmers' markets to which this justice of the peace under the terms of section 699 went and issued conviction on view warrants, charging these people with worldly employment on Sundays. This year on Sunday, July 21st, 1959, the justice himself proceeded to these markets and proceeded to hand out these conviction notices to the people involved, this was before 405 was to be considered.

The district attorney in the county calls it a racket. I read in this morning's paper that the Attorney General is awaiting somebody's formal complaint to do something about these tactics.

If we pass 405 and leave this act 699.4 on the books we are going to subject the employes of steel mills, chemical plants, toll collectors on the turnpike, taxicab drivers and bus drivers to the whims and fancies of justices of the peace who want to make a fast buck. This fellow incidently made of $1400 this past Sunday.

Ladies and gentlemen of the House, without delaying this any further, I ask you seriously to consider this problem as one that must be done in arriving at a solution on 405. We cannot pass 405 and leave this on the books and leave the door wide open to continue fining mills. We have said here many, many times we are opposed to such fining mills in our state, as far as traffic violations are concerned. Well this is a similar situation in the state, but it is a lot looser where the J.P. himself can go out and hand out conviction on view notices without the benefit of an appeal by the people involved and they must pay the fine of $4 plus $9 costs.

Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentlemen of the House, I ask you to vote for these amendments and I ask for a slow roll call.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I had not originally intended to speak on this bill or the amendments to it today, but I rise to support Mr. Gallagher's amendments.

It seems to me that the great trouble with Senate Bill 405 is the fact that it simply adds one more very severe blue law to our existing blue laws. If I understand Mr. Gallagher's amendments correctly, they would not affect the substance of 405, but they would repeal our existing blue laws. That would take away the field day that the justice of the peace is now enjoying in Bucks county.

I might say that I have no objection to what the justice of the peace in Bucks county is doing, he is simply enforcing the laws that now exists, and I have frankly no fault to find with an officer of the law who tries to enforce the law. On the contrary, I rather condemn the attitude of the Attorney General who seems to feel that she should waive the power of the Commonwealth and the State Police in the direction of a small local official who is attempting to enforce the law as he sees it. I think the trouble is with the law and this bill that is now before us, Senate Bill 405, offers us a splendid opportunity to abolish the old law that dates from 1794, and to substitute something more modern, and I think that is the essence, the substance and the purport of Mr. Gallagher's amendments. Consequently, I would urge a vote in favor of those amendments.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognize the gentleman from Bucks, Mr. Gallagher.

Mr. GALLAGHER. I would like to withdraw my request for a slow roll call and ask for a division, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

A division was called for, fifty-six Members having voted in the affirmative and ninety-eight in the negative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

Mr. GALLAGHER. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my amendments to the title.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, at this time I would like to raise the question of the constitutionality of Senate Bill 405, as it presently appears before us on the calendar.

I believe the bill is unconstitutional. I am not a constitutional lawyer, but I have looked into this thing carefully and I want to bring to the attention of the House the fact that this bill deals only with retail selling. That is the only segment of our economy that it acts upon. The bill enumerates certain specific categories which cannot be sold on Sunday, and if they are sold—

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield? Is he raising a constitutional point of order.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Yes sir.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Schwartz raises the point of order, that Senate Bill 405, Printer's No. 670, is unconstitutional.

The Speaker, under Rule 4, is required to submit questions affecting the constitutionality of a bill to the House for decision, which the Chair now does, and recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Schwartz.

On the question,

Will the House sustain the constitutional point of order?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and may I say that you are conducting this House beautifully. You are eminently fair and I think we are getting along with this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I was at the point where I was going to bring to the attention of the House the fact that Senate Bill 405 lists certain specific categories which cannot be sold at retail, and if they are so sold at retail they are subject to a $100 fine, $200 for a second and subsequent offense, and imprisonment for the non-payment of the fine.

It then, therefore, eliminates from the bill various retail categories which I believe should have been included in this bill in order to make it constitutional. In other words, I do not think that this is a proper bill by specifically setting forth certain items and leaving out other items which fall into exactly the same category.

I will mention just a few of them that are not included in Senate Bill 405; Cosmetics, fire arms, sporting goods, farm equipment and implements, seed, feed, fertilizers, boats and marine engines, automobile accessories, fuel and lubricants contraceptives, real estate, cameras, projectors, photographic supplies, surgical instruments and supplies airplanes, mobile homes, trailers, books, newspapers, magazines, optical equipment, cigarette lighters, tobacco products, patent and proprietary medicines, and every conceivable item which by any stretch of the imagination could come under the heading of novelties and souvenirs.

So the first premise that I want to give to the House is that you do not have a reasonable classification here. The proponents of the bill, the sponsors of the bill, have taken certain itemized categories and these are the ones that they want prohibited from sale by this bill.

On the other hand, we come to the overall question of the constitutionality of the bill under the Constitution of the state of Pennsylvania and the Federal Constitution. I call to the attention of the House a decision on May 28, 1959, by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. If I remember my political science properly, there are only four Commonwealths in the United States, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts being two of those four Commonwealths.

The case in point, in Massachusetts, was the Crown Super Market Case, and in that case they were interpreting a statute very similar to our existing Blue Laws in Pennsylvania. It was so found by a three-man Federal Court, and by the way the Massachusetts statute goes back to 1694, I believe, even before the Constitution of the United States was framed and drafted. In this case the Federal three-man court found that the Massachusetts statute violates the equal protection of the laws of the Federal Constitution, Article 14. I say to you that Senate Bill 405 falls into exactly the same category as the Massachusetts case did. And, if, as and when this 405 becomes law and is challenged in the court, the Federal Court must come to exactly the same conclusion.

I do not like to raise the question of secular, religious or any other like issue here, but I think that is one basis upon which this bill before us may be unconstitutional, because it has the effect of legislating an economic issue under the guise of religion, being that this Senate Bill 405 applies to the stopping of sales on Sunday, the so-called Lord's Day.

Now certainly I do not consider myself to be irreligious, but I do not think that the Legislature should legislate on religious issues. In fact, if you check the United States Constitution very carefully you will find that there is an absolute prohibition against laws being passed as to religion. We all know the reasons our forefathers came to this country was because of religious persecution and prosecution in those old countries.

I, therefore, raise the question and I would like a decision by this House, and I will also take a division on this question rather than a long extended roll call, as to the constitutionality of this bill before us.

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, if I am in order I desire to debate this question of constitutionality. Am I in order?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order. That is the question before the House.

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, I should like to call the attention of the House to this question of constitutionality, relative particularly to the first matter raised by the gentleman from Philadelphia as to discrimination in classification.

This argument was recently rejected by the Supreme Court of Ohio in an opinion by Judge Zimmerman in State vs. Kidd, 150 N. E. 2nd p412, and I want to quote from that opinion on page 418. I quote as follows:

"Sunday observance laws are in force in most of the states and generally certain activities have been exempted from their coverage. These Sunday Laws are sustained, quite uniformly, upon the theory that the selection of subjects for exemption is peculiarly a matter of Legislative discretion. Fundamentally, discrimination is the very essence of classification and is not objectionable unless founded on distinctions which the Courts are compelled to pronounce unreasonable or purely fictitious."

Now, Mr. Speaker, if this House will be patient with me for a few minutes, I believe the matter of constitutionality is sufficiently important that we should go into it a little more deeply and a little more thoroughly. I therefore ask the attention of the House, and will be as brief as I can with this particularly important subject.

Because the gentleman from Philadelphia has placed so much emphasis on the constitutionality of Senate Bill 405, I want to try to establish to your satisfaction that this measure before us does not violate the Constitution of Pennsylvania or the Constitution of the United States. As the Legislative body of this Commonwealth we are always concerned whether or not, in our humble judgment, a bill violates the basic instrument which guarantees the right of each and every citizen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We cannot, of course, at any time with any degree of absolute certainty predict the decision of our Appellate Courts, on questions of constitutionality or, for that matter, on any question that may be at issue. But we can properly be guided by the decisions of our courts on similar laws heretofore promulgated by this General Assembly.

First, let us consider this bill under the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. All of the lawyers in this body know that our Pennsylvania courts have uniformly and consistently held for more than 133 years that the Act of 1794 and the Act of 1939, known as "Worldly Employment for Business on Sunday Laws," do not violate the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Perhaps the first case was Commonwealth vs. Wolfe, decided in 1818. The Landmark case, which has been cited by authorities time and time again by our lower courts and by our appellate courts, has never been contravened. That case is Commonwealth vs. Specht, 8 PA. 312, I believe it is, and was decided by our Pennsylvania Supreme Court in 1848.

The facts of that case concerned the performance of worldly employment by one Jacob Specht, who pled in his defense that he was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist Congregation, and observed the seventh day as his Holy Day. The Court very carefully reviewed the entire question of constitutionality under the Pennsylvania Constitution, and in a very lengthy and in a comprehensive opinion left no doubt whatsoever but that the Act of 1794 was constitutional and did not violate the provisions of Article I, Section 3 of the Pennsylvania Constitution.

I want to read that Article for your information, ladies and gentlemen, as follows:

"All men have a natural and indefeasible right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own conscience. No man can be compelled to attend, erect or support any place of worship or to maintain any ministry against his consent. No human authority can in any case whatever control or interfere with the rights of persons, and no preference shall be given by law to any religious establishment or modes of worship."

Now the Specht case was, of course, decided before the adoption of the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution. So it does no sway the act in the light of the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. It does, however, apply the third section of Article 1, which

I have just read to you, and all that it says concerning that section would apply with equal force to the First Amendment of the Federal constitution since the Federal amendment is not nearly as stringent as the corresponding provision in the Pennsylvania Constitution.

I should like to quote just briefly from that Specht opinion, as follows:

"Where a very large majority of people celebrate the first day of the week as their chosen period of rest from labor, it is not surprising that the certain day should receive legislative sanction."

Then the court further states:

"Yet this does not change the character of the enactment. It is still essentially but a civil regulation made for the government of man as a member of society, and obedience to it may properly be enforced by penal sanction. To say that one of the objects of the Legislature was to observe the sanctity of a particular day selected by the Legislature is to say nothing in proof of the unconstitutionality of the Act unless in this the religious conscience of others has been offended or their rights of worship have been invaded."

Judge Bell says as follows, and I think this is very important, if you will attend me, please:

"It intermeddles not with the natural and indefeasible right of all men to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own conscience. It compels none to attend, erect or support any place of worship or to maintain any ministry against his consent. It pretends not to control or to interfere with the right of persons, and establishes no preference for any religious establishments or modes of worship. It treats no religious doctrine as paramount in the state, it enforces no unwilling attendance upon celebration of Divine Worship; it says not to the Jew or the Sabbatarian, you shall desecrate the day you esteem as holy and keep sacred to religion that which we deem to be so. It enters upon no discussion of rival claims of the first and seventh days of the week, nor pretend to bind upon the conscience of any man any conclusion upon a subject which he must decide for himself."

The determination of this case in 1848 in this Commonwealth has been cited time and time again by our lower courts and appellate courts upholding the Act of 1939 and the Act of 1794. And therefore Senate Bill 405 comes under the same category and the same classification as being constitutional.

I should like to go further, Mr. Speaker, with your permission, and tell you that since the decision in the Specht case in 1848 there have been a series of cases to which I have alluded. I am not going into those cases. Most of the lawyers in this House are familiar with them, but according to Shepard's Annotations and according to Purdon's Statutes this bill which we have here today, as is the Act of 1939, effectively a reenactment of the Act of 1794.

And the recent cases in 1958 to which the gentleman from Philadelphia has alluded, I believe, Commonwealth versus Bauder and Commonwealth versus Mills in the courts of Lehigh County, have been held to be constitutional. Therefore the Act of '39 was held to be constitutional.

Judge Henninger went into a very documented and careful opinion, and most of you attorneys are familiar with that opinion. Those cases were appealed to the Superior Court of Pennsylvania and the Superior Court endorsed the constitutionality of the Act of 1939 on the opinion by the Lehigh County Court Judge, and there was an appeal taken to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania which affirmed the opinion of the Superior Court. As I understand it further, there was an appeal taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, and that appeal was withdrawn.

As a consequence, therefore, we have before the Federal Court of the United States the two Guys from the Harrison case presently before the Federal District Court in the Central District of Pennsylvania to decide the constitutionality of this case on the Federal basis.

So there is no basis whatsoever at the present time for anybody to maintain that the Act of 1939, and therefore Senate Bill 405, is not constitutional.

I would like to consider briefly, if you will permit me, Senate Bill 405 under the United States Constitution. Listen now to Article I of the amendments to our Constitution of the United States:

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise of religion.

And that is all. So you can see it is not nearly as stringent as the Pennsylvania Constitution.

And then the 14th Amendment to which the gentleman from Philadelphia has alluded, says as follows:

No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunity of citizens of the United States and no State shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction equal protection of the law.

Now those opposed to this bill and the gentlemen from Philadelphia have cited the Crown Kosher Supermarket case which was decided in May, 1959 by the Federal District Court of Massachusetts in an opinion written by a very learned and distinguished Judge, Chief Justice Magruder of that court, who established that the Massachusetts law violated the Federal Constitution. We are compelled, therefore, to carefully examine the facts of this particular case before we can accept such an assertion as made by the gentleman from Philadelphia that that case is sufficiently valid to predict that this bill Senate Bill 405, and the Act of 1939 therefore violates the Federal Constitution.

The case in Massachusetts specifically limits itself to the sale of kosher meats and kosher products on Sunday. Ninety-five percent of the business of that market was in kosher products, and the necessity of the sales was such that there was no other place that these products could be bought within 26 miles, and the necessity of dietary sanction of fresh meat within 72 hours by orthodox rabbis was then in issue. The court was greatly influenced by the fact that the act violated not the general phase of the constitutionality, but violated the religious observance provisions.

Such a factual situation I maintain, Mr. Speaker, cannot possibly be utilized in order to throw the charge of unconstitutionality as violative of the 14th Amendment where the Federal Constitution is concerned, into our face here this afternoon.

There has been no rule made whatsoever by the Supreme Court of the United States upon this issue. It is presently pending, that is true, in our Federal District Court, but we have no basis whatsoever to come to the conclusion that Senate Bill 405 is a violation of the 14th Amendment of the Federal Constitution. In fact, we have a right to conclude to the contrary, by reason of the fact that, as Chief Justice Magruder pointed out in his opinion, were he called upon to utilize the case of Friedman in New York State that was dismissed by the U.S. Supreme Court he then would have found that the law in Massachusetts was constitutional.

He based his decision purely upon the statement that the law in Massachusetts was essentially and singularly religious. Here in Pennsylvania, ever since the decision in 1948, our laws have been considered to be a civil regulation only and not a religious matter.

Now if one would throw religion into the debate, and suppose it must be argued here on the basis of unconstitutionality, then we are forced in concluding and anticipating that Senate Bill 405 is in no wise unconstitutional, either from the standpoint of the Pennsylvania Constitution or from the standpoint of the 14th Amendment of the Federal Constitution.

I ask all Members of the House to think carefully on the constitutionality of this bill. I am sure that I am correct in the analysis which I made, and I assure you that in my opinion, in the opinion of most of the lawyers at the Bar, and in the opinion of the Supreme Court of this state, this bill as it now stands is presently constitutional.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Will the gentleman from Bedford, Mr. Stroup, consent to be interrogated?

Mr. STROUP. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. The gentleman from Bedford has argued the constitutionality of the Acts of 1939 and 1794. Can the gentleman point to any decision in any state which has declared an act similar to Senate Bill 405 with its arbitrary classification as legal?

Mr. STROUP. I know of no particular similar case that has been brought before the court as to constitutionality. The only answer I can give the gentleman is this, that there are acts in other states which are similar, this is designed somewhat after them, and careful attention has been given to the selectivity of articles so there would be no discrimination insofar as the classification is concerned. It would certainly stay within the identical classification.

Also, I am assured the Attorney General's office, which assisted in drafting this bill, is of the opinion that the bill as drafted is constitutional.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, am I correct in understanding the gentleman from Bedford to state that he relies upon the interpretation of the Ohio statute in Ohio vs Kidd as to stating the constitutionality on a classification basis?

Mr. STROUP. That is right.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. You rely upon that statute?

Mr. STROUP. I quoted that opinion.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Now are you familiar with the terms of that statute?

Mr. STROUP. I beg your pardon, sir.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Is the gentleman from Bedford familiar with the terms of the statute of Ohio?

Mr. STROUP. I am fairly familiar with it. I know what the gentleman is trying to allude to, and that is the amendments as in that statute.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. No, I am not.

Does the gentleman from Bedford know that the Ohio statute is a broad statute containing no classifications? If I read it to him will he recede from his position that the Ohio statute sustains his position?

Mr. STROUP. No, I will not.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I will read the statute and you examine it.

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, I can save the gentleman the necessity of reading the statute. I am familiar with it, and despite his statement relative to the difference in the statute which he holds in his hand and that which we have before us in Senate Bill 405, I would maintain that there is sufficient past experience on constitutionality and classification to warrant the assumption that Senate Bill 405 will satisfy constitutionality as to classification.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Thank you.

The gentleman does not wish to hear it, but I think the Members of the House will, and with the Speaker's permission I will proceed. I will be as brief as the gentleman from Bedford. It is only one paragraph.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. The Ohio statute reads as follows:

No person who is over 14 years of age shall engage in common labor or open or cause to be opened, a building or place for transaction of business, or require a person in his employ or under his control to engage in common labor on Sunday. In prosecutions under this section complaints shall be made within 10 days after a violation.

This section does not apply to work of necessity or charity, and does not extend to persons who conscientiously observe the seventh day of the week as the Sabbath, and abstain thereon from doing things prohibited on Sunday.

I merely call that to your attention because the Ohio statute is not a discriminatory statute, it is a general statute, and the Commonwealth of Ohio vs. Kidd does in no degree sustain the position of the gentleman from Bedford.

I will say as far as the Attorney General is concerned, we disagree with the Attorney General's office if they say Senate Bill 405 is constitutional.

Insofar as the religious element is concerned, up to date the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the Supreme Court, sustains his position.

Mr. SCHAAF. Very briefly, Mr. Speaker, I wish I could share the enthusiasm of the advocates of the constitutionality of this particular piece of legislation. I would remind the House that this confidence is apparently not shared by the Department of Justice of this state, and I say that for this reason: As a result of the commendable effort on the part of the District Attorney of Dauphin County, even now one of the very constitutional questions which have been raised here this afternoon is being laboriously considered by a special panel—if my information is correct, and my recollection is correct—of Federal Court Judges appointed by the Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

Again, if my recollection is correct, this appointment was secured at the special request of the Department of Justice. So they apparently have, and I may be wrong in my assumption, but they apparently have a question as to one constitutional issue raised here this afternoon.

I would remind the House that there are two questions. One, as to the classification of subject matter. There is a second constitutional question, that of the religious aspects of this bill. Although I am not the brightest lawyer in the world, I do know the law is a growing thing.

I respectfully suggest to the House that a precedent originally decided in 1846 may well not be a satisfactory precedent today.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I would certainly not want to be as definite as the gentleman from Bedford, Mr. Stroup, when you consider that our courts very often reverse themselves. The gentleman from Bedford, I think, is very familiar with that. It has become a very common practice in recent years for even the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania to reverse itself. I remember one case not so long ago where four months after they rendered a decision they completely reversed themselves. Therefore I think it is not good for any Member of this House to be so very definite in his views.

I agree with the last speaker that there is a serious problem, and a serious question in the mind of the District Attorney of Dauphin County, as well as the Justice Department of the Commonwealth, because they have requested a prompt decision by the Federal Court to decide whether the 1794 Blue Law as set forth in the Penal Code of 1939 is or is not constitutional. Therefore when we get to 405, I say to the Members of the House that you not only have the question raised that you have raised in the Blue Law Statute of 1794, but you additionally have this question of reasonable classification.

I humbly feel in my opinion—I will not say that I am right or that I am wrong, but it is subject to a decision by the courts—this is not a reasonable classification, and I say that most of the decisions to which the speaker, to which the gentleman from Bedford, alluded were cases which were decided before the enactment of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

I also want the gentleman to know that the Supreme Court of the United States has the last word as to whether a state act is constitutional or unconstitutional. I believe this is an extremely serious question and I think Mr. Stroup will agree with me, therefore, that it is serious in nature and important, and that we ought to have a roll call on this particular question.

I therefore at this time ask for a slow roll call vote.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. TOMPKINS. I rise to a point of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, in the vote on this question, does the House determine the constitutionality only as it relates to the Pennsylvania Constitution, or as it relates to both the Pennsylvania Constitution and the United States Constitution? And what power do we as the Pennsylvania Legislature have to determine the constitutionality of anything under the United States Constitution?

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that we are concerned at this time solely with the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

The question before the House is on the Point of Order raised by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Schwartz.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I do not like to differ with the Chair, but I do not think we can take the position that Pennsylvania has just abrogated itself from the Union of the States. I think we must remember that we are part of the United States of America.

I hesitate to challenge the Speaker's decision, but it seems to me that when the word "constitutional" is raised it means just what it says. It does not mean constitutional under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; I think it must take into consideration the Federal laws and the Federal Constitution.

If you will look in the manual, Mr. Speaker, not only do you have the Constitution of Pennsylvania, but I believe you have the Federal Constitution. I think we must recognize that this is not only a question under our State Constitution, but our Federal Constitution as well, and I suggest to the Speaker that he reconsider the ruling he has just made.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of the opinion that whether or not actions taken by the state of Pennsylvania are in derogation of the Federal Constitution is a question that must be submitted to the Supreme Court, and that we in this arena make our own proposals in the light of what we consider the Constitution of Pennsylvania ordains.

On the question recurring,

Will the House sustain the constitutional point of order?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. SCHWARTZ and FINEMAN, and were as follows:

So the question was determined in the negative and the constitutional point of order was not sustained.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, the comment I wanted to make before is this: I recall taking an oath of office here and I believe that the other Members of the House took the same oath of office I did, and part of that oath was not only to defend and obey the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania but the Constitution of the United States as well.

I want that as part of the record in connection with the debate on whether the constitutionality applied only to the Pennsylvania Constitution or the Federal Constitution. And at this time, Mr. Speaker, if I am in order, . . .

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not know whether the gentleman is in order till we know what he wants to do.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. I am just getting to that, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman.

MOTION TO GO INTO COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

At this time I would like to move that this House resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole for the purpose of the consideration of the amendments which are about to be proposed.

On the question,

Will the House resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. I make this suggestion because I feel that there will be more fluidity of movement. I think it will save some time. I would like to see how the Committee of the Whole operates anyway. Since I have been here I have never seen it.

Under rule 19 of the rules under which we are operating, I believe it gives each Member an opportunity of speaking more often on a subject. I think that it might give the Speaker a little rest because I see by the rule that the Speaker then under the Committee of the Whole appoints somebody to take his place in the Chair.

Honestly, I am not looking for any dilatory tactics or delaying, but I think perhaps a committee is supposed to consider matters, and I think that is one way of doing it.

So, therefore, I made the motion at this time. I do not require a full roll call on this question, a division will be satisfactory—that this House do resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole at this time.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Schwartz, has made a motion under the provisions of Rule 19 of this House in which the House is permitted to resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole. I rise to oppose the motion on the grounds that the House is considering every motion and every amendment that has been offered to or for Senate Bill 405, and I ask that we do oppose the motion to resolve the House into a Committee of Whole under the provisions of Rule 19.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I, in connection with the motion, feel that we have been making some good progress here this afternoon, that is to say, it has been an orderly procedure. We do very well in having amendments offered and having them discussed and then having a vote on them. I feel that going into a Committee of the Whole at this time would merely complicate matters, would, I believe, delay proceedings, and it seems to me that in view of what has taken place up to this point, there having been just not too many aye votes for any proposition that has been submitted, we are at the point right now where Mr. Schwartz or those who have amendments can get up and offer the amendments, make a brief concise statement as to what the amendments do, and then take this last roll call on constitutionality and let the members get up and change their votes one way or the other.

I think you would accomplish the same purpose expeditiously and well. I do not mean to get involved in this discussion. I know that members are interested in it but, after all, a number want to get away to go to Pittsburgh to the funeral tomorrow and it seems that those who have amendments could all get together and lay them out here, tell us what they are and let us vote on them in the manner suggested.

Therefore, I ask the House to vote against the motion. On the question recurring,

Will the House resolve itself in a Committee of the Whole?

More than a majority of the Members present having voted in the negative, the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Lehigh rise?

Mr. FRANK. To make a brief statement.

The SPEAKER. It must to be pertinent. There is nothing in order at the present time but the consideration of Section 1 of this bill.

Mr. FRANK. Well, I think what I am going to say may be part of it.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will recognize the gentleman later for a general statement.

Mr. FRANK. Well, you heard this afternoon nothing but lawyers. Now you are going to hear from Sam, the pants man.

I am taking the floor today not to debate this bill whether it is religious or if it is unconstitutional, but to represent the 100,000 retail clerks and the so-called small businessmen who really have no lobbyist to voice their opinion. I have received over 2,000 letters from sales clerks.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is—

Mr. FRANK. This is on the bill, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is in order, if he had the floor to discuss the bill.

Mr. FRANK. Well, it is on the bill. Senate Bill 405,

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed if he is discussing the bill.

Mr. FRANK. The sales clerks in the various department stores in Allentown, the city of Allentown, are very much concerned that Senate Bill 405 does not pass. I have the floor, I gave him all the opportunity—

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker—

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Philadelphia rise?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SCHWARTZ. I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. This bill will be debated at length. Now we have a bill here on second reading. I do not think the merits of the bill are debatable at this point and, therefore, I raise a point of order. I do not want to cut anybody off, but it seems to me that if we want to consider amendments with dispatch here—

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is correct. The House, of course, could defeat the bill on second reading and from that point of view the gentleman would be pertinent, but the business to which the House is now committed actually and by inference is the consideration of amendments to Section 1, and the question of adopting the bill as a whole is not an issue. We have not yet arrived at the point where we ask the House will it agree to the bill on second reading. When we reach the point, where we ask that question, will the House agree to the bill on second reading, we will recognize the gentleman from Lehigh.

Mr. FRANK. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw. I will be back.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I have two amendments which I wish to present. I am probably certain of the result. I will be satisfied with a division. I am going to talk very briefly on them.

Messrs. GOLDSTEIN and ZIMMERMAN offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, line 15, by inserting after "thereafter" "The provisions of this section shall not be applicable to persons who conscientiously observe the seventh day of the week as the Sabbath, and abstain thereon from doing the acts prohibited on Sunday by this section."

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this amendment is clear. It means that any person who, for religious reasons, actually closes his place of business on the seventh day and does not engage in any matters prohibited by this section, will be exempted from this act.

Similar provisions exist in eleven states and this Commonwealth, particularly the state of Ohio. We see nothing improper in this amendment. It speaks for itself. There are many people in my district who actually close their places of business on the Sabbath and keep their places of business open on Sunday. This has been a custom from time immemorial, since I was a child.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Pittsburgh must have imagined that he was born the same time as the Speaker.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Thank you. The debate has been going on for so long that I have become an old man.

However, since we have talked about maturity and old things, I wish to call to your attention that back in the 17th century William Penn founded this Commonwealth as a place of refuge for the Quakers who were being harassed by the then government in control of England. And Mr. Penn, as one of the fundamental principles of this Commonwealth, made this a place of refuge for people of all religions, races and denominations. We had religious freedom in Pennsylvania when we did not have it in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. And, in voting on this amendment to which I will take a division, I ask you to stand behind one of the other ancient men, William Penn.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak in support of Mr. Goldstein's amendments.

We all know that in this Commonwealth there is more than one religion. There are people of the Jewish faith who are extremely orthodox and, in accordance with the tenets of their faith, they keep their places of business closed on Saturday. Not only that, but they do not engage in any business-like activities or wordly activities on that day.

Also, there are other religious sects, like the Seven Day Adventists, Mohammedans, who also celebrate other days of the week as their religious day of rest and worship. In due justice to them, especially, inasmuch as we have already decided what we considered the constitutionality of this question, in due justice to them and in consideration of the fact that they are unable to engage in wordly activity on another day of the week, I would suggest that we consider this amendment very, very seriously and fully.

I say this because if we do not accept an amendment such as Mr. Goldstein has just introduced, it would reap an economic hardship on these other people, inasmuch as not only would they find it necessary to keep closed on the day on which they celebrate as their day of worship, but they would also find it necessary to keep closed on Sunday. I know large areas of my own community, I know large areas of the city of Philadelphia, which would virtually have to close down unless such an amendment were added to the bill. I think in due justice to these people who are citizens of our Commonwealth, who pay and bear the burdens of our Commonwealth, who help sustain it, that we should consider the amendment and vote in favor of it.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, lest the Members of this House have gotten into the habit of voting no, I suggest to them that they should consider this particular amendment with all seriousness because it merits your close attention.

It presents a problem that every Legislator has to meet. Heavy responsibilities devalue upon the Legislators in this House in making up their minds about this particular problem. Many men who have spoken to me about this bill have said that this bill in no way has any religious aspects to it. I think this is an ill-conceived concept. The bill unquestionably has religious implications that we should resolve.

We have on our statute books today an Act of 1794 as you know. This Act specifically says that whoever performs any wordly employment or business on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, or it may be reversed—on Sunday, commonly called the Lord's Day—shall be in violation of the Act.

The very language of the statute implies that what the Act seeks to do is to enforce the observance of a Sabbath.

As a matter of fact, all the early American Sunday Laws came to us and were adopted in this country from the English laws that make use of the term "Lord's Day," "the Sabbath," and so forth. The fact that points up, more than anything else, that this is a religious bill, is the fact that we punish an act as a crime because it was committed on a certain day of the week, rather than because of the nature of the act itself. To illustrate: A man many be found guilty and punished for committing a nuisance on a Sunday, but if he commits that same nuisance on any other day of the week he is likewise punished. He is punished not because he committed this act on a Sunday, but because of the nature of the act. But, when we look at the provisions of this bill or the provisions of our Act of 1794 or our Penal Code of 1939, we find that what is legal on Saturday or any other day of the week becomes illegal on Sunday. Now if an act is in fact immoral or improper or wrong, then it retains that status no matter on what day of the week it is committed. So, no one can in seriousness argue that this does not have religious overtones. Now if, in fact, the bill has religious overtones, and this forms my basic opposition to this bill, then it is wrong for this body, as it is wrong for any civil body, by legislative mandate to tell the people of the state what day of the week they should observe as the Sabbath. It is wrong to tell the people of this state what day of the week they shall esteem more than other day of the week. That is not the function of civil government. The function of civil government is to protect all people in their civil rights and in their religious rights. This bill has no more propriety than a bill which would enforce closing on the Sabbath or a Saturday, because Saturday happens to be the Sabbath of the Seven Day Adventists or those of the Jewish faith.

When the creators of this country constructed our governmental structure, in their infinite wisdom they decided there was one area which should not come before the Legislature. There was one area where the will of the majority should not be imposed on the will of the minority, and that was the field of religion. God has made man a free moral agent. He has given man the right to choose. Religion is a matter of the heart; it is a matter of one's conscience. No legislative body should tell its citizens what day of the week they should observe as the Sabbath.

If this Legislature is intent upon passing this kind of law, they should at least take it upon themselves to denude this act of the odious provisions concerning the religious implications that it has. I respectfully ask your consideration in thinking wisely about the amendments that have been offered by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, and I respectfully ask that you give a color of sense and propriety to this bill by voting for those amendments.

Mr. McKEEVER. Mr. Speaker, I am not going into a theological treatise. I have but five lines to read and say to the House.

As I read this bill I find nothing in it of religious nature. The bill is prompted by the thousands of letters we all have received from the people who work in the stores on Sunday. As a vice president for the last 21 years of the Retail Clerks, I ask you, please, to think of the people. It is not a religious bill and do not let the opposition read religion into the bill, for it is not intended. Vote against the amendments.

Mr. GELFAND. I have endeavored to refrain from debating the entire bill because I expect to debate the bill on third reading next week. I thought we could stick to just discussing the amendments that are under consideration. We are not going into the aspect as to whether or not this is a religious bill. I happen to believe that it is. But whether it is or not is not germane at this particular time.

I think the amendment under consideration is whether or not those people who celebrate another day of religious esteem shall be entitled to open on Sunday if they do in fact celebrate such a day. I say that it wreaks an economic hardship on those people because if they find it necessary to celebrate their own holiday, their own religious day, then they also find it necessary to be closed on Sunday. That would mean they would have to be closed two days a week, and because of that I think it is a rank injustice upon them. It would certainly create a tremendous economic disadvantage to them. Because of that I think we should vote in favor of these amendments.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I think this amendment, above all others, if it passed, would not bother Senate Bill 405 in any way. It would still permit the action to take place which the proponents of 405 want to take place. I just want to say that I think if you pass this amendment the chances of this bill being declared unconstitutional at some later date will be that much lessened.

Mr. GELFAND. I would request a slow roll call.

Mr. SILVERMAN. Mr. Speaker, aside from the religious issue involved, I think this bill might very well mean the economic death of some people. The Orthodox Jews close on Friday at sundown. You are imposing a five-day week upon a merchant. In other words, he will be closed from Friday sundown until Monday. I think this is grossly unfair and, as Mr. Schwartz has stated, the chances of the final passage of this bill would be enhanced if this amendment were voted for.

Mr. McCORMACK. I thought you were supposed to stand at your seat until you were recognized by the Speaker; I have been doing that and have not been recognized.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is supposed to address the Chair and then take whatever place from which he wants to speak.

Mr. McCORMACK. In order to expedite—

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not care to dispute the matter with the gentleman. He is recognized to discuss the matter before the House, but could not recognize him until he addressed the Chair.

Mr. McCORMACK. Is it the ruling of the Speaker then that when you want recognition you walk to the microphone?

The SPEAKER. And address the Chair. Otherwise, we do not know whether you are wandering around or whether you are engaged in the business of the House.

Mr. McCORMACK. The Speaker knows very well that I am not wandering around. I would like to speak on this amendment.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed. He has the floor.

Mr. McCORMACK. There are a lot of high-handed things going on around here and I do not want to make an issue of them, but I very well could. I do not like them.

I want to speak against this amendment. The question by implication has been raised that there is something wrong with the Lord's Day. It seems to me, and the decision of the Supreme Court so states, that Christianity is part of the common law of this Commonwealth, and it is so recognized in the Specht decision that the gentleman from Bedford, Mr. Stroup, cited before, that the mere fact there is a mixture of motives and the Legislature has chosen Sunday as a universal day of rest does not militate against the effectiveness or the constitutionality of the bill.

This issue two years ago was raised in a bill that I co-sponsored to prohibit the sale of automobiles on Sunday, and the very gentlemen who are raising this issue now voted against that amendment which would permit those who did not practice the Christian religion to open on Sunday and close on Saturday. That was defeated decisively.

The real thing is that this is a great social bill. It affects and affects very seriously the welfare of the people. It is not a religious bill, and I do not care who gets on the floor and denominates it as such; that still does not make it a religious bill. We are flying squarely in the face of decisions of the highest court in this Commonwealth when we say that there is something wrong with it because of the fact that it spells out Sunday.

Can anybody tell me how in conscience it would be possible to enforce a law where certain people can conduct activity on a day that the Legislature has spelled out should be set aside as a day of rest? Obviously it would be impossible. You cannot have certain people close on Saturday and open on Sunday. It would be impossible to enforce, and that is another reason why we should pass this bill without an amendment such as the gentleman has introduced.

A poll was taken of Jewish merchants, I am reliably informed, in the city of Philadelphia, on a particular street. There were 119 merchants visited on a Saturday, and of those 119, 115 were open. Now I would like to hear somebody get up and list to me these great businesses that practice the Sabbath and close on Saturday instead of Sunday. The truth of the matter is that the very ones who wish this amendment passed are the ones who would stay open on both days, and because of the impracticality of enforcing such a law, they know that they cannot be prosecuted. Therefore, I say that this amendment is nothing more than a subterfuge that is designed to negate the effectiveness of this good, wholesome and important law.

Mr. FINEMAN. I think it was manifestly unfair of the previous speaker to imply that I or any other speaker in favor of this amendment was casting an aspersion, an unfavorable reference, to the Lord's Day, Sunday.

I do not think that the argument can be more eloquently replied to than was done in a magazine article by the Reverend William H. Coons, a minister of the Reformed Church of Schenectady, New York. I would ask the House to bear with me for just a moment as I read some pertinent portions of this article.

This Reverend says,

"Whether we observe the Old Testament Sabbath, the seventh day of the week, or the Christian Sunday, the first day of the week, may not seem important, but it is important to recognize the meaning and purpose of each day. Of further importance is this, that Jews and Christians alike agree that the holy observance of one day a week, dedicated to worship and rest, is a vital Judaic-Christian function that should and must be preserved. We are convinced that the life and the future spiritual welfare of both the synagogue and the Christian church will depend largely on how Jews and Christians alike maintain this basic function of their faith. Of yet further importance is the basic principle inherent in Judaism and in Christianity of human freedom, which is involved in this issue, that men and groups have the right to choose their own interpretation as to which day of the seven in a week to observe as the day of rest, and how they should observe it."

The SPEAKER. The Chair has recognized the gentleman from Philadelphia several times. By unanimous consent he can continue to be recognized.

Mr. GELFAND. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am sure Mr. McCormack does not mean what he said. Sometimes in the heat of emotion I am sure he unleashes himself without consideration. As a matter of fact — — —

The SPEAKER. The Chair suggests that the gentleman refrain from getting this very important matter into the stage of a personal dispute about theology between the Members of the House. The Chair would prefer to let the record stand as it has been written.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to go into a theological discussion. However, as a matter of enlightenment, I only would like to point out that there are many, many merchants in Pennsylvania who do observe another day religiously, and it is those whom I seek to protect. Whether or not I know their names is unimportant. They do observe a religious day. Now, insofar as naming a particular one, all the Speaker has to do is walk down Chestnut Street any Saturday and he will find a national candy chain closed, and they open for business on Sunday.

In addition, he raises the question of how this would be enforced. I would also like to advise him that New York does have such a provision in a statute, and the way it is enforced is by allowing the defendant, the merchant who is accused, to utilize that statement as a defense and if he can present evidence to sustain his position he is not prosecuted. It is as simple as that.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Will the gentleman agree to take a division as previously indicated on this amendment.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I shall and I would like the division to be on the basis of harmony.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Schwartz.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Schwartz, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. Mr. Speaker, on subsequent roll calls on the various amendments that are being proposed, will the gentleman agree to take the roll call that was previously used on the question of the constitutionality, with those Members desiring to change given permission to do so.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Lippincott, it appears to me that no amendment of any type that would be introduced here this afternoon would have any chance of passage. I, therefore, suggest that we take a roll call on this last amendment and that that amendment stand for all subsequent amendments being introduced. I do not want to hold up this House any longer. I am perfectly satisfied for myself and any Members who have other amendments to introduce, that they be presented, a short debate if necessary, no debate if at all possible, and a vote taken with a possibility of a change by anybody who wants to change his vote.

Mr. LIPPINCOTT. I thank the gentleman and I understand that is satisfactory to the Members on this side.

The SPEAKER. The Chair considers that a very admirable arrangement.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I think it is only fair to say in behalf of Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Fineman of Philadelphia, who informed me of this only a few minutes ago, I would like to say to all the Members of this House that they have a moral conviction in this and at no time have they shown any dilatory tactics. They agreed to this and I thank them in behalf of the entire Membership of this House.

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I am only rising to point out that I requested a roll call on this vote.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, there was no misunderstanding that this would be the roll call. Satisfactory?

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. SCHWARTZ and FINEMAN and were as follows:

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

The SPEAKER. Since we have not had leaves of absence and the Minority Whip desires to request leaves of absence before this roll call, without objection the Chair will call for leaves of absence.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted as follows:

Mr. Tompkins for Mr. BROWN for remainder of today's session.

The SPEAKER. At this time, the Chair desires to call to the rostrum to preside, the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Helm.

Before the Chair leaves, he wants to compliment this House upon the decorum and dignity with which this history-making debate has been conducted. He wants to compliment the opponents of the bill who invariably proceeded within the proper confines of parliamentary law. They made no mistakes along that line.

The Chair compliments the House. The Chair is a trifle weary and I would like to call on the gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Helm. We tried to do the best we could this afternoon to preserve peace and harmony.

MR. HELM IN THE CHAIR.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair thinks at this time it is proper to commend the Speaker for the very fine way in which he conducted the affairs of this House and for the order that was preserved during a very, very ticklish debate.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, by inserting after "thereafter" in line 15: "The provisions of this section shall not be applicable to businesses which are in charge of the owner, his wife, or an adult member of his family, and in addition to his family, do not during any day in the week employ more than three persons."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, briefly, this amendment is for the protection of the small businessman, not in the city but in the rural districts. Many roadside businesses will be put out of existence if this amendment is not adopted. And I say these small businessmen should not be the victims of an economic war between the big department stores and the big discount houses.

I am speaking on behalf of the small businessmen who operate the small family businesses.

Mr. McKEEVER. Mr. Speaker, if that amendment went through, the gentleman who offered it, in my opinion, does not know the pitfalls. Where I come from that could mean that a small jewelry store at 7th and Sansom could do $100,000 worth of business on Sunday with just him, his wife and son.

Another very important angle concerns these merchandise marts that have concessions. They could have a hundred concessions individually operated by three people per concession and this bill would be nullified.

Please vote against those amendments.

Mr. O'DELL. Mr. Speaker, I happen to reside in a rural section and I am speaking for a number of the small hardware dealers that are being operated by one or two persons. I have talked to these boys about 405 and everyone of them says, for heaven's sake, pass this bill. I want to stay home Sundays with my family, but my friends and neighbors come up to the house and say come on up to the store and get me a piece of sewer pipe or a pound of nails or a little roughing. They say, in order to keep peace, I have to do it.

The majority of the small home-owned hardware stores in my section want 405 passed in its present form.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, prior to the last roll call, which was on the amendments that Mr. Goldstein offered, that roll call was 68 to 116. Many of the Members have indicated to me they want to be recorded differently on this. Did I make an error that most of them wanted to use the roll call on the constitutional question on which the roll call was 23 to 158?

However, of course, I would prefer a division, but I do not want to misrepresent what we had agreed to regarding the previous roll call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair understood that we were to take the previous roll call and we would make any changes to that roll call that the Members desire.

Mr. McCANN. They inform me there will be a considerable number of changes. That vote was 68 to 116, Mr. Speaker, but however agreed to we can have it as a basic roll call.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has been informed the correct roll call was 68 to 116.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I am satisfied with a division on this amendment. I know it is going to fall. I am satisfied with a division, but I certainly thank the gentleman.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

On a rising vote, less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative, and the amendment was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. FINEMAN offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, lines 1 to 6 by striking out "clothing and wearing apparel clothing" in line 1, all of lines 2 to 5 and "ties and souvenirs" and inserting: "anything other than food, prescription, drugs and newspapers."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, as the Members of this House now know from the lengthy debate that was held all afternoon, we have on our statute books an Act which goes back to 1794, an Act that will remain in full force and effect even though Senate Bill 405 should pass and be signed into law by the Governor.

Actually, Senate Bill 405 is but an extension of the Act of 1794. And since it is an extension I felt that we should clothe it within the same ranks of antiquity because it has the same odor of mildew as the Act of 1794.

The purpose of these amendments, the refore, is to put Senate Bill 405 on a parity with the Act of 1794, to make the prohibitions, to make the restrictions, that are encompassed in Senate Bill 405 the same as the prohibitions we find in the Act of 1794, because there is just no logical reason, none whatsoever, why we should, let us say, fine an owner of a store who sells a pair of sun glasses on Sunday, for only $4, and yet fine that same owner $100 when he sells me a watch or a clock.

The purpose of these amendments, therefore, Mr. Speaker, if this Legislature is hell-bent upon passing this bill, as it would appear they are, is to really give the people of the state a Sunday Blue Law. If that is what the Legislature in its wisdom feels that the people want, a Sunday Blue Law, let us give it to them with all the trimmings. Let us give them the same act that our people, our forebearers, in 1794 gave to the people of that time.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I rise against this amendment and I would like to briefly state my reasons.

The foremost opponents of the Act of 1794 raised as one of their principal objections the fact that it was vague and uncertain. Now here is an opportunity in Senate Bill 405 to spell out specifically and categorically what is proscribed.

Now we are again, by virtue of this amendment, attempting to make it similar to the old Blue Law. In the case in Lehigh County of Two Guys from Harrison, the question was raised as to the non-uniformity of the application. They said, in effect, that some of the laws, in particular the law applying to boating is a law applying to Sunday sales of motor vehicles, imposing much higher fines than the particular act under which they were originally arrested. The Court at that time said, when that question is raised by those who had been harmed, they will take it into consideration, but those who are now before the court cannot complain because it does not harm them in any way.

So I think that this Senate Bill 405, without the amendments, clears up a lot of the objections from those who are most opposed to the old Blue Law and I ask that the amendments be voted down.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

On a rising vote, less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative, and the amendment was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SCHWARTZ offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 2, by striking out "a new section" and inserting "two new sections"

Amend Bill, page 2, by inserting between lines 15 and 16 "Section 699.11. Engaging in Manufacturing, Processing or Distributing on Sunday.—Whoever engages in employment on Sunday in the manufacture, processing or distribution of any articles whatsoever shall, upon conviction, thereof in a summary proceeding for the first offense be sentenced to pay a fine of not exceeding one hundred dollars ($100) and for the second or any subsequent offense committed within one year after conviction for the first offense be sentenced to pay a fine of not exceeding two hundred dollars ($200) or undergo imprisonment not exceeding thirty days in default thereof.

"Information charging violations of this section shall be brought within seventy-two hours after the commission of the alleged offense and not thereafter."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, for the enlightenment of the House and before the defeat of this amendment, what this amendment would do would be to include in Senate Bill 405 the activities of manufacturing, processing and distributing on Sunday, as well as retail selling on Sunday.

This again, is a restrictive amendment, the purpose being to bring out the "ridiculousity," if there is such a word, of Senate Bill No. 405 and to provide that every segment of the economy receive equal treatment under the law.

Mr. McKEEVER. Mr. Speaker, we are aware that there is no economic competition by way of wholesaling, processing or transportation, but we are keenly aware of total inequities salary-wise by way of retail competition.

In my own area these men who are termed today by the newspapers as "discount men," do not compensate triple-time, double-time, but pay rather substandard time and sometimes they also trade days, that is, if you are off Tuesday you work Sunday without compensation, taking those men again away from their families. The wholesaling, processing and transportation are all taken care of, but these people that I speak of, and I ought to know what I am talking about, are the forgotten citizens made to sell things because some people wish to buy them on Sunday, whereas we have five nights in the week today, where you do not have a cracker-barrel area or era. We can make any purchase we desire five days and five nights, and there is no need for this bill nor this amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

On a rising vote, less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative, and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. GELFAND offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, line 1, by inserting after "retail" "or wholesale."

On the question

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, the amendment which I have just submitted is a very, very simple and easy one to understand. It provides just to add two words to this bill. Those words are provided after the word "retail" so that it will say "retail or wholesale", and then proceed with the rest of the bill.

It seems to me that there is no reasonable differentiation between selling at retail on Sundays and at wholesale on Sundays. I know in many, many places within the city of Philadelphia they purport to be wholesaler merchants, and factories and manufacturing installations who sell the merchandise they manufacture. Now if it is an economic hardship for the department stores of this state to meet the competition of discount houses, merchandise marts, or even small merchants on Sunday who sell the items designated in this bill at retail, it certainly seems to me that it would work the same economic hardship upon them to receive competition from wholesale dealers.

I therefore request that this House pass this amendment which makes a bad bill at least a little better. Then it will read "sell Sunday at retail and wholesale."

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the amendment?
It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SCHWARTZ offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, line 1 by inserting after "retail" "candy, cigars, cigarettes, tobacco products, cosmetics or drugs, except those sold under a physician's prescription or."

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment?
It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SCHWARTZ offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10) page 2, line 5 by inserting after "recordings" "or sporting goods, cameras, photographic supplies"

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment?
It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. GELFAND offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, line 5 by inserting after "recordings" "or automobile accessories, motor vehicle fuels and lubricants boats marine engines and accessories"

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I offer this amendment with this point. If it is our purpose to bring this Commonwealth to a complete commercial standstill on Sunday, there is no better way to do it than to stop the sale of lubricants, gasoline, and so forth.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the amendment?
It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SCHWARTZ offered the following amendment:

Amend Section 1 (Section 699.10), Page 2, Line 4, by deleting the words "musical instruments."

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I think, for the record, this is one amendment that deserves some consideration by the Members of the House.

At the public hearing before the Rules Committee, I recall one gentleman appearing there representing a piano company. He informed the Committee that Sunday is an important day in connection with the sale of pianos because that is a day when the family goes as a unit to purchase such an item.

He testified, as I recall it, that approximately 50 per cent of their business was transacted on a Sunday.

I therefore ask for consideration of this amendment by the House.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the amendment?
It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. GELFAND offered the following amendment:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, line 1 by inserting after "retail": "real estate and mobile homes or."

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. GELFAND. This is the last amendment I have.

Mr. Speaker, by merely reading the newspapers on any Saturday or Sunday we can find out that, one, the greatest commercial activity that occurs in this Commonwealth on a Sunday is the sale of real estate.

I certainly think that if we find it incumbent upon ourselves to forbid the sale of certain items at retail which contribute to commercial activity on Sunday, certainly there is nothing more commercial than the sale of real estate. I have talked to many, many, many real estate dealers, real estate brokers, who tell me that it wreaks an economic disadvantage upon them to work on Sunday because they cannot meet the advertising competition of large real estate brokers. Also, I have spoken to any number of real estate salesmen who say that they are precluded from contacting possible sales or possible clients because of the tremendous real estate activities that occur on Sunday and puts them at a competitive disadvantage.

Therefore, I think that this amendment is well worth our consideration and I request an affirmative vote for it.

Mr. STROUP. Mr. Speaker, in Chadwick vs. Stokes, the Federal Court has held that the purchase of a home on Sunday is not in violation of the Blue Laws. Therefore, these amendments are unnecessary.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the amendment?
It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,
Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. SCHWARTZ offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 1, lines 3 and 4 by striking out "Whoever" and inserting: "Except as herein-after provided, whoever."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 699.10), page 2, by inserting between lines 15 and 16: "The provisions of this section shall not apply to any place of business for which a pharmacy permit has been issued and in which a registered pharmacist is on duty."

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. SCHWARTZ. The shouting and the tumult dies. I thought the Speaker had left the rostrum because he was tired, but I think he is enjoying it.

This is the last amendment that I have to offer. Don't get too jubilant, there may be others.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. FINEMAN. To ask unanimous consent of the House to make a brief statement.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman desire to do that before we read the bill? We are still considering section 1 of the bill.

Mr. FINEMAN. With permission of the House or consent of the House, yes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair hears no objection. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. FINEMAN. Now that all the amendments are by us, I would just like to say, and I say this on behalf of the opponents of this bill, that although we did not get your votes we did get your earnest respect, consideration and attention, and for this we are grateful and we thank you.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section and title were separately read and agreed to.

CONDOLENCE

Mrs. ANDERSON, Mrs. MONROE, Mrs. F. R. JONES, Messrs. HOLT, FLOYD, ARLENE, RILEY, IRVIS, TAYLOR, Mrs. VARALLO, Messrs. DOUGHERTY, SCARCELLI, DENNIS, SHERMAN, Mrs. B. Z. MILLER, Messrs. STEWART, KEE, SCHWARTZ, FINEMAN and SCARCELLI offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, July 1959.

The Honorable Herbert E. Millen of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia, the first negro jurist in Pennsylvania, had his career brought to a close on Saturday, July 25, 1959 through an unexpected death.

Judge Millen, a native of Lancaster County, graduated from Lincoln University, Oxford, Pennsylvania and the University of Pennsylvania Law School. His first public office was that of Deputy Attorney General during the Pinchot Administration. When he was appointed in 1940 to the position of Assistant Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia, he was the first of his race to attain a high position in the government of that city. Another first was scored by Judge Millen when the former Governor, James H. Duff, appointed him to the Philadelphia Municipal Court on October 29, 1947. Thereafter he was elected to a ten-year term and this year nominated for another full term. Judge Millen's achievements and outstanding personal qualities marked him as an exemplary leader, jurist and citizen.

His civil activities were numerous in that he was president of the board of directors of the Mercy Douglass Hospital, a 33rd degree Mason and a Past Grand Master of the Pennsylvania Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, Prince Hall affiliation. Judge Millen also devoted a great deal of time to his church. The Reeve Memorial Presbyterian Church counted the Judge as one of its elders. Few people of any race, creed or color can boast of the achievements attained by the Honorable Herbert E. Millen; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives extends its deepest sympathy to the thousand of friends and associates of Judge Millen and especially to his widow, Madeleine Millen in her hour of loss and bereavement; and be it further Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded to Mrs. Millen, 363 Pelham Road, Mount Airy, Pennsylvania and the Reeve Memorial Presbyterian Church, 50th and Aspen Streets, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

COMMUNICATION FROM GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

APPROVAL OF HOUSE BILLS Nos. 969, 1174 and 1311

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,

Governor's Office, Harrisburg, July 28, 1959.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed House Bill No. 969, Printer's No. 818, entitled "An Act amending the act of June 15, 1937 (P. L. 1743) entitled as amended '1937 Magistrates' Court Act' providing for the appointment of an acting chief magistrate."

DAVID L. LAWRENCE.

July 28, 1959.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

Make them deeply sensible of the grave responsibility which Thou hast placed in their hands. Turn their eyes away from all things selfish and petty. Give them the manifold gifts of Thy grace, that they may know and love Thee more as they better serve their fellow men so that, in the learning of Thy law, they may grow in Thy stature to their own salvation and to the welfare of this Commonwealth, through Thee, alone, Who art our Creator, our Savior and our Sanctifier, forever and ever. ## SENATE RESOLUTION

DIRECTING THE JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION TO STUDY UNNECESSARY DUPLICATION AND OVERLAPPING OF FUNCTIONS IN THE PENNSYLVANIA LOCAL GOVERNMENT SYSTEM, NOT PROVIDED FOR BY THE CONSTITUTION

Messrs. MULLIN and SEYLER offered the following resolution (Serial No. 48), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules:

In the Senate, August 3, 1959.

The local government system in Pennsylvania is a confused maze of unneeded, duplicated and overlapping functions and activities.

This tangled mess cannot be charged to any one person or group. Changed and improved methods of communication and transportation and economic development have rendered the present system inadequate to provide for our needs.

The tremendous surge of trivial and inconsequential local matters now requiring action at the State level is a symptom of a sick and ailing system.

No one can better testify about this serious condition than the overburdened taxpayer who must finance the sheer waste occasioned by unnecessary functions, frills and free-loading government employees. The public continue to point out and object to the multitude of overlapping political subdivisions and offices that continue to exist through the failure of local politicians to take any action to adjust to changed conditions.

The time has come to impartially investigate and take stock of the governing bodies of all political subdivisions not otherwise provided for in the Pennsylvania Constitution so as to enable the General Assembly to enact legislation which will create an efficient government.

Such an investigation and study by an agency of the State Legislature, which can give proper regard to pertinent facts and needs, and which can factually recommend elimination of useless and wasteful activities will be a great and needed service of the entire Commonwealth; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission be directed to investigate and study unnecessary duplication and overlapping of functions and unneeded activities in the Pennsylvania local government system not provided for by the Constitution with a view to eliminating wasteful, useless and unnecessary functions and activities; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission report to the next regular session of the General Assembly its findings and recommendations, together with drafts of legislation, to carry the recommendations into effect.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 828, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 17, 1913 (P. L. 507) entitled "Intangible Personal Property Tax Law" providing that the tax shall not apply to property held in certain trusts established by individuals for retirement purposes.

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, we have discussed these bills on other occasions and, therefore, I will not take the time of the Senate to review them again. However, I do wish to mention, in passing, that Senate Bill No. 828, Senate Bill No. 829 and Senate Bill No. 830 are bills which are keyed to Federal legislation, primarily the Smith-Keogh Act which would provide that people who are self-employed could set aside a certain sum of money, up to the amount of $2,500, to provide sort of pension or welfare fund for themselves. Although that is a laudable purpose—and it is maybe even necessary in some of these persons' cases, despite the fact that they are also entitled to Social Security—you are removing from the local communities the taxables which are available for the school districts in the Philadelphia area. Senate Bill No. 828 is directed against Philadelphia, even though it does not specifically state as such. It just states that this bill applies to cities which are co-extensive with counties. The only area which that applies to is the city of Philadelphia, where the city and the county are one and the same thing.

When you remove this amount of money, which is available for tax purposes to the school districts or to the local area, you are not giving anything in these bills, nor do I see any bills on the Calendar, nor have I seen any bills introduced up until the end of business last week, that would provide for the community that is being deprived of this taxable amount of personal property getting any kind of relief in any other way.

I would like to ask the Members of the Senate how they will provide for this lack of tax money which they are going to take from the city of Philadelphia. Our school district has stated that it is now in the position where it needs $13,000,000 of new money, which it is not going to receive. It is looking for personal property as a means of raising some of that revenue. If you remove that, on top of the $13,000,000 burden that it already feels that it does not have, how are we going to be able to meet these problems that will recur?

I think all of us should be interested, as Members of this Senate and serving on the board of directors of this Commonwealth, in how these children are to be educated. How are we going to provide further income or increments for our schoolteachers? How are you going to have school buildings erected to take care of their problems? Senate Bill No. 828 applies to school districts of the first class and Senate Bill No. 829, which is the same as Senate Bill No. 828, goes on to take care of first class A districts. Therefore, no one is exempt in this area, except those areas which do not already have the tax. If some of these other local areas decide to levy a tax based on personal property, this bill will already have removed from them the taxables.

I think the Republican Caucus had the benefit of calling before it the members of the State Tax Equalization Board to explain to them the problem that they are having and part of the formula or formulae in arriving at reimbursement taxables and realty taxables, which have been removed from some areas and have hurt some of the areas as a result of being removed. Senate Bill No. 828, Senate Bill No. 829 and Senate Bill No. 830 are part of the very problem which is causing difficulty in some of the school districts where they already have problems now. You are now taking some of the school districts, which are struggling along on their own local effort to get along, and saying to them, "We are going to remove further from you that area that you can move into to help yourself."

I think this is inequitable taxation. I think this is inequitable as far as the school districts are concerned I cannot be for this legislation and I ask my colleagues to be against it unless some other bills are introduced, which could go along with these, to provide the revenue that these bills are going to take away from these areas.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, as we stated here last week, these bills are keyed into the Federal legislation, known as the Keogh Bill, and, as we also said last week, the Federal legislation could pass while we are out of Session and we would not be prepared for it by this type of tax relief to this type of trust. However, I don't recall that any such argument was raised against the elimination from taxation of this type of security in trust which were established for employee benefits, and I am sure that the amount of money in this type of trust would be far, far less than the amount of money included in the employee type.

So, Mr. President, my suggestion is that these bills be passed on the Calendar and sent to committee in the House, and if the Federal legislation is passed, I am sure that the committee in the House will see the wisdom of passing these bills there.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to ask if anyone in this Senate can tell us the amount of money that this will cost the local areas if this legislation is enacted. My reason for requesting this information is that, as some of you remember, when the Federal Government originally considered the legislation which covered the local health plans, we went ahead in this State and enacted the health plans. Some of the counties undertook, under this Act, to further fulfill their obligations under this plan, and this is now costing the State a great deal of money. Of course, the gimmick in the story is that the Federal Government never did enact this legislation, enabling these areas to do it, and we now find ourselves faced, in the counties, with providing money for these local areas which have seen fit to go ahead, based on what the Federal Government and the Federal Congress were going to do and never saw fit to act upon.

Now are we again doing this type of thing and again getting into the position where our local areas perhaps are not going to get this money back, and taking away this area into which they can move?

Now I would like to find out if anyone on the other side, or anybody in this Senate, knows how much this will cost the local areas, and how much we should provide for this in the budget to take care of these areas that are losing this revenue.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I am sure the Senator did not wish a definitive answer to such a question because I know that he realizes, as well as everybody realizes, that there is no possible answer to it. Nobody knows who many of these trusts would be established, or how many of these employee benefit trusts would be established, under this legislation or under the Smith-Keogh Act of the Federal Congress. Therefore, Mr. President, I do not believe that the gentleman expected to get an answer when he asked the question.

Mr. President, answering the other statement made by the Minority Leader, it is equally apparent that even though the Federal legislation might not pass, this might be a laudable result but I am quite certain that these bills will not pass if the Federal Act does not pass also.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not want to get into a political argument here, but I hope it is just a coincidence that last week we removed the wage tax and this week we are in the Philadelphia area, and some of the other areas that use it, and we are passing legislation to take away the tax on personal property which the city of Philadelphia and the school districts in that area have come to look to as a means of providing revenue for them.

I hope this is just a coincidence and not a pattern or course of conduct.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I assure the gentleman that it is purely a coincidence.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I wish to draw to the Senate's attention at this time the fact that when we passed a series of Acts here before, removing taxes from the counties and also concerning retirement, each time we asked, "How much does this cost?" we were not told how much it would cost. They said, "No, we do not have an answer for it."

The answer is that any Act that is passed, the consequences of it should be studied. Tables are available for life insurance, even though we do not know who is going to die. However, we know a certain number should die, and certainly there are figures—and I have seen them—and certainly the other side of the aisle have looked at them, too. I assumed that they would have looked at them before they proposed this legislation, and certainly it is our duty to look at the amount of taxes which we are removing from the various subdivisions of the Commonwealth when we take action.

The second thing I say to you—and I say it to the Majority Leader with all respect and humility—is that we were promised, when we sent things to the House, and I can mention them by name if he cares for me to do so, that they would be held, but they were passed. The best way to insure what you have promised, which is that this will await Federal action, is to hold it in this Body until such time as we are called upon and there is a need for it.

I notice on the Calendar today, even on Second Reading, that we are trying to anticipate even constitutional amendments. The fact that we are now trying to anticipate legislation before there is a need for it is, indeed, not only a waste of time, but a waste of speculation. Particularly, the sin of spending money or removing available taxes when you don't know how much it is going to cost the body of this Commonwealth is something that should not be undertaken lightly by this Senate.

For that reason, and that reason alone, I will vote "no" at this time.

Mr. MULLIN. Mr. President, I do not see any reason why, because the Federal Government is going to exempt some personal property for retirement purposes from taxation, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has to follow suit. The Federal Government has many inequitable exemptions and it has plenty of money to operate with, but the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and its subdivisions certainly are very short of operating funds.

Therefore, I intend to vote against this bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—28

Berger,	Fleming,	Mallery,	Van Sant,
Blass,	Harney,	Pechan,	Wade,

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

REASON FOR VOTE

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I would like to put into the record my reasons for voting "no" on this particular piece of legislation, if I have your permission.

The PRESIDENT. Do you wish to state your reasons at this time, Senator Lane?

Mr. LANE. Yes, if I may, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair hears no objection. You may proceed.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, the reason I voted "no" in regard to this particular legislation is because, under the present law, the counties are now in a financial strait jacket. If the time would ever come when this Legislature would permit the county governments to set the millage on personal property like they do on real property, I would have voted for this legislation. However, this takes away a considerable sum of money from the various counties, and actually, right now, the counties need the money.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 829, entitled:

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MULLIN. Mr. President, I desire to have my vote against this bill recorded since this is one of the many instances of greasing the fat hog, which seems to be so popular with the Majority Party in this Senate. I wish to vote against this bill.

SECOND READING CALENDAR

BILL ON SECOND READING AMENDED

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 11 1947 (P. L. 565) entitled "World War II Veterans' Compensation Act" extending the time during which applications may be filed for veterans' compensation and making an appropriation.

The first section was read and agreed to.

Mr. MAHADY offered the following amendments:

Amend Sec. 2, page 3, line 2, by striking out "Section 2 The Sum Of Forty-One."

Amend Sec. 2, page 3, by inserting between lines 2 and 3, indented as for a paragraph: "Section 2. The sum of forty-one."

Amend Bill, page 3, by inserting after line 12: "Section 3. This act shall take effect immediately."

They were agreed to.

The section was agreed to as amended.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time, as amended,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading, as amended?

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I move that House Bill No. 1, on second reading, as amended, be placed on the Second Reading Postponed Calendar.

Mr. BLASS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like someone to tell me, as a point of information, why this bill is being put on the Postponed Calendar.

The PRESIDENT. Will Senator Berger permit himself to be questioned?

Mr. BERGER. I certainly will, Mr. President.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to know, as a point of information, why this bill is being put on the Postponed Calendar.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, the reason this bill is being put on the Postponed Calendar is that it has been on the Calendar for a long time and we are not ready to pass it, as yet. It has just been amended today, and it has to be polled everyday for the Caucus calendar and it would repose more comfortably on the Second Reading Postponed Calendar.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman, and hope that the bill does repose just as easily on the Second Reading Postponed Calendar. However, I think it would repose a lot better on the Third Reading Calendar tomorrow morning, if it had an opportunity to do so.

I think this is necessary legislation to complete the World War II bonus distribution, and that is the reason I am asking that it be moved along in the general channels of legislation. It is a House Bill, and it passed the House at quite an early date. Unless there is some compelling reason to hold up this bill, I think it should receive immediate action or some action.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, to amplify my answer to the gentleman, I will say that there is some question in the minds of some of the Senators as to why it will take about $41,000 to process about four or five applications. When we find that out, I am sure we will be ready to move the bill.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not want to delay unduly the vote on this important measure. I think that the $41,000 will only take care of a few applications, cannot be used for any other purpose and I am sure it will be returned to the General Fund.

I feel that rather than make the bold statement that the $41,000 will only take care of a few applications, we really should try to ascertain how many applications are pending. I do not think that anyone sitting on the other side would like to deprive anyone of receiving what is justly due him, or what we have indicated by law is due him, just because there is not enough money to process his application.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the affirmative.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 141, Printer's No. 489, on second reading, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 523, on second reading, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 1 1929 (P. L. 905) entitled "The Vehicle Code" authorizing councils in cities of the first class to regulate the speed of motor vehicles using certain streets and highways within such cities. be recommitted to the Committee on Highways.

Mr. BLASS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, before, when I stated that it was merely a coincidence that one bill follows after another here, which seems rather—I would not say it is discriminatory against Philadelphia, but it just seems to completely do away with some of its rights and prerogatives. I fail to see that after the third bill is recommitted, it could even be a coincidence. I am beginning to think that this is by design.

How Senate Bill No. 523 will upset anyone is beyond my comprehension. I believe I spoke to the Chairman of the Committee on Highways, and went through this matter with him rather thoroughly. I do not understand how letting the city of Philadelphia regulate its own streets and the speed on those streets can possibly affect the rest of the Commonwealth or in any way have anything to do with it.

Maybe it is a dubious impression that I am under, but I was under the impression that Philadelphia had home rule. I do not see where this is inconsistent with its having home rule, if it can provide for the speed which people can travel on the highways or streets going into and out of Philadelphia. We have even concerned ourselves with the limited access highways and we are even concerned that we do not touch any of the highways which go through the city and, therefore, we have nothing to do with that at all.

I believe, if you look at the bill, you will see that this is all subject to the approval of the Department of Highways. I cannot understand how, by having our City Council in the city of Philadelphia take care of a matter which is purely a Philadelphia matter, this can possibly upset the over-all picture in the Commonwealth or how this could be of great concern or of a great moment to the rest of the citizens of this Commonwealth.

If someone can answer that, I would be very pleased to hear from them.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I assure the gentleman, again, that this is purely coincidental.

The opinion of a number of the people discussing this bill appeared to be that it would conflict with the regulatory measures of the Vehicle Code to permit one municipality to set up its own regulations as to the speed and so forth upon its streets. They said that it quite likely could be extended to second class, third class, second class A, boroughs, townships and they might, with justification, ask for the same privilege.

However, Mr. President, I want to assure the gentleman that I know that the committee will give this further study. If they find that it does not conflict seriously with the provisions of the Vehicle Code, they will undoubtedly cause its reappearance upon our calendar at an early date.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I was listening very carefully to what the gentleman said. I would like to know when this reappearance is going to be. I do not hope that we are going to be here a long time, but I would like to point out that this bill was read for the first time on June 30, 1959. It was referred to committee back on March 31, 1959.

The bill is rather simple. I do not think it would take a great deal of reading or a great deal of investigation to come to a conclusion, in order to approve or disapprove this matter.

As a matter of fact, I had the President of our City Council present in this Chamber last week and he spoke to the Chairman of the Committee on Highways, Senator Wade. He went through this matter with him quite carefully. I, therefore, cannot understand what is causing the confusion. If the Chairman of the Highways Committee will tell me when he is going to have his meeting, in order for me to be present and bring whatever experts he might need to go through this matter, I shall be most happy to do so.

This bill has been on our Calendar for quite some time and has received little or no study. Now it is being sent back to committee, summarily, without any further ado.

I think there has been very little done in the way of taking care of some of the problems which we, in the big city, face. Other than Pittsburgh, Philadelphia is really the big city in this Commonwealth. If it is the desire of this Body to punish the city of Philadelphia because it happens to be a large city, I think this is as good a way to do it as any. This, along with the other measures that have been taken, is a good beginning. I do not see that this, particularly, will help the problem. I think if the people who live in and around the surrounding areas of Philadelphia were to give this matter some thought, they would see that this was for their own safety and their own welfare. Unfortunately or fortunately, as they see fit, some of the people must come into the city of Philadelphia to transact some of their business and even earn a livelihood there. I cannot see how this will militate against anything they want to do. I cannot see how this will militate against any of the problems which they might have in their own local communities. If they saw fit in the borough, township or any other type of municipality to take such stands that they felt were desirous in helping their own situation, I do not see how we could do anything except to vote for it to help them. I cannot understand how, by passing this type of legislation, it will militate against them, except that it will help the city of Philadelphia and that might be in its disfavor.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I do wish the city of Philadelphia, through its spokesman, were not quite so sensitive. As a matter of fact, I think that the reasons which were given for recommitting this bill were very fair reasons.

In addition, Mr. President, there is no provision in the bill whereby the public would have any notice of any difference between the regulations and the laws of Philadelphia and the regulations and the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, under which they customarily travel. If the Senator could prepare some amendments which would provide for adequate notice as to how people would be informed of the differences, quite likely this bill would be acceptable. I have no particular criticism of the bill, but if those changes were to be put into it, I am sure, as I said before, that it would be carefully considered by the committee.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I think that problem is a rather simple one, without my putting any amendments into the bill. Most streets are posted.

One of the problems which this bill is addressing itself to—and I would like to bring this very respectfully to your attention—is that there are many people who receive tickets in the city of Philadelphia, with a notation on the tickets which say, "Too fast for conditions." This is not only confined to the people who live in Philadelphia. That is a punishable offense. It is one which is reported up here at the State Capitol. It also goes toward any individual who may be in jeopardy of losing his licenses. This may be the third offense that causes him to lose his license. If those streets and areas were posted properly and everyone would note this, the policeman or the low enforcement officer would have to state what the speed was, in order to indicate why he considered it too fast for conditions. As it is now, all you have is a conclusion or an opinion by an officer. This officer may or may not come to the right conclusion as a result of what he saw.

This would only help to further define and clarify what the situation is today in that area.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, this may not be just exactly what is in this bill, but I just want to say to the Members of the Senate, on both sides, that in the congested areas of all of our cities, countless accidents are occurring day after day. I do not mean that they just occur on the thoroughfares and the highways which go through the cities. I am talking about the side streets. As of today, as you know, there are cars parked along the streets, one after another. If we do not do something to cut down the speed on these side streets, we are victimizing our young people. No matter how strenuous the parents work on these children to keep them from darting out in the streets, they will do it for their ball or on their tricycle or something else, no matter where it be.

I have several letters here from the President Judge of the Orphans Court back home. I have two bills in my desk and I am having a third one drawn, drawing attention to the fact that we must do something to give the local officials the power to regulate the speed on side streets. I am not talking now about Fairmount Park, in Philadelphia, or Fifth Avenue, in Pittsburgh. I am talking about Fisk Street, Seneca Street or any of the side streets. We must give these borough councils or township officials power to regulate the speed on these side streets in order to save the youth of our Country.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I should like to call the Senate's attention to a clerical error on page 2 of this bill, at line 15. It reads as follows:

" . . . but immediately succeeding such ruling the official stenographer shall not . . ."

"Note" is the word intended and, as printed, it is misspelled. It is spelled "n-o-t" in the bill.

I believe calling this to the attention of the Senate in this way will obviate the necessity of a formal amendment. The word should be "n-o-t-e," on line 15.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, Senator Silvert's observation is entirely correct. I suggest to the Senator that we let the bill pass and amend it on Third Reading.

MOTION TO POSTPONE BILL

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I move that this bill be placed upon the Second Reading Postponed Calendar. I cannot see, even if you pass this, what effect it would have. It is certainly news to me that you can amend the Constitution and say that a law passed prior to the amendment, which was unconstitutional, is now applicable. We are certainly standing on our heads and acting like Alice-in-Wonderland in this matter. I do think that we are so premature that this is not even a bill which is up to the dignity of this Senate.

Mr. President, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee, who reported House Bill No. 1028 and House Bill No. 1029, why there is a hurry on these two bills.

The PRESIDENT. Will Senator Berger permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I am not the chairman of the committee, but I will. I yield to Senator Wagner.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Wagner, will you permit yourself to be interrogated?

Mr. WAGNER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I want to know why these two bills, first, are considered necessary and, second, why is there such a hurry for them.

Mr. WAGNER. Mr. President, I am not sufficiently familiar with the bills to debate them and I do not think we need debate them on Second Reading. However, I might throw a little light on the subject.

Both of these bills amend the School Code so that we can set up the machinery to implement the constitutional amendment which will be voted on in November. House Bill No. 1028 amends the Public School Code of 1949 to increase the borrowing power of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh from two to five per cent, and the borrowing power of other school districts up to fifteen per cent, with the approval of the electorate.

In House Bill No. 1029, the Municipal Borrowing Law is amended, the Act of 1941, to make the Municipal Borrowing Law conform to the Public School Code. Then the school districts of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh will have the authority to borrow up to five per cent under the Municipal Borrowing Law.

This has to be done, and it cannot very well be done, Mr. President, between Sessions. The constitutional amendment to which the Senator refers, which has passed two Sessions of the Legislature, will be on the ballot in November. This legislation will set up the machinery which is necessary to carry on the program. It cannot wait until the next Session of the Legislature. That is why, in the bill, it is stated that this legislation shall apply in Article IX, Section 8, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, as amended, to permit the increase of the debt limit of school districts.

When I say I am not in a position to debate the bill, I mean, I do not know; I am not a lawyer. I have not had legal counsel as to whether we can pass this constitutional amendment and go into this without this legislation.

However, certainly the people who are most affected and the people who are most eager to take advantage of this constitutional amendment are persuaded—I am talking particularly about the school people in Philadelphia—that this legislation is a must at this Session.

MOTION TO POSTPONE BILL WITHDRAWN

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, in that case, I withdraw my motion, with the proviso that before we consider this bill on Third Reading, we take up the matter with the Attorney General to see if this would be in order.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading, as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, a few minutes ago when I was talking about the opposition sending Senate Bill No. 543 back to committee, I spoke about the restraint that we must use in the municipalities to halt the killing of adults and children on side streets in the various municipalities. I want to read an article from today's Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, of this morning. It says:

"Residential Area Speed Cuts Proposed. Judge Boyle Starts Campaign Against Pedestrian Deaths.

"President Judge Hugh C. Boyle of Orphans Court has begun a campaign to reduce speed limits in residential sections of Pennsylvania's cities, boroughs and townships.

"Judge Boyle, who lives at 5550 Bryant Street, East End, was shocked into action recently when, from his front porch, he saw an auto critically injure a three-year-old boy.

"He has written State Senator Joseph Barr and several Representatives" proposing legislation permitting local authorities to reduce speed limits to 10 or 15 miles an hour in residential districts.

"Under the State motor vehicle code, streets not posted with traffic signs have an automatic speed limit of 35 miles an hour. Judge Boyle said yesterday he doesn't think cars need be driven more than 10 or 15 miles an hour unless they are on through highways or main streets.

"To buttress his argument, Judge Boyle pointed out that of 25 persons killed in traffic in Pittsburgh this year, 16 have been pedestrians. Of the 16, four were children from two to six years of age.

"Under Judge Boyle's proposal only municipal officials, familiar with residential streets, would be authorized to cut speed limits. In some municipalities, among them Edgewood and Wilkesburg, authorities have created numerous stop signs, which have the effect of reducing speeds."

I would ask that the Republicans, at their Caucus tomorrow, see if they cannot change their action on Senate Bill No. 523.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I read the same article in this morning's Pittsburgh paper and was impressed by it, and thought of this bill which we were considering this afternoon. I was very clear when I stated that if some provisions were placed in this bill, somewhat along the lines of what Senator Barr has just read from the paper, whereby the Vehicle Code might be amended to provide that the municipality could reduce its speed limits on certain side streets, the bill would be very good, and that the committee, undoubtedly, would consider the bill further in the light of those suggestions and would consider it favorably.

Consequently, Mr. President, there is no question that we are just as interested in this proposition as we can be, and, if it is possible to write a bill which will carry out the suggestions made, we intend to do so. Of course, we will use the vehicle that was before us here in the form of the bill that was recommitted to the Highways Committee for that purpose.

Mr. BARR. Thank you, Mr. Berger. I realize that there may be some things in the bill which are objectionable to you. However, as I said earlier, I have two bills in my drawer now prepared on the subject, and I am having a third one prepared. I am going to see my friend, Bob Fleming, and I am sure he will co-sponsor them with me.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I listened with a great deal of interest to Senator Barr's reading of the article and the recommendations made by President Judge Hugh Boyle of the Orphans Court of Allegheny County. I am in complete sympathy with the objectives that have been outlined by Judge Boyle, and I want to assure all the Members of the Senate that I am practically certain that every Member sitting in this Body would like to do something, particularly, to protect the children who play on the residential streets in all of the sixty-seven counties.

It is my hope that the bill which was recommitted today, Senate Bill No. 523, can be amended in order to give the municipal authorities in townships, boroughs, third class cities, second class cities and first class cities the right to regulate speed down to ten and fifteen miles, if necessary. I think it is admirable legislation. I think it should be given the earnest consideration not only of the State, but of the House of Representatives.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. RIGBY, A. W. JOHNSON, McCANN and Mrs. REIBMAN. RESOLUTION No. 99.

In the House of Representatives, July 28, 1959.

The present crisis in education will not subside in the foreseeable future unless clear and precise investigation into the causes therefor are uncovered, and workable plans are made to avoid duplication of past mistakes in the future conduct of the educational system within this Commonwealth.

In order to formulate far reaching plans for public education, it is necessary to have a fair and impartial study made by experts in the field of education; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this House of Representatives hereby requests the Honorable David L. Lawrence, Governor of Pennsylvania, to appoint a committee consisting of leaders and other experts in the field of education to study the following problems:

(1) What are our schools costing us now, what may they cost next year or the year after, and what must we expect to pay for good public education a generation or more hence?

(2) How can the cost of operating our public schools be reduced without materially affecting their ability to educate our children?

(3) How should the cost of public education be divided among the people who live in the Commonwealth? Should a taxpayer's contribution be based on his income, his spending, his real estate holdings, the size of his family, or on some other basis?

(4) What kind of new techniques are being developed throughout the Nation to make teaching swifter and easier and learning commensurately more economical and effective?

(5) Have new social and economic factors, many of them emerging since World War II, created a need for a new type of education for some segments of our society? and be it further

Resolved, That this House of Representatives hereby requests the Department of Public Instruction, the Pennsylvania State University, the various State Teachers' Colleges, and other colleges and universities within this Commonwealth, the various school districts throughout the Commonwealth, and the various educators devoting their time and efforts to the various fields of learning to co-operate with and render such aid and assistance as may be necessary to the Governor's committee appointed as recommended herewith; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee is hereby requested to make a report of its findings and recommendations to the Governor and to the General Assembly of Pennsylvania on or before February 1, 1961; and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Honorable David L. Lawrence, Governor of Pennsylvania.

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection

Senate Bill No. 968, Printer's No. 1108,
was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

STATEMENT BY THE MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have permission to speak to the House for a moment before we start our first roll call since one of our Committees is still out.

A few weeks ago the bi-partisan tax committee appointed by the Speaker, composed of four Democrat Members and four Members on the Republican side of the House, met and worked on a tax program. Out of that came the present tax bill on the calendar now known as House Bill No. 1285.

On that date the bill was not called to a vote. Since then many words of wisdom and debate have passed in this House and through the newspapers of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. For the record, officially, we are now ready to talk about House Bill No. 1285. The gentleman from Armstrong, Mr. Helm, stated they would be ready to talk at the time the Democratic side had its house in order.

Our house is in order. We are ready to meet with you at any hour, any minute, today, tonight or in the morning to talk about the tax program, the means of financing the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We extend a public invitation for the bi-partisan tax committee to meet to discuss whether it will be 1285 or some other tax measure, so that we may proceed from this point. We believe we can solve this tax problem in the next few days, and we certainly wish the opportunity to be granted for our Democrat Members to meet with your Members regarding this tax problem.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HELM asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, Members of the House, I am very, very happy to hear the Majority party say they now have their house in order. I only hope the gentleman from Greene, the Majority Leader, knows whereof he speaks, and does not receive the type of treatment he received just a couple of weeks ago, because I believe the committee of eight that met at that time met in good faith and tried to work out a program that could be passed in this House.

I say to the gentleman from Greene, in answering his invitation to once again meet, that the four members of the conference committee on this side of the House are ready and willing to sit down and once again discuss taxes. Whether we come up with the same program or another one is something that will have to be determined by the committee. I trust and hope we can set a time that will be agreeable mutually, to have these meetings start, and come up with some kind of a solution to this stalemate.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I should like to notify the Members that we intend to work through until 7:30 Daylight Saving Time. Many have asked about when they would get to eat this evening.

Our plans for tomorrow call for from 12:00 noon until 7:00 o'clock tomorrow night, seven straight hours, with a break for a bite to eat.

Bills are coming up which are controversial, and we will continue to move on the calendar as far as we can go. I would ask that once the roll calls start on the bills the membership stay with us here in the House right through to 7:30 this evening.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 907, entitled:

An Act amending the "Liquor Code," approved April 12, 1951 (P. L. 90) prohibiting the purchase or possession of liquor or malt or brewed beverages by minors over the age of seventeen years.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. SCHAAF. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Liquor Control.

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection,

House Bill No. 988, Printer's No. 1092, and

House Bill No. 1191, Printer's No. 967,

were passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1379, entitled:

An Act providing for the assignment of counsel to indigent persons accused of crime.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate one of the sponsors, Mr. Goldstein or Mr. Schwartz.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Goldstein, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, this bill provides that indigent persons accused of crime shall be advised of the right to counsel, and shall have counsel appointed for them if they so request it. Who interprets that word "indigent," the courts?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I would say the courts.

The purpose of this bill is to put into law what the courts of this Commonwealth now do as a matter of practice. The Supreme Court of the United States has stated that every defendant shall have the opportunity to have counsel. To make certain that the record shows they have such an opportunity, Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Wilt and I co-sponsored the bill. It is no burden on any taxpayer. In the larger counties the Legal Aid Society takes care of it, and in the smaller counties I am certain there are volunteer lawyers who will do the work on behalf of the courts.

Mr. McCORMACK. Then the Court of Quarter Sessions is to determine whether or not a particular person is indigent, is that correct?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. That is correct, yes.

Mr. McCORMACK. Then if the lower court has so determined, and there is a later habeas corpus petition filed after a conviction where the court did not appoint a person because it found he was not indigent, would you say that was permitted, or that would be grounds for issuing a writ?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I think the bill reads that you give him the opportunity to get counsel, and having been given an opportunity, if he rejects it then his rights have been protected.

Mr. McCORMACK. No, sir, I mean when the court refuses to appoint counsel because the court feels the person is not indigent. Would that person then have a right to appeal from that finding of fact that he was not indigent?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. You have raised a good question. When the bill was originally sponsored by me, it did not have the word "indigent" in it, and why that was put in I do not know. However, I think it is a good bill.

Mr. McCORMACK. I agree that it is a good bill.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I would prefer to have the word "indigent" out of the bill so as to cover any person who appeared before the court, whether he be rich or poor. Sometimes some wealthy people appear and because they are arbitrary they do not have a counsel and want to make their own defense. I would prefer to have the word "indigent" out of the bill, but it is in there. It is a step in the right direction, and therefore I think the bill ought to be passed. However, if we could have that word "indigent" removed, I think it would be a better bill.

Mr. McCORMACK. I see. The bill also provides that he shall be represented by counsel at every stage of the proceeding. I am wondering whether or not that could be clearer, to spell out "after indictment," so a person would not have the opportunity of later, on appeal or in an habeas corpus petition, saying that at the preliminary hearing before the magistrate he was not represented by counsel. It seems to me it could be avoided if the language were spelled out more clearly.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I think the intent of the bill is clear. It says "appears in court," and the second paragraph says "an indictable offense." It would have no application to a preliminary hearing, in my opinion.

Mr. McCORMACK. It says where a person is accused of an indictable offense or indictable crime. That refers to the type of crime for which the person is being held, or of which he is being accused, an indictable offense. Is that correct?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Well, the word "court" you understand does not mean a police magistrate or a squire, it means a judge in a court of record, and I think that is a reasonable interpretation.

Mr. McCORMACK. It does not say "a court of record," though.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. No, it does not.

Mr. McCORMACK. Well, do you think it should?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I think it would be a better bill if it said "a court of record," yes.

Mr. McCORMACK. Well, would you agree then, sir, to pass this over and try to put language in it that would prevent any later situations, giving rise to a writ of habeas corpus?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I have no objection. The original sponsor of the bill is Mr. Schwartz, of the city of Philadelphia, and if it is O.K. with him it is perfectly all right with me.

Mr. McCORMACK. I think it is a good bill, Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of it, but I think that it should be clarified as to the language.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be placed on the final passage postponed Calendar.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 1542, Printer's No. 969, and

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti, come to the desk? There are some-thirty bills that the Speaker is supposed to sign.

The Chair is requesting the gentleman from Cambria to preside.

Mr. LOPRESTI IN THE CHAIR.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE POSTPONED

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

Mrs. PASHLEY asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 3, line 9, by inserting after "once": "And provided further That upon full compliance with the applicable statutes, ordinances, rules, and regulations, a regular license shall be issued forthwith and immediately."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing.

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 268, Printer's No. 1123,

House Bill No. 322, Printer's No. 1161, and

House Bill No. 325, Printer's No. 999,

were passed over at the request of the SPEAKER pro tempore.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 409, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to article nine section one of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to exempt blind paraplegic and double or quadruple amputee veterans from the payment of certain real property taxes.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the Majority Leader.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, to House Bill 409, Printer's No. 1172, there are no amendments that I know of to the bill. If the Minority Leader has any, he has not indicated it. 409, therefore, is ready for passage. Is that right?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair's calendar indicated that there were amendments.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, we would like the bill passed over. We are getting the figures on the number of that type of person to whom that would be extended in the state, and I do not know if the information is now available. If you want to give it on the floor right now, that would be fine.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the question I asked was about amendments. We have all of the figures pertaining to this bill. Mr. Needham has available and is ready to give on the floor all the figures pertaining to 409.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. That is right. We have no amendments to the bill.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, let us proceed with House Bill 409 and let the figures be inserted into the record, so that we may vote on the bill.

Mr. EILBERG. Mr. Speaker, I do have the figures on this bill if I may have the opportunity to present them.

This bill was called to mind by the unfortunate situation of certain paraplegic veterans in this Commonwealth being given homes by the United States government especially equipped for their particular condition and then being in such a financial condition that they could not afford to pay the real estate taxes on the very properties given to them.

It seems, Mr. Speaker, if we are in a position to help people like this, we certainly should do so.

This bill, as amended and brought to the floor, in cases where you have amputees multiple amputees, or blind or praplegic veterans, that, if they own and occupy their homes and are in a condition of financial need as determined by the State Veterans' Commission, those veterans would be excluded from real estate taxes only.

Of course, this is in contradiction to the uniformity clause of the Constitution and, therefore, this bill would have to pass this Session and the next Session and be voted on by the people before it could be enacted into law.

Now as to the gentleman's question, I have obtained the following figures from Lieutenant Colonel William B. Freeland, Deputy Adjutant General for Veterans' Affairs, indicating that from the three VA Regional offices in the state that there are 268 eligible veterans in Philadelphia, 161 eligible veterans out of the Wilkes-Barre Regional Office, and 227 eligible veterans out of the Pittsburgh office, totaling 656 veterans who would possibly qualify under this piece of legislation.

This does not mean that for all these people of these offices the financial need would be present. This means that 656 persons around the state could possibly come within the bill. If we spread this top number, 656, around the state, assuming that all of them were to qualify, we would have a very small percentage of the population affected and the income of the various municipalities, borough and so forth, would be affected to a very minimum degree. I think under these circumstances this is a very good piece of legislation.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Agreeably to order,

An Act amending "The Administrative Code of 1929" (P. L. 177) requiring that a member of the State Board of Cosmetology be an owner of a school of Cosmetology.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. BOIES. Mr. Speaker, House Bill No. 1372, I think should have some kind of a prize as being the most ridiculous bill introduced in this Session. By the way, I hope the Members realize that this bill did not come out of the Professional Licensure Committee.

I know of no other examining board that permits anyone connected with a school to serve on the examining board. This bill would make it compulsory, mandatory, to put the owner of a school of Cosmetology on an examining board where they would examine candidates from their own school for licensure under the Board of Cosmetology.

I can think of nothing more ridiculous, or beyond the bounds of reason than to permit such a thing, let alone make it mandatory, and I ask the Members of the House to vote this bill down.

Mr. SILVERMAN. Mr. Speaker, on the contrary, I believe there is a member of a school on the Board at the present time. The Board has functioned very successfully, and I think it is part of the democratic process to have all walks of people represented. Practically every board has someone that does own a shop. I think on your barbering board, you have people who own barber shops, and there has been nothing wrong. As a matter of fact, the Board has functioned very successfully, and rather than the booby prize that the good Doctor suggests, I suggest that this House pass this bill.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question ,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

Our dear Father in Heaven, we thank Thee for Thy continual care and guidance in our lives. Thou art God and Ruler of the Universe and, yet, Thou dost condescend to look upon each individual one of us and help us in our problems. We pray that we may evermore rely on this help, so that when we come to a point in the day, or in our lives, when we just do not know which way to turn, may Thy Spirit guide us to turn to Thee, for Thou always dost have the right answer.

Bless our work today. Use us to do Thy will, to make life better and more liveable for all peoples. Then, some day, when we come to that mysterious door which leads to the eternal home, may we go with a feeling in our hearts that we have done the best that we could in the circumstances wherein we were, and that we can rest assured that Thou wilt be pleased with our work.

We ask it in Thy Holy Name. Amen.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 814, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 15, 1933 (P. L. 624) entitled as amended "Banking Code" further providing for making loans on the security of bonds or notes secured by mortgages or deeds of trust and judgments of record by banks and bank and trust companies.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, this is another one of those acts about which we spoke yesterday, and I believe it has been discussed here before. This bill is dependent upon legislation in Congress. I think it is the Brown Bill. We are again passing legislation in anticipation of what may or may not be done by Congress. I do not think this is good legislative procedure. I think we will be in Session long enough to accomplish our purpose.

For that reason, I ask that this bill be put on the Postponed Calendar. If that is not possible or if it is objected to, I then ask my colleagues to vote "no."

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, this bill does relate to Federal legislation, the bill in Congress known as the Brown Bill, which provides that national banks may do the same as is provided in this bill and as may be done by state banks.

The Brown Bill has passed the House of Representatives, and the best information that we have is that it will receive favorable consideration from the Senate Committee.

This being a Senate bill, I see no reason why it should not pass the Senate, pending the final passage of the Brown Bill.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to reiterate that the Brown bill may receive favorable consideration but, the question is, will it pass and become law? That is my question. We are sort of anticipating that type of action, which I do not think we have a right to do on a subject as important as this one.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, once again I would anticipate no great harm if this bill were to pass and the Brown Bill would not pass.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not want to continue this tennis match. However, I feel there are some implications in this legislation which are not altogether beneficial. I think most of the Members, as intelligent Legislators, would like to have an opportunity to look at the Federal Act when it is finally completed. I cannot tell whether bills, which pass the Senate, will be amended in the House, whether Senate amendments are acceptable to the House, and so on and so forth. I feel we have this problem in this type of legislation.

I therefore, ask my colleagues to vote "no" on this bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, how did Senator Silvert vote on this bill?

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I am sure that Senator Stiefel was not asleep this time.

The PRESIDENT. Perhaps it is just a desire to gain greater popularity for you, Senator.

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—32

Barr,	Flack,	Mallery,	Taylor,
Berger,	Fleming,	McMenamin,	Van Sant,

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 824, entitled:

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, yesterday I called the attention of the Senate to a misspelled word in line 15, page 2, of this bill, where the word was spelled "n-o-t," when it should have been spelled "n-o-t-e."

Senator Berger then suggested that he would not object to an amendment, on third reading. However, Senator Scott, who is an able parliamentarian, informed me that since the word was spelled properly in the original bill, no amendment is necessary. I am going to rely on Senator Scott's advice and in order to save the Commonwealth some money, I will not offer this amendment. I ask that the bill go through as is.

The PRESIDENT. I think there is no doubt but what that is good advice, Senator Silvert.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, this bill and the next two bills, Senate Bills Nos. 880 and 881, are all concerned with a similar subject; namely, the police and firemen's fund in the city of Pittsburgh. It somehow escapes me how this Body can assume to act on behalf of a municipality without ascertaining what it might cost the municipality to do this job.

The bills, as drawn here, take little or no consideration of the previous Acts which were passed in the city. I believe the proponents of the bills, if they have gone into the proper research, will find that only two years ago the parties that are involved in this legislation were given an estimate. There is no one in this room who is against police or firemen receiving a greater amount in pension funds or receiving a fair wage increase. However, that must be commensurate with what the city is able to pay. This legislation, if carried out, would cost the city in 1960 approximately $1,400,000.

I would like to ask the sponsors of this bill, if either of them will be kind enough to tell this Body before we vote on this legislation, where this money will come from or how the necessary funds will be provided to carry out the provisions, and upon getting that information, I will be very happy to vote on it myself. I am in favor of this legislation. I do not think there is anyone in this room who is against it. However, we cannot merely legislate without providing the wherewithal to take care of the particular project or problem in mind.

The persons involved here, I think, should look over the entire situation, not only for the city of Pittsburgh but for all of the communities that have this problem.

I would also like to point out that it was not too long ago that the cities, instead of having the personnel that are involved in this legislation pay a certain proportion of their salaries which was based on actual figures to cover this result, were told that the total amount they would have to pay in any given month would not exceed $25 a month. I am sure that all of us realize that when the total amount was cut down for a proportionate share to a ceiling, someone was going to have to make up this difference and the city has been doing just that.

I think, unless this is a politically inspired bill,—and I certainly hope that no one is playing politics with the police, firemen or any other people—that they would come to the conclusion that the purpose and purport of this bill is to not only look after the people and to pass this legislation, but to implement it, which you are not doing by not providing the necessary funds to go with this bill.

If the sponsors of the bill will introduce another bill to provide the money and the necessary funds to do this job, I do not think there is anyone here who would not vote for this bill. Lacking that, I would ask my colleagues to vote "no" on this legislation, not because we do not want to help the police and firemen, not because we do not feel they do not need help, but because there is no means to provide what is trying to be done here.

I will admit this is a good year for this type of legislation. However, the timing is a little bit bad as far as the Legislature itself is concerned, at a time, as the Chairmen of the Appropriations and Finance Committees of this Body will tell you, when we are looking for money from many, many sources to try to make up the deficit we already have and to meet our programs as already set out or mandated by Legislatures which preceded us.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, this bill relates only to an increase of the pensions of those police and firemen who retired prior to January 1, 1956. It does not change the current retirement schedule whatever for these categories.

We have consistently provided for increases in the pensions of people who find themselves retired at a time when the payments were comparatively low and the cost of living has increased a great deal. I do not know where the Senator got his figures, but the figures that I received indicate the increases provided in this bill amount to about ten per cent. They would cost in the police fund about $59,464 a year, and in the firemen's fund, $63,309.60. That is a far cry from $1,400,000, Mr. President. If I am in error, I would ask that the gentleman correct me on that because the figures I have would indicate no such great expenditure on the part of the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. President, be that as it may. The increases here are modest. They are in line with what should be done for people in this category who have reached the superannuation age and have retired on pension, and find themselves in a difficult position because of the lack of funds to maintain the ordinary standards of living.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, the Minority Leader, the gentleman from Philadelphia, talked about the problem of where the money is coming from. I recall that we just passed Senate Bill No. 321, pertaining to the Register of Wills' salary in Philadelphia. I am sure that Senator Weiner voted for that bill. I wonder who is going to pay that money and whether it is not better to pay pensions for these firemen and policemen rather than raising the salary of some elected official from the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, if I remember correctly, each week, the gentleman from Lebanon gets into one non sequitur after another. How this problem in Philadelphia relates to this pension bill is beyond me. However, for his edification, I would like to point out that the Register of Wills is not only a fee office; it is partially a salary office, which we voted for these other counties as well.

I also would like to take this opportunity—I was going to save it until a later time—to point out that this gentleman, who just spoke, wrote an article in one of his local newspapers which was entitled: "The City Areas Take Most of the Tax Money." He went on to point out a number of these non sequiturs which he says here and, of course, nobody is there to talk about these articles. On one hand, he said the city is taking most of the tax money; on the other hand, he is voting for all kinds of problems of the cities where they have to take more tax money in order to pay for them. If that is consistency, I would like to know more about it.

One other thing, which I would like to point out to the Majority Floor Leader, is a letter that I have here from the city of Pittsburgh. I would assume that they have gone into this problem rather extensively, but I will not burden you by reading the entire facts and figures. However, their statement is that in their 1959 budget, they appropriated $800,000 for the Municipal Pension Fund; $325,000 for the Firemen's Fund; and nothing for the Policemen's Fund. If this ten per cent increase goes through for the retired employees—if you will bear with me and check my arithmetic—they claim that the Municipal Fund would cost them approximately $1,000,000. This may be about $960,000 or somewhere about that figure, but it amounts to approximately $1,000,000. The Firemen's Fund would cost them $300,000 and the Policemen's Fund would cost them $100,000. The way the Democrats add, this comes out to $1,400,000. If this becomes effective as of January 1, 1960, they feel it would cost them $1,520,000. They would have to come up with $120,208 more, depending upon the effective date of this budget. They feel that in 1961, you have to add the sum of $111,556 to this, and in 1962, $154,234.

Might I point out to the gentleman from Lebanon—who I know can do arithmetic a little bit better than he does the syntax of sentences and some of his logical thinking—that this think goes up geometrically and not arithmetically? What you are getting is an older population. According to geriatrics, as I understand it, if we continue the way we are going and keeping our older people alive, you are going to have more of these people drawing on this fund for a longer period of time.

Some of the gentlemen on the other side, who are more familiar with insurance than I am, will tell you that any fund which does not depend upon somebody paying something into it and has money drawn out all the time is doing to require somebody making some contribution. Obviously, under the situation as it exists in Pittsburgh today, the maximum that anyone will pay in any one month is $25. If you subsequently increase the amount that you are going to allow people to withdraw and not increase the amount they put in, where is this extra money going to come from? Who is going to pay this amount of money? I have yet to hear an answer from the gentleman from Lebanon or from the sponsors of the bill.

I am sorry that I did not have the exact date at the time I spoke about this earlier, but I have since learned that it was May 15, 1957 when all the persons involved in this bill were given a twenty per cent increase. With that in mind, we are now back here again, two years later, asking for another ten per cent increase so that in three years, it amounts to a thirty per cent increase. I am sure that none of the gentlemen sitting on the other side would vote for that for themselves or any of the State employees at this moment. Perhaps, four or eight years from now, they may think differently on this problem. However, at this moment, I do not think any of them could be enticed to vote in that direction or area.

I would also like to know from the sponsors of the bill—one of whom I can speak for very freely—whether they have discussed this matter with the people of Pittsburgh. I would like to know whether they have taken this matter up with some of the authorities in order to have both sides of the issue presented to us so that we can act on it in an intelligent manner. I know that one of the gentlemen is from the far eastern section of the Commonwealth and, probably, did not have an opportunity to do so. I am just wondering whether the sponsor of the bill would give us the benefit of any advice he may have.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I will be glad to give a little help on the figures. Unless I am grossly misinformed, the following figures relate to the Fire Pension Fund. The estimated pension for 1959, for 296 members retired prior to January 1, 1956, is $594,648. A ten per cent increase is $59,464.80. The same is applicable to the policemen; for 321 members, who retired prior to January 1, 1956,—and they are the only ones who are being affected by this bill—it costs, under present law, $633,096. A ten per cent increase amounts to $63,309.60. On the retired municipal employees, 348 members received an increase of $10 per month. The cost would be $3,480, monthly, or $41,760, annually. I cannot find $1,400,000 there.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Potter, Mr. Berger.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Potter, Mr. Berger, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BERGER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, will the gentleman give us the total amount that this will have cost, when those figures which he read are added together?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I will be very happy to do the gentleman's work for him, but I read the figures and I think he can add as well as I can.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, would the gentleman be so kind as to give the Members of the Senate just the three figures, please?

Mr. BERGER. The three figures are as follows: Firemen's Pension Fund, $59,464.80; in the Municipal Employees' Retirement Fund, the figure is $41,760; and in the Police Pension Fund, the figure is $63,309.60.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, do not the three figures just stated, in fact, total more than $164,000?

Mr. BERGER. Will you please repeat the question?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, do not these figures, just given to us by the gentleman, total, in the aggregate, $164,000?

Mr. BERGER. I do not know, Mr. President. I did not add them, but I assume that the gentleman's addition is correct. I know he is an excellent mathematician.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to inform the gentleman that flattery will get him everywhere. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman for his courtesy.

Mr. President, I think the question which is before us is,—assuming that my figures are incorrect and the gentleman's figures are absolutely correct—where do we get the $164,000 which the city of Pittsburgh is going to need, in addition to all the other problems they now have and in addition to all the other moneys they are going to need. Is there an appropriation bill that will follow these bills?

The PRESIDENT. Would the gentleman from Potter, Mr. Berger, care to answer that question?

Mr. BERGER. Was that an interrogation addressed to me, Mr. President?

Mr. WEINER. I would like to have an answer to that question. It does not necessarily have to be answered by the Majority Floor Leader. I would like to hear from anyone who feels that he has introduced such a bill or can tell us about a similar bill.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I would assume that the city of Pittsburgh, which appropriates money to this fund on the basis of making up anything additional over $25 per month by the employees to the present fund, would make an appropriation of that amount into the Employees' Retirement Funds, the various ones being the Police, Fire and Municipal.

I also would like to point out, Mr. President, that under the present law, which is not changed relating to those who are employed in these categories, that is the maximum amount which is taken from their pay. However, a great many of these people, who retired before 1956, pair $40, $42 and $43 monthly out of their pay and they are getting less pension than the ones who are retired currently.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman. However, I believe, in my discussion of this bill, I pointed out to him that this amount was the amount which was set up by actuaries who had handled this fund. The reason they cut it from $42, or whatever the proportionate amount of their pay was, back to the $25 ceiling, is because the city was anxious to do something to help these people and were going it on that basis.

There are a few insurance men sitting on the other side who I think would be very glad to give their counsel. Would they explain to us, in the Senate, where the city is going to get the initial sum of $164,000 and, further, how can they tell us how many people are going to retire next year, the year after and the year after that, and that this amount of $164,000 will not remain static, but will continue on up, geometrically, as more and more people retire who have paid less and less into the fund?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, we are dealing with a present problem. What may happen in the future, as far as increases to the people who are retiring under the current bill are concerned, neither he nor I can answer, nor can anybody in this room, nor can the future Mayor of Pittsburgh.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, a few moments ago,—and I hate to bring up ancient history—we tried to peer into the future and find out what the United States Congress was going to do. I think it was resolved in favor that they were going to follow our precepts in this Legislature. We passed bills, based on what the Congress of the United States is going to do. If we can tell what such a static and stable Body is going to do, from day to day, and pass legislation based on what its precepts are, I am sure that some of the gentlemen on the other side, who know something about the insurance business, can tell us with a little more certainty how many people are going to retire and how much money it is going to cost. There are tables for this type of work. If we did not have such tables, we could not continue either in the Commonwealth or in the cities to conduct these retirement funds.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, this bill in no way would affect the problem just posed by the Minority Leader. The people who are retiring under the current bill certainly can be accurately estimated and probably the cost, under the present law, can be estimated. However, this bill has nothing to do with them. This bill is for people who retired prior to January 1, 1956. Their numbers are known and the exact cost can be computed as it has been in the figures I have stated.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not want to continue to delay the movement on these bills unduly. However, I do think that we are certainly taking a very narrow view of a problem that a municipality is going to have with this type of legislation.

I am just interested to know whether it is all right if we enact this type of legislation for some of the other communities, and for some of the other gentlemen sitting on the other side, so that their people can also have the benefit of this type of progressive legislation. I feel that if this type of thing is good for the city of Pittsburgh, it certainly should be good for the rest of the communities. I think there are some people on the other side who might be interested in this type of legislation and who might be interested in putting in these bills. Maybe we should hold these bills over so that all these bills can ride together, and receive the same type of treatment in the House that these will get.

I am just wondering whether there is anybody here who would like to state his position in regard to this type of legislation, other than voting "aye."

The PRESIDENT. Are you asking that these bills be held over?

Mr. WEINER. No, Mr. President, I am not. I am just asking for that type of advice and counsel from the other side.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, there is an old axiom among scatter gun shooters that you do not take a shot at the flock. You must aim at the bird you are shooting at.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, at the rate we are shooting the birds, there is not much of a flock left.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Koprivier.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Koprivier, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Do you live in a second class city, Mr. Koprivier?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Thank God, no.

Mr. BARR. Do you have a bill there to take care of the retired firemen, policemen and municipal employees, such as this bill, in the city in which you live?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Yes, we have one and I have been trying to get someone to co-sponsor it with me for the last three weeks.

Mr. BARR. Where is it?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I have it. I am just waiting for an O. K. from someone else in the District or in the county. That is all.

Mr. BARR. What?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. In the county; I am waiting for an O. K. from another member of your party in the county. That is all. It is practically the same bill.

Mr. BARR. I would like to see it. If you will bring it to me—

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I will show it to you, Senator Barr. You can be sure of that.

Mr. BARR. I would like to see it now before I vote.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I do not have to do it now. It is getting late; not now.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I think the picnic will wait. I would like to see this bill. I do not believe in people from third class cities trying to legislate for second class cities.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Senator Barr, I do not want to make you late for your appointment and I do not want to take the time of the Senate to prolong the argument on these three bills. I can only say to you that just a week ago, you said we should take care of the bill on the Calendar, relating to the policeman who was dying in a Pittsburgh hospital and which would provide for the care of widows.

In taking care of one group of policemen who are trying to get pensions and in taking care of widows, why not take care of the older men? We are talking about old people, and taking care of the old people in Pennsylvania. These are old policemen and firemen who did a fine job over the years for Pittsburgh and now you are not trying to help them. You are trying to find excuses.

Those figures that Senator Weiner gave were fine figures, but they are Democratic figures and not Republican figures. That is the difference between the bills. That is all.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I may say that I cannot understand the gentleman at all, not one word he said. I wish he would speak a little more distinctly.

Mr. President, I was about to ask the gentleman if he would mind if these bills went over temporarily until I get a chance to read the bill he has over there, and then we can call these bills up for a vote later.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Senator Barr, I am sure you trust me that I will show you the bill. There is no sense in wasting all this time. We can always pass a bill. I think it is useless for you to stand here and try to commit me to hold them over. We have held them over now for three weeks.

Mr. BARR. I said temporarily, for today.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Your temporarily is like farmer's mile.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I do not think the gentleman has been reading the editorials that have been written by him in the Pittsburgh papers.

The PRESIDENT. One non sequitur follows another.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would just like to point out to the gentleman from Allegheny County, Senator Koprivier, that I did not use any figures, Democratic or Republican. I used the figures that I was given by the Majority Floor Leader.

My question to him, if he sees fit to answer it,—or he can take the Sixth Amendment if he likes, rather than the Fifth—is where is this money going to come from or how is he going to assume or provide for the city of Pittsburgh to take up this additional $164,000. If there is no desire on his part to do that, I think the best we can do is label this as a political measure to embarrass someone. I think if that is his purpose, I would say he has achieved it and I think he is entitled to a "well done."

I ask my colleagues to vote "no."

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, the figures that were given to the Minority Floor Leader were received from the heads of the various funds under discussion and, I believe, are accurate.

Furthermore, Mr. President, I think I will answer the question as to where the city of Pittsburgh is going to get the money by saying that they will probably get it from the same place they got it when the then mayor of Pittsburgh did not object to offering a twenty per cent increase in the pensions. I am given to understand that this was also approved, and the members of the pension funds were so notified that they would get this increase, and then that promise was repudiated.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, rather than prolong this any further, I never impuned the figures that the Majority Floor Leader gave me. I never said they were Democratic or Republican or any other kind of figures. I was using these figures. He said the figures I gave him were absolutely incorrect, which I do not believe.

Using those figures, I still have not heard from the sponsors of the bill where this money is going to come from. Suppose I were to point out, and suggest to the gentleman on the other side, that when this original twenty per cent increase was given to these people in this fund, they stated, as part of the program of getting these figures, that they would not be back again; that they were happy and satisfied with these figures, and that they thought it met some of their problems.

Not being able to do anything further in their own back yard, they have come to Harrisburg and asked us to legislate for them, which should primarily be a problem for Pittsburgh and not one for myself and others not from that area to be discussing. I think that is where it properly belongs. I think that we all believe that home rule is a desirable thing. This problem belongs in Pittsburgh and not here in the Legislature.

We are wrangling over people we do not know. We do not know their problems or anything about them. We are only trying to increase the amount of money they are getting without providing any means for giving it to them.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I think we are dealing with something about which quite a lot is known. It is this: These people did go to the city of Pittsburgh and they received an assurance that they would be supported in this legislation and would receive an increase in their pension fund. They wrote and informed their members that they had that assurance and, later on, the assurance was withdrawn.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Mr. President, I would like to inform the Minority Leader that at the present time, there is a little assessment program going on in Pittsburgh. We will not know until after the election what it is going to amount to in dollars and cents.

The wage tax bill will probably be raised one-half per cent after the election. It has been done before. This is just to give you an idea how the money will be raised to take care of the funds necessary for the increase in the pension. That is probably where it will come from. I am sure Senator Barr is aware of this.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Koprivier.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Koprivier, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WEINER. Senator Koprivier, if I understand you correctly, are you in favor of the people of Pittsburgh paying a higher rate of taxes than they now pay?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I never said that. Do not put words in my mouth, Senator Weiner.

Mr. WEINER. I am asking you a question. I am not putting any words in your mouth.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. No.

Mr. WEINER. No, what?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I am not in favor of them paying more taxes, no.

Mr. WEINER. All right. Then did I misunderstand that you said that you asked for a—I will let you confer with your counsel, if you like.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Go ahead, Senator Weiner.

Mr. WEINER. I would like to know if you stated that they were going to increase the taxes in Pittsburgh in the coming year?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I did not say that. I said they are reassessing Pittsburgh property now. I said in all probability, from the stories I hear, there will be quite an increase in the reassessing. You know what happens to the taxes then.

Mr. WEINER. Senator, if I misunderstood you, please correct me, but did you not say that right after election they are going to raise the taxes? Is that what you said?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Probably would, I said.

Mr. WEINER. Oh, then you are either predicting or not predicting what is going to happen in the future.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I am hoping they reduce them.

Mr. WEINER. All right. Senator, would you allow yourself to be further interrogated?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Yes.

Mr. WEINER. Senator, would you say that measures such as these three bills will allow the city to reduce its taxes, or will they cause them to raise their taxes?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. If they will be a little economic in Pittsburgh and be a little careful and do not pad the payroll, they could very well take care of the problem of raising the pensions of the older people.

Mr. WEINER. Are you saying, Senator, if I understand you, that you are accusing the city of Pittsburgh of padding the payroll? Is that what you are saying?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. Again, you are putting words in my mouth. If you take it that way, it is O. K. with me.

Mr. WEINER. Senator, I did not say that. You stated that, and I am merely trying to find out what you are stating. Did you say that the Pittsburgh payroll is padded—is that what you are stating to us—and, as a result, the taxes are going to have to be raised?

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I understand that quite a few hacks are on there. Senator Barr will bear me out.

Mr. WEINER. Senator Barr is not being interrogated. You are being interrogated.

Mr. KOPRIVER, JR. I am just saying Senator Barr would bear me out. Maybe he cannot hear very well. That is what is the matter.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman.

I think the best argument against these bills was made by the gentleman, himself, who is one the sponsors. The fact that he, himself, foresees in the future that this is perhaps one of the areas which might cause taxation to be increased in the city of Pittsburgh is somewhat inconsistent or a paradox of what he is saying in the sense that he feels that the city of Pittsburgh will not have higher taxes. Yet, he is inflicting upon them a measure which will cost them, according to the figures as given me, $164,000 more and with no means of providing the money or no bills appropriating this money to the city. I am sure that he, as a responsible official, realizes that this money has to come from some place. The only place it can possibly come from, if not from the State, is from taxation.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, the gentleman from Duquesne said rather a rash thing. He said I would bear him out. I will bear him out on nothing. I will explain to your people of Duquesne what you are taking from them. They will have to pay $44 per person, per year, for their Sanitary Authority which they will have to erect. However, if you had joined the Allegheny Authority, it would have cost them only $18.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming, will state it.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I would suggest that my colleague from Allegheny, Senator Barr, is not speaking on the bill in talking about the sewer assessments in Allegheny County, and suggest that the Chair instruct him to confine his remarks to the bill before the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, it seemed to me that the gentleman was getting down in the sewer the way he was talking, so it brought the Sewer Authority to my mind.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—29

Berger,	Harney,	Mullin,	Van Sant,

A majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, may we be at ease a few moments?

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, while we are at ease, may I ask how Senator Blass was recorded as voting on the last bill?

Mr. PRESIDENT. Senator Blass was recorded as having voted "aye."

Mr. BARR. I do not see the gentleman around. I think you should strike his name off and I ask the same thing about Senator Chapman.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Chapman was also recorded as voting "aye."

REQUEST FOR VERIFICATION OF THE ROLL

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll call.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, has the roll call been announced?

The PRESIDENT. The roll call has already been announced. This would indicate that the verification request comes too late. It has to be made before the result of the vote has been announced. It is possible, however, that you may wish to have the bill reconsidered. Senator Barr, do you wish to have the vote reconsidered?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, may we be at ease a moment?

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 880, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 28, 1915 (P. L. 956) entitled "An act requiring cities of the second class to establish a pension fund for employees of said cities and regulating the administration and the payment of such pensions," providing for additional payments to certain pensioned or retired employees.

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—28

Berger,	Harney,	Mullin,	Van Sant,
Chapman,	Keller,	Pechan,	Wade,
Confair,	Kessler,	Probert,	Wagner,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1305, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 25, 1947 (P. L. 1145), entitled as amended "Local Tax Enabling Law," empowering townships of the second class to levy assess and collect certain additional taxes under the provisions of said act.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HAYS. Mr. President, House Bill No. 1305, Printer's No. 1245, I think relates to second class townships, particularly as it applies to the so-called "Tax Everything Act." Second class school districts, in second class townships, are having difficult times providing for the needs of the boys and girls in their districts.

As I understand House Bill No. 1305, I am in entire sympathy with the motives of this bill to provide the township supervisors with additional funds if they need it. However, it seems to me that this is so-called "robbing Peter to pay Paul." This, if I understand it correctly, would mean that the school districts would have to surrender some funds to the township government. It seems to me that whenever we have a choice between human beings and more physical things, I must vote for the support of the human beings, the school children in the second class townships who would be involved in this particular legislation.

That is the reason, Mr. President, for my intention to vote "no" on this bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Mr. DONOLOW. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no."

BILLS ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 972, entitled:

An Act amending the act of August 9, 1955 (P. L. 323), entitled "The County Code," changing technical provisions with respect to plans required to be submitted to the County Planning Commission by defining a "sub-divider" and "developer."

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman who introduced this piece of legislation and ask of him the purpose of this bill.

The PRESIDENT. Which Senator are you requesting to interrogate?

Mr. MAHADY. Senator Flack.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, Senator Flack appears to be busy somewhere in a committee room. If I will do to act as a substitute, I will be glad to answer any interrogations that I can.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I would like to know the purpose of this bill. No one has been able to give me a logical explanation for it today.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I think I can answer the gentleman from the text of the bill. I do not have the bill before me, but I recall that it reduces the number of divisions from three to two. It amends the County Planning Commission Bill in counties of the third to eighth class, inclusive, by defining the word "sub-divider" so that it shall be construed to be one who undertakes to plan or lay out a tract of land for residential, industrial or commercial use, such as a developer would.

The reason for it is that it would not extend the provisions of the Act to someone who owns a large tract and who casually or intermittently may sell a lot or two.

That, Mr. President, is a full explanation of the bill, as I understand it.

Mr. MAHADY. I have read the bill. What I would like to know is what practical use this bill would be. What is the need for it?

Mr. BERGER. I understand, Mr. President, that a sub-divider has to file a plan and the developer does not. That is as far as I can go. They would like to have the plans filed so that they will know where the sewer lines and so forth are going to run in both types of developments, subdivisions and developments.

Mr. MAHADY. Is not that the privilege of the Planning Commission to require such plans when requested under the present Act?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, my understanding is that a developer has to do it, but a sub-divider does not necessarily have to do it. This would require him to file plans.

Mr. MAHADY. Or, the other way around.

Mr. BERGER. Or vice versa.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?
It was agreed to.
The title was read and agreed to.
And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,
Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,
The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 983, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," providing permanent certification for certain persons teaching in private institutions.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,
Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I occasionally read newspapers other than the Philadelphia newspapers, and I was a little astounded when I read the Lancaster Intelligencer and saw in there an article entitled, "Senator's Notebook," with a heading, "City Areas Take Most Tax Money." I then went on to read the article and found that it was written by Senator Ehrgood, the gentleman from Lebanon. I am certain that this was a political speech which was put into a newspaper, because any similarity between this and what is going on is purely coincidental and I am sure that no intention is meant.

The article goes on to point out how Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are grabbing all the money and building all these super-duper highways, and that the little rural communities are being completely abused. That does not happen to be the fact, but if it were the fact, I would like Senator Ehrgood to explain to us his vote of last week when he voted on one of the bills, which appeared on the Calendar, to allocate money that has been specifically set aside for maintenance and building of highways and which provided that some of that money be used for some other purpose. He then goes on to point out how, under the Tax Equalization Board ruling, the Democratic areas are reaping the harvest and how the Republican areas are being hard hit.

The facts are, Mr. President, that the area which Senator Ehrgood represents, the area of Lebanon, will receive a greater amount of money than it ever received before. That happens to be a Republican area. It also happens that the city of Lancaster, which happens to be Democratic, will receive less money in the coming year than it is now receiving, under this new ruling.

The fact that is stated in here is that for the first time, —which he neglected to point out and I am sure only because this is a political speech and not intended to be an article of information—the city of Philadelphia and the city of Pittsburgh will be receiving what is due them on the basis of taxables. I do not believe I have to go on to point out at great length to the Members of this Senate what is happening in the large cities and how they are suffering from blight and the removal of taxables.

I would also like Senator Ehrgood to explain his vote of yesterday and his vote of last week, when he went on to further remove the taxables that are available by means of personal property which the city of Philadelphia and the city of Pittsburgh look forward to finance their school districts. I would also like to have explained his vote of last week to remove the city wage tax, a means of revenue which the city of Philadelphia now has. If this is not double talk, I have never heard it.

At the bottom of the article, it goes on to point out: "Turn to the next page for more Ehrgood." Reluctantly, I did so and more of Ehrgood went on to point out that this was all a scheme to hurt people in this Commonwealth. I am sure he well knows that this is not the situation at all.

I would also like to point out to the gentleman that if he would pay attention to the legislation, he would see that they have put a bill in the House which has a very excellent chance of not only being favorably considered, but passed, whereby the areas which are suffering, as a result of this Tax Equalization Board ruling,—and for the first time having an equitable ruling and an equitable distribution of this money—are going to allocate this loss over a period of four years, or a loss of twenty-five per cent per year. Thereby, the area, itself, would not feel it and it would not hurt these areas which need more money.

He then goes on to point out, in some sort of logic which I completely fail to follow, how, on the basis of population, or how, on the basis of mileage per person, we want to receive more money than we are entitled to from the reimbursement on our streets and paving. I think that the last census, alone, will indicate that the gentleman is in error and that he has truly erred in trying to point out to his people this information.

I think that some of this, as a political stunt,—not that I approve of it—might be considered well. In the heat of a campaign, it might even be considered well. However, I do not see why a Member, who is elected as a responsible Member from a community, would try to distort or twist the facts as they are in presenting a picture of a rural area against the city areas which, incidentally, I would like to point out to the good Senator, provide for a great deal of our culture and amusement. I would like to point out to him that just very recently, some of the people who live in the surrounding areas of Philadelphia stated that they are very happy to pay the wage tax because they realize the benefits they derive as a result of this small amount which they pay. The amount which they receive from the cities is a great deal more, proportionately speaking, than what they pay. Without the city of Philadelphia, they, themselves, could not afford or could not begin to provide an area of culture, an area of entertainment, an area of earning a livelihood, or an area where they can benefit as a result of their living close to this area.

Therefore, Mr. President, not only is this nonsense in bad taste, but I think it certainly behooves the Senator, as a responsible member of the community and as a responsible Member of this Senate, to admit that this is what it is, strictly political and nonsense at that. I do not think any of it is borne out by the facts. As they say in television, on Dragnet, "All we want is the facts, man, just the facts."

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, after hearing this political speech from the Minority Leader, I would like to say that, at least, I am glad he reads my articles because he probably gets some honest information and some good Republican information, instead of just Democratic propaganda.

Mr. President, I have never stated that I was bipartisan. I am a politician and I am happy to be a politician. It is a good thing for a change to have true facts brought out, and I was bringing them out. There is no doubt that in the highway situation, Philadelphia, Allegheny County and York County, during the last four years, got all of the money.

You come to Lebanon County and try to find out what maintenance or road building was done in Lebanon County, or any of the surrounding areas, and please point it out to me. Even the Secretary of Highways admitted that fact to me.

Concerning the State Tax Equalization Board, these are some more phony figures, because they put out what the county supposedly gains or loses in the State Tax Equalization Board figures. For instance, a very interesting point arose. They talk about the 1958 market value and the 1957 market value for Cornwall Borough, and they say that Cornwall Borough lost $4,415,400. Then later they show figures for the county as a whole, giving the net loss in Lebanon County as $4,871,500. These figures look good on paper. However, let us just look at the facts. Cornwall Borough lost $4,415,400, and whether they lost even more than that, $7,000,000 or $10,000,000, it would not make one iota of difference because that happens to be a very rich district and they only received the minimum of $1,000. Therefore, it does not matter what happens. Yes, I will state that it meant that the city of Lebanon did have a net loss and they will probably be gaining some money in State subsidies.

However, I recognize part of the scheme here. The city of Lebanon is a swinging situation between the Republicans and the Democrats. I do not know and I am not positive of this, but there seems to be some insinuation by some people that perhaps the Democratic Administration and the State Tax Equalization Board hope to gain some Democratic votes in the city of Lebanon and make that a Democratic city. Well, of course, we Republicans in Lebanon County, the good citizens of Lebanon County, are not just localized. They recognize it as a total figure and realize that the other districts have an equal share.

When we are talking about the State Tax Equalization Board and some House Bill is mentioned which would defer and spread it over a four year period, I am glad to hear that such a bill has been introduced. Of course, it was only introduced as a result of the Republican Senate Caucus calling the State Tax Equalization Board into its Caucus and questioning them on these figures. Probably that is the reason why there has been some action taken by the Administration, because, after all, there are some rural Democratic districts which have been hurt by this situation now pending before the State Tax Equalization Board.

I forget all of the rest of the points which the Senator raised. There were so many. However, I might state that the article is, of course, political in many senses because I am talking from a political standpoint. In these articles, I try to give facts to the people which I am sure they understand and recognize as being as nonpartisan, from a political angle, as possible.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I tried to follow the gentleman very carefully and how the lack of a road program in his county can be blamed on Philadelphia, I fail to understand. The fact that Philadelphia has had a road program and a highway program and has, very frankly, tried to do everything possible to get a better program than they have now, and have been for the first time getting their fair share in this matter, I can understand would irritate the Senator no end.

Also, a fact I might point out which he failed to point out in his article—if we are going to talk about real facts—is why didn't the school districts in your area, when they felt that they were being hurt, appeal to the Board, which they have every right to do. The other phase of it, which I think you should bear in mind as well, is that you say, on one hand, that there has been some bill introduced to alleviate this problem and, on the other hand, you say there are some Democratic districts which have been hurt. To say that this is a political bill which is intended to hurt its own people, I fail to see that or understand it. Maybe this is a new type of political logic which I do not comprehend completely. Perhaps you can explain it to me.

The Republican bill which was just reported from the Rules Committee today, as I understand it, freezes back to the 1958 level the workings of the Tax Equalization Board. I do not know how you are going to explain that to your people back home, but if you give it to them as factually as you gave them this other information, they are certainly going to be misinformed and some of them are going to be very disappointed about the money they do not get.

I do not think that because something has been operating badly and it has finally been straightened out, and it is to the detriment of some of the people, but the general group of people will derive a benefit, that we now can claim "foul" and change the rules again to play the game a different way. I am certain that you have enough fairness in your make-up to realize that this is not the way to run a ball game or a railroad.

One of the other things that we must do here is take care of the children who live in this community, regardless of whether they happen to be in a Republican Senator's District or a Democratic Senator's District. I think that the basic thing all of us must do is give the people the facts as they exist and not as we would like them to exist or not as we hope they will help us come next election day.

Mr. EHRGOOD. Mr. President, I thought you were looking over on the other side for me. However, I am still standing on this side, no matter what the Senator from Philadelphia might state.

That is my criticism. I am interested in the school children in other parts of the State and not only in Philadelphia. The entire tenor of that article, to which the Senator referred, concerned the situation of what was trying to be done in Philadelphia as compared to the rest of the State. After all, there are more people in the rest of the State than there are in Philadelphia.

I might state that the Secretary of Highways has admitted that the bulk of the money has gone to the large cities where the glamor roads, as he puts it, are located. It is about time that the rest of the State is recognized as having roads which are very, very important and that the people in the rural districts should be treated just as well.

I might say one other thing to the Senator concerning the State Tax Equalization Board. As he might know, or as he will recall, the appeal period is August 31 and I am sure that there will be quite a few appeals from Lebanon County. As a matter of fact, I happen to be preparing one right now.

Mr. HAYS. Mr. President, the gentleman's remark reminds me of a preface that was supposed to be written in a history of the Civil War, prepared by a professor from the South. He said that it was an unbiased account of the Civil War from a southern viewpoint.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I think that we would be remiss if we did not note the fact that the school system, since I have been in this Senate, has been made a political football. I have seen the school system, first, under an investigation to no end, or no constructive end that I have seen so far. Now I see the figures misconstrued for a political purpose.

The reason the Tax Equalization Board was created was to make the local people put their own house in order. They determined that they needed a certain amount of money. Whether they would receive this from local sources or from a handout from the State depended on what kind of a job they were doing at home.

Under the figures, I am in the same boat as the Senator from Lebanon. They show us, in Westmoreland County, having a minus $454,700 and a minus $63,700 in 1958 compared to 1959. However, it is incumbent upon us to see that the assessments are put in line at home, which we are doing. People have been found, in our own county, who are not on the assessment rolls. There are also people who have assessments which have not been changed for twenty to thirty years.

The idea is that the State has so much money in the ball of wax and allocation of this ball of wax is then determined on what the districts should have assessed their own people, and that amount is subtracted from the total amount that should be coming to them to run their school districts.

If the districts want to raise this amount and we want to increase the ball of wax, that is another problem. The problem is one of fairness. It has nothing to do with politics, but it does have to do with the efficiency of government. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is the biggest industry in Pennsylvania. It has to be run on a businesslike basis. It cannot be run on the fact that we have the most votes, so we get the most money, and that applies to Lebanon County, Westmoreland County or any other city or county. The rules must be businesslike rules and not a political football.

I have one more remark to make and that has to do with the roads. The good Senator on the other side of the aisle also forgets that we return money to the counties, to the cities and to the townships. There is also the question of Federal-aid. Federal-aid does go for thoroughways. I have been working on a program with the Secretary of Highways for a greater rural participation in the funds that are available by making more funds available for rural roads. This program, in the eyes of the Administration, is a must. However, first commitments must come first, and the Federal moneys available shall not be lost and we cannot lose them. Even Westmoreland, which is a rural county,—and because of its population, as one of our newspapers pointed out two weeks ago, is the third largest taxpaying county in the State—ranks somewhere around twenty-fifth in the amount of money allocated for roads. Yet, this is due not to the fault of any administration or any preconceived idea. We must, of necessity, as I say, secure the Federal moneys. If we are going to throw out businesslike principles in every issue and say politics, as usual, comes first, then Senator Ehrgood is right. However, if business principles and common sense and the progress of the whole Commonwealth comes first, then he is wrong and I must disagree with him.

Reverend Thomas S. Logan, guest Chaplain, Pastor of the Calvary Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, and guest of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Holt, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray: For our Country

Almighty God, who hast given us this good land for our heritage; we humbly beseech Thee that we may always prove ourselves a people mindful of Thy favor and glad to do Thy will. Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning, and pure manners. Save us from violence, discord, and confusion; from pride and arrogance, and from every evil way. Defend our liberties, and fashion into one united people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues. Endue with the spirit of wisdom those to whom in Thy Name we entrust the authority of government, that here may be justice and peace at home, and that through obedience to Thy law, we may show forth Thy praise among the nations of the earth. In the time of prosperity fill our hearts with thankfulness, and in the day of trouble, suffer not our trust in Thee to fail; all which we ask through our Lord God. Amen.

For the State Legislature:

O God, the fountain of wisdom, whose statutes are good and gracious and whose law is truth; we beseech Thee so to guide and bless the Legislature of this State, that it may ordain for our governance only such things as please Thee, to the glory of Thy Name and the welfare of the the people. Amen.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, by an agreement this morning between the respective groups we hoped that we would start where we left off yesterday.

I would request unanimous consent of the House that we turn to page 20, bills on third reading. The first bill would be House Bill 1638, Printer's No. 1148. This will also be the first roll call of the day and we would like to move right along if the permission of the House is granted.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent to call up House Bill No. 1638? The Chair hears no objection, and consent is granted.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1638, entitled:

An Act amending "The First Class City Permanent Registration Act," approved March 30, 1937 (P. On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, House Bill No. 1638, Printer's No. 1148, is an amendment to the First Class City Permanent Registration Act and is a piece of legislation needed for absentee voting and registration in the first class city, the city of Philadelphia.

The companion acts to this bill dealing with the Permanent Registration Act for the balance of the state have been passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is needed to complete the package for the change or amendment to the First Class City Permanent Registration Act. I ask that the House support unanimously House Bill 1638.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, this is the first roll call of the day. The Mines Committee on the Knox Mine Disaster is out of the House, the Republican and Democrat Members, the gentlemen from Luzerne, Mr. Musto, Mr. Meholchick and the gentleman from Lackawanna, Mr. Reidenbach. I would ask that when the roll call is completed, those gentlemen all be recorded. I am going to try to get them in here for the roll call. They are not present as well as the Republican Members.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

NOT VOTING—5

Cooper,	Sullivan,	Thompson,	Willard,
Moran,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,
The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 2006, entitled:

An Act amending the "Liquor Code" approved April 12, 1951 (P. L. 90) permitting retail licensees to furnish free cheese.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Messrs AGNEW and CURWOOD asked unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

Amend Title, page 2, last line of Title, by inserting after "cheese" "and bologna."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 493), page 3, line 2, by striking out "one" and inserting "two."

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 493), page 3, line 2, by inserting after "cheese" "and bologna."

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mrs. VARALLO. Mr. Speaker, for many years in the state of Pennsylvania free cheese was an accepted tradition in many of our restaurants. Suddenly the proprietors were informed that this could no longer be done, but that the potato chips and the pretzels were acceptable, and the free cheese disappeared and was missed. I introduced this piece of legislation to correct the situation and restore free cheese along with the pretzels and the potato chips.

Will the gentleman from Allegheny County, Mr. Agnew, defer introducing the amendment so that this bill can be passed in its present form? If so, and if he introduces a bologna bill, I will be very happy to vote for his bill.

I am asking the Members of this House to vote "No" on the amendment.

Mr. AGNEW. Mr. Speaker, I offered a very serious amendment to a very serious bill. I would like the opportunity to explain these amendments for the benefit of the membership of this House.

I do first, though, want to clear up one matter. It would appear somewhat presumptuous for me to be using the Floor Leader's microphone for the purpose of offering these amendments inasmuch as I am not part of my party's leadership. I am here for the purpose of referring to notes and some reading material and I would like to point out that the Floor Leaders' mikes on either side of the aisle are the only suitable places for a Member to speak when he uses readin material or notes that he must refer to. I am not here for the purpose suggested by many Members of this House, that a Floor Leader's microphone is the only proper place for a discussion of this subject.

I understand that the vegetarians in this House are opposed to these amendments. I can understand that. I respect any man's principles. We all have our principles and we are all forced to take a stand on some of these pieces of legislation which perhaps even a majority of our constituents do not believe in. I understand also that some Members of this House might be opposed to these amendments because of a misunderstanding of the true definition of the word "bologna."

It is my purpose here to acquaint the membership with all the forms of meat, cold cuts, and so on, that the word "bologna" which is a very general word includes. My authority for the definition which I am about to read is a composite of Webster's Dictionary and the Encyclopoedia Britannica.

Listen very carefully. Bologna is a variety of sausage containing a mixture of meats such as beef, pork and veal which is finely ground with spices added, all of which is stuffed into a casing, either natural or artificial, which is then smoked and/or cooked.

It is also part of my understanding that some of those who are not vegetarians might be opposed to the introduction of these amendments because of their understanding of a rather narrow interpretation of the word "bologna" that does not include certain types of bologna which are more particularly associated with the various nationality groups. I understand that some Members of the House who are of certain ancestry or whose constituencies contain a number of citizens, taxpayers and voters of certain ancestry, will be interested in the list of meats that a definition of bologna includes.

For that purpose I would like to read just some of these. All of these that I am about to read are properly defined in the term "bologna." Bologna includes all types of salamis, including Kosher bologna which is a salami. That ought to take care of some of the votes in this House.

I should like to point out for the benefit of some other votes in this House that in addition to all types of salami, this also includes, of course, pepperoni.

It gives me particular pleasure to notify the Members of this House that the definition of bologna includes Kebashi; for those of Scotch or English ancestry or background, or whose constituencies are substantially such, Scotch Black Pudding and Oxford are also included in the definition of bologna.

For a group of Pennsylvanians, known perhaps better to the rest of the country than to Pennsylvanians, the Pennsylvania Dutch, the term "bologna" includes Blochwurst, Liverwurst, Knockwurst, and Blutwurst, and I thank the members of the Lehigh County delegation for helping me pronounce Blutwurst.

Also, there are several forms of bologna which are named for various foreign cities or countries, some in Europe, some in other places of the world. For instance there is Vienna bologna, Genoa bologna, and a bologna that is named for a far-Eastern country, an overwhelming majority of the populace of which is either Mohammedan or Arabic, called Lebanon.

There is also a bologna known to many of you called Bludin Blanc or Bludin Noir. Now, Bludin Blanc is light Bludin and Bludin Noir is dark Bludin. I do not know what Bludin is—yes, I do, it is blood sausage. All kinds of blood sausages are included in the definition as Florence Bologna, all types of frankfurters, hot dogs to some of us, and many more than are too numerous to mention.

We have had a little fun with these amendments, but Mr. Speaker, I am serious about them. I would like to inform the membership that these amendments and the attempt to pass this bill in the first instance goes back to the repeal of prohibition. I am too young to remember this, but I understand that in the old days before prohibition, one could get a substantial free lunch with a 16-ounce glass of nickle beer.

When prohibition was repealed and our liquor code was adopted it was felt that for a variety of reasons this was not a matter of good public policy, so the liquor code states the gist of which is as follows: No liquor licensee shall offer any free food as an inducement for the purchase of distilled or malt beverages, except such as the Liquor Control Board may from time to time exempt. Since our liquor control code, the Board has been called upon or felt free to permit restaurant liquor licensees, owners of bars, taverns, cafes and restaurants to offer free to patrons, pretzels, potato chips and popcorn. This bill is a legislative attempt to add cheese, these amendments are a legislative attempt to add bologna.

Too often in this House we tell the people of Pennsylvania you shall not do this; you shall not do that. I believe in the principle that we ought not to have restaurant liquor licensees engage en masse in frenetic competition, offering more and more free food as an inducement for their patrons to frequent their establishments, but I think as long as we exempt crackers and bread, so that we do not get into sandwiches and stay away from the free lunch we are all right. I believe that anything in the nature of a snack ought to be permitted to be offered free by the restaurant liquor licensee to his patrons. I believe this is an opportunity to say to the people of Pennsylvania, when you go into the neighborhood bar, or you take your wife out for the evening, if that proprietor so desires, he can offer you free as a snack with your beer or whiskey not only pretzels, potato chips and popcorn, but also cheese and for the non-vegetarians, or meat-eaters, almost any form of meat as a snack which would be included in the definition of bologna.

I believe this would be a worthwhile thing to Pennsylvania and to the working man who frequents the local neighborhood bar for the purpose of society, entertainment, friendship and neighborly companionship. I believe it is not carrying the principle too far. I believe if cheese is proper, and I think it is, then bologna is proper, too.

I ask the Members of this House on both sides of the aisle to vote for these bologna amendments, for after all a Polish Democrat does not like his Kebashi any better than a Polish Republican, and a Republican Pennsylvania Dutchman does not like his liverwurst any better than a Pennsylvania Dutch Democrat. These amendments are truly bipartisan and they are for all the people of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Speaker, those of us who sponsored these amendments are willing to take a voice vote.

Mr. CAPITOLO. I would like to interrogate the distinguished gentleman from Allegheny County, Mr. Agnew.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. AGNEW. I am afraid I have no alternative, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CAPITOLO. Mr. Speaker, I have heard a lot about bologna but I have not heard anything about suprasate and capicola. We have bologna. Of course, this all starts with bologna, but you have really educated me today. We have bologna among the Abbruzzes and Sicilians called suprasate. Now suprasate is really sausage. You put pork meat with beef and you dry it up. Then we have a capicola. I was surprised you missed that because after all there are a lot of votes in south Philadelphia. So I think we ought to amend the bill to put capicola in the bill.

Mr. AGNEW. Mr. Speaker, I would be very happy to inform the gentleman it is absolutely included. Listen to the definition of bologna: Bologna is a variety of sausage containing a mixture of meats such as beef, pork, and veal, et cetera.

I think there is no question about it. The meats or the bologna you mentioned are clearly included in these amendments, and I hope I can count on the gentleman's vote.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. AGNEW. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I wonder whether the authority on bologna of the House of Representatives can tell me whether a product which is called Colbasa is included in the definition of bologna?

Mr. AGNEW. I am not familiar with the product but perhaps I could yield to a Member of the House who is.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Well, that is something similar to Kupagool.

Mr. AGNEW. Mr. Speaker, I think the majority of the Members are convinced I did a little research on this but I must frankly admit that I am not an expert.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Well, this is a very hard product. It is extremely dangerous when eaten. It is something that I think might get some consideration by Dr. Maxwell and Dr. Boies because it has a deleterious effect on dentures, being very hard in substance.

I would like to inquire of the gentleman whether Colbasa is included in that definition that he has.

Mr. AGNEW. Well, if it is not included, Mr. Speaker, I would like to inform the gentleman that any liquor licensed man who offers that to his patrons would do so at his own peril.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, in all seriousness, I do not think the lady from Philadelphia should have her bill include bologna. I think she is serious in her intent in introducing this bill.

I think we would be going very far afield to use bologna along with cheese, aside from the fact that we have vegetarians and meat handlers and so forth, because I can foresee that if bologna were included, that we would be right back to the free lunch. There are plenty of people who do not need bread or crackers to make a free lunch, and we can get into a field of knockwurst and bologna where, no matter how thick or how thin you slice it, you wind up with a free lunch.

I think we ought to defeat these amendments and give the lady her cheese bill.

Mr. FRANK. If they are going to put in amendments on bologna, I am going to have amendments made for herring.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I am certainly glad to see and to have recognized officially the fact that the experts on "baloney" are on the Republican side of the House.

I do not know whether you can find this in any particular dictionary or not, but being a Member of the Legislature for four terms, it seems to me that the popular definition, as far as I am concerned, of "baloney" is a gust of hot air frequently emanating in this Chamber of the House.

I want to say, against the amendment, Mr. Speaker, that I think it is redundant; it is superfluous and it is totally unnecessary because the bill as introduced by the lady from Philadelphia, Mrs. Varallo, in its present form is certainly full of bologna.

Mr. WALSH. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Agnew.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Agnew, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. AGNEW. I will.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know for the benefit of people here who do not like bologna or cheese, could we have egg in our beer?

Mr. AGNEW. I would just like to say that if it is true, as the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, says, that I am an expert on bologna, then I say that he is the expert on hot air.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 2008, entitled:

An Act amending "The Third Class City Code" approved June 23, 1931 (P. L. 932) authorizing third class cities to create historic districts within their geographic limits * * *

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 2070, Printer's No. 1062, was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER pro tempore.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 2079, entitled:

An Act repealing the act of June 27, 1939 (P. L. 1184) entitled "An act requiring all employable persons receiving public assistance with certain exceptions to perform certain work or be refused further assistance * * *"

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I request a slow roll call and that only those responding to their names be recorded. There may be a request for a verification of the roll.

Mr. McCANN. Just so there would be no misunderstanding, there are 106 Democrats here in their seats. There are 106 "aye" votes on this side. For verification purposes, certainly that I don't want any delay in time, we intend to work; yet I want everything official in every manner.

Mr. Speaker, we certainly have no objection to a slow roll call. Our people are here and I know that the Members have been informed very carefully. The two absentees are Mr. Moran and Mr. Sullivan, one in the hospital and one at home with his leg off.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. FINEMAN. Is it not a fact that when a Member is in the House by the time the last name on the roll is called, notwithstanding that he enters after his name has been called, he is regarded as being within the Hall of the House at the roll call?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Any person who is in the Hall of the House during the calling of the roll is entitled to vote.

Mr. FINEMAN. Therefore Mr. McCormack would be entitled to vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is entitled to vote. How does the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, vote?

Mr. McCORMACK. Aye, Mr Speaker.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BIPARTISAN COMMITTEE ON CONSTITUTION OF GOVERNMENT IN EMERGENCIES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Lopresti, desires a meeting of the Bipartisan Committee on Continuation of Government in Emergencies to meet immediately in the conference room to the left of the Chair.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 2121, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 1, 1867 (P. L. 306) entitled "An act to authorize the election of an officer to be called constable and collector in the several townships and boroughs in the county of Cameron and regulate his duties" providing that the constable and collector hereafter elected shall hold his office for a term of two years.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I was asked to inform the House that House Bill 2121 has not been caucused on by the Republican Members, and that this bill pertains only to one county in the Commonwealth, Cameron.

Mr. TOMPKINS I think can explain that. I therefore think we should roll the bill without their caucusing. Mr. Johnson informed me they did not get a chance to caucus on it.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate very much the position of the Majority Leader.

The bill is one that applies only to Cameron County, to provide for the election of our tax collectors in the several townships and boroughs on a two-year basis instead of a one-year basis as now exists.

I might state that this is local or special legislation. For the purposes of the record I want to call attention to the fact that the publication in connection with this bill is attached to the original bill.

Mr. McCANN. That is right, Mr. Speaker.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 2216, Printer's No. 1233, was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER pro tempore.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 2219, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the State Treasurer for the purpose of paying salaries and wages of State officers and employees and other ordinary and general expenses in the interim between the thirty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred fifty-nine and such time as the funds provided by the General Appropriation Act and other appropriation acts become available and for the payment of bills incurred and remaining unpaid at the close of the fiscal year ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred fifty-nine.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. POLEN. Mr. Speaker, House Bill No. 2219 is a stop-gap appropriation bill in the amount of $205.4 million.

For the information of the House, I would like to state that $123.7 million of that amount is for the school subsidies that fall due in the months of October and November, and it is necessary to pass this legislation in order that proper processing of these appropriations can be made for the school districts. The remaining $80 million is for the normal expenses of the Commonwealth.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 2220, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Department of Public Welfare and providing for certain allocations therefrom for the purpose of carrying out the Public Assistance Law for the two fiscal years beginning June first one thousand nine hundred fifty-nine and for the payment of assistance and expenses accrued or incurred prior to and remaining unpaid on May 31, 1959, and limiting the amount thereof available for administrative expenses.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Polen.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Polen, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. POLEN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I understand this is a stop-gap appropriation for the Department of Welfare in the sum of $30.4 million. Is that right?

Mr. POLEN. That is correct.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I wonder if the gentleman from Washington could tell us how much federal money is included in the $30.4 million?

Mr. POLEN. Mr. Speaker, the $30.4 million is the amount of state money.

I believe what the gentleman would like to know is how much in federal funds will be received to match this. There will be approximately $20 million in federal funds.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Approximately $20 million in federal funds will be the federal matching part to this appropriation?

Mr. POLEN. That is correct.

Mr. TOMPKINS. In other words that gives the Department of Welfare, then, a working fund of $50 million?

Mr. POLEN. That is correct.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I thank the gentleman.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of an amendment at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 405, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 24, 1939 (P. L. 872) entitled "The Penal Code" prohibiting certain business activities on Sunday.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. GELFAND. Mr. Speaker, I would like permission to have my remarks spread on the record.

Basic to the concept of religious liberty is the mandate that no person should be penalized by the state for adherence to his religious beliefs or for refusal to adhere to any religious belief, so long as he does not interfere with the rights of others or endanger the public peace and security. It is my belief that compulsory Sunday observance laws violate this mandate because they compel persons to obey a law, the implications of which are basically religious. Senate Bill 405 is, in my mind, such a bill.

I fully recognize that the Commonwealth, as a health measure, may rightfully compel every person to abstain from gainful employment or occupation on one or more days each week, but it is also my belief that every person must have the right to select for himself the day on which he will refrain from such activity. The public health and welfare do not require in any small measure that the day of abstinence from employment or business shall be uniform for all persons. To compel a person to refrain on a day selected because it is holy to others, even though the others may constitute the great majority, is a serious violation of our constitutional concept of religious freedom and liberty. Senate Bill 405 is not in the great American tradition of freedom of religion and, for this reason, I vigorously oppose it.

The bill is offensive to the concept of religious freedom for even a more telling reason. This bill would apply equally to persons who conscientiously observe another day as their day of rest and, therefore, would create an economic penalty upon those who would not engage in worldly employment on a day other than Sunday. To that extent the bill is not only unconstitutional but it also should offend every man's sense of fair play. For to compel a man who worships on a day other than Sunday to also refrain from employment or business also on Sunday is to penalize him for his religious beliefs.

I call to this Committee's attention the recent decision written by Judge Magruder, of the United States Court of Appeals, in the case of Crown Kosher Super Market of Massachusetts, Inc., et al. v. Chief of Police of Springfield, Massachusetts, decided on May 18, 1959, in which the renowned jurist said:

What Massachusetts has done by this statute is to furnish special protection to the dominant Christian sects which celebrate Sunday as the Lord's Day, without furnishing such protection, in their religious observances, to those Christian sects and to . . . Jews who observe Saturday as the sabbath, and to the prejudice of the latter group. It is clear that by denying to the plaintiffs the liberty to work, shop, or pursue other 'secular' conduct on Sunday, the law puts an economic penalty upon a person observing as his sabbath some other day than Sunday by depriving him of the productive use of one further day of the week . . .

Senate Bill 405 is particularly unfair and inconsistent with the religious freedom guaranteed by both the United States Constitution and the Pennsylvania Constitution when applied to persons whose conscience requires them to observe a day other than Sunday as holy. The religious Sabbatarian suffers when he must refrain from gainful employment or activity at least two days a week. The proposed law, in effect, would penalize him with the undemocratic alternative of either violating his religious conscience or suffering a serious economic handicap which, in many instances, may be insurmountable.

The United States Supreme Court has said "we sponsor an attitude on the part of Government that shows no partiality to any one group, and lets each flourish according to the zeal of its adherents and the appeal of its dogma." (Zorach vs Clauson, 343 US 306, 313) I do submit that if the legislation involved here becomes the law of this Commonwealth, then the Commonwealth would not be impartial as between religious groups because, in effect, it would be forcing Sabbatarians to choose between their religious beliefs and economic necessity.

I, therefore, urge that Senate Bill 405 be defeated and that if it is the belief that the health and welfare of the citizenry of our Commonwealth requires that no man be engaged in employment or business for more than six (6) consecutive days, that legislation to the effect that individuals be required to abstain from at least one (1) day's gainful employment and entitling the individual to select for himself the day of abstinence be substituted.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. Mr. Speaker, I would like permission to have my remarks spread on the record rather than giving them in extenso at this time.

Mr. Speaker and Members of the House of Representatives, before Senate Bill 405, Printer's No. 670, is passed without amendment, and sent to the Governor for the signature which he has publicly promised, I would like to speak on the background and merits of the bill, and fully explain the position with the opponents of the bill have taken.

Senate Bill 405 has been maneuvered through both Houses of the General Assembly by one of the best organized lobbying efforts this House has seen in many sessions. Basically, its origin was in a meeting of the Pennsylvania Retailers Association months before the present session of the General Assembly began. It was brought about by the organized retailers recognition of the fact that Sunday retail operations were beginning to be "big business." The continued increase in Sunday sales indicated a much greater desire on the part of our citizens for Sunday retail sales than anyone had foreseen.

In any line of competitive business, when a competitor comes up with an effective, publicly acceptable method of taking business away from you, you must meet his competition by coming up with a better idea, or beating him at his own game. However, it occurred to the Pennsylvania Retailers Association that there was also a third way—legislate your competitors out of business. The precedent, in this case, already existed in the form of an archaic law which literally prohibits every form of worldly employment on Sunday.

Because the strict enforcement of this ancient "Blue Law," now known as Section 699.4 of the Penal Code of 1939, would close up every form of business, including retail, wholesale, manufacturing, processing, distributing and transportation, and almost every form of healthful sport and recreation, there has been little or no enforcement of the law. This is in keeping with a well known axiom of law to the effect that it is impossible to enforce a law which is not supported by the majority of the people. Also, even if a zealous law enforcement officer should, in a discriminatory manner, enforce the law against any particular group of businessmen, the fine of four dollars was not a sufficient deterrent.

Due to the extreme unpopularity of the Sunday "Blue Law", and the fact that its partial enforcement against only one segment of the regular Sunday violators, does not stand up well in the higher courts, the Pennsylvania Retailers did not do the obvious and prepare a bill to raise the four dollar fine imposed for violation of Section 699.4—instead they hit upon the idea of creating a new section, 699.10, which would impose heavy fines upon Sunday retailing only, leaving section 699.4 to be ignored as it has always been in the past. Incidentally, the impossibility of enforcing Section 699.4 has been dramatically demonstrated during the past week, when the Attorney General of Pennsylvania secured an order to prevent Justices of the Peace from making "sight convictions" for violations.

By adding section 699.10, the tremendous opposition which would have murdered any attempt to increase fines under section 699.4, was reduced to the two groups which have an interest in Sunday sales, the retailers and the consumers involved. The retailers are admittedly a small minority of all retailers, and the consumers, or Sunday purchasers, are not organized.

The next thing the proponents of this bill had to consider was the question of what articles should, or should not, be banned from sale on Sunday. The inclusion of all retail sales would have produced enough opposition to kill the bill. Therefore, sufficient articles had to be eliminated from the bill to dilute the opposition to the point where the bill had a fair chance of passage and would still achieve the desired result of putting their competitors out of business.

Accordingly, meetings were held to discuss the matter, and after much consideration, it was decided that certain articles had to be left out of Senate Bill 405, or it could not pass. These include: tobacco products; cameras, projectors and photographic supplies; firearms; automobile fuels, lubricants and accessories; cosmetics; sporting goods; boats and marine engines; mobile homes and real estate; airplanes and aviation accessories; seed, feed and fertilizers; farm implements and machinery; cigarette lighters; patent medicines and prescription drugs; food; books, magazines and newspapers; and others too numerous to mention.

The above exclusions, from the standpoint of the Pennsylvania Retailers, did not hurt the bill to any great extent. Left in the bill were the major categories of merchandise sold in large department stores, so it will still give them the protection they desire from their Sunday competitors. It is worthy of mention, however, that the Senate Committee which considered the bill was not completely satisfied. They heeded the pleas of the Sunday resort operators, and the concessionaires of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, and wrote in the specific exclusion of "novelties and souvenirs".

The retailers next move was to secure effective support from groups other than their own. Local chambers of commerce, supported largely by retailers, were immediately enlisted. The State Chamber tacitly supported the bill, but mindful of its members who engage in manufacturing, processing, distributing and wholesaling on Sunday, it did not make any large public gestures. The church groups were easy, since policy automatically supports any bill to stop anything on Sunday. With a large segment of business and Church groups on their side, the support of the Republican Party was assured.

The Democratic Party could not be approached on the same issues. It has been the liberal party of the country, and has never been known to support the conservative "Blue Laws". However, the Democratic Party is the champion of labor, and through that approach, many Democrats were induced to support the bill. Organized labor was induced to support the bill by the threat, if it failed to pass, every member of the Pennsylvania Retailers Association would have to open on Sunday to meet competition, and this would have forced five hundred thousand retail clerks to work on a large number of Sundays each year.

Last Tuesday, in what the Speaker described as a "history-making" session, the House voted down every attempt made to render this bill less discriminatory, or to make it more liberal. By our actions, we declared to all, that Senate Bill 405, Printer's No. 670, without changing a single word, is just the bill the people need to protect the Sabbath from commercialism, and to guarantee the working man a Sunday free to spend at worship and with his family. The majority of this House clearly indicated that housewares and musical instruments were not to be sold on Sunday by voting down amendments to remove them from the bill. The same majority indicated that cosmetics, firearms, sporting goods, mobile homes, real estate, and other items, should not be banned from sale on Sunday. The majority approved all sales at what is known as "wholesale" by voting down an amendment to include the word in the bill.

A majority of this House approved of forcing those whose conscience dictates that they observe Saturday as their Sabbath, to also observe Sunday. And the majority, by rejecting another amendment, approved of manufacturing, processing and distributing on Sunday. The majority also voted to endorse the bill as "constitutional".

We assume that those who voted down all amendments can explain to the church people and labor locals representing other than retail clerks, why they did not want to make S-405 any stronger than it is.

I have too much respect for the intelligence of the members of this distinguished legislative body to even begin to believe that they felt that Tuesday's actions could be classed as "fair" or "consistent". The proponents of the bill have been stating for weeks that this bill must pass "without amendment". They sold the bill, and secured commitments, on that basis so that members who gave their word to support the bill without amendment, could not, "in conscience", keep their commitments and vote for an amendment. It reminds me of an old expression—"Don't confuse me with the facts when my mind is made up".

Senate Bill 405 is a "special interest" bill and it is a highly discriminatory bill. It is a "special interest" bill because it was conceived and introduced by a state association, representing a single group of businessmen, to give them a competitive advantage. It is discriminatory for many reasons—because it forces certain citizens who conscientiously observe their own Sabbath on Saturday, to remain closed on the Christian Sabbath as well, thus limiting them to a five day week, while all other retailers have a six day week; it is discriminatory because it seeks out only one form of worldly employment and levies a heavy fine upon it, while leaving all other forms of worldly employment to be banned by a law which provides low fines, and which the Attorney General of the Commonwealth does not even wish to have enforced; it is discriminatory because it even subdivides the class of worldly employment it prohibits by deliberately failing to include hundreds of articles which could not, by any stretch of the imagination, be considered so essential that their sale on the Sabbath is necessary; it is discriminatory because it purports to guarantee four percent of our population the right to spend Sunday with their families, while making no provision whatsoever for the other ninety-six percent; and it is discriminatory because it declares that an act which is legal and proper on six days of the week becomes a crime on the seventh.

Members of the House, in my opinion, this limited special interest bill is a perfect example of the kind of legislation which should never even reach the floor of the House, much less be passed. Further, I am convinced that somewhere up the line, an Appellate Court will, by implication, call the Pennsylvania General Assembly to task for such an act when the bill is declared unconstitutional.

I ask all those whose convictions are the same as my own to have the courage to be counted as voting "No" on Senate Bill 405.

Mr. WORLEY. Mr. Speaker, as a Member of this House who watches the political scene, I recognize the great religious, labor and business interests that are urging this House to pass Senate Bill No. 405 in its present form and substance, and I want to say that I will put my record in this General Assembly up against that of any Member in support of the religious rights of the people of this Commonwealth but, after all this, I still remember that I took a solemn affirmation to support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this Commonwealth, and that obligation to support these Constitutions is my first duty as a lawmaker.

The substance of that affirmation appears in the Pennsylvania Constitution under Article 7, Section 1. It is on page 57 of the Pennsylvania Manual of 1957-58 in case any Member of this House would care to look at it at this time.

I want to say that we are bound by the United States Constitution just as much as we are bound by the state Constitution. A bill passed by this General Assembly that violates the United States Constitution is void in its entirety without the presence of severability. I say that the Members of this House have a constitutional right to question the constitutionality of Senate Bill No. 405 on a constitutional point of order as to its conformity with the United States Constitution just as much as they have the right to test the constitutionality of this bill as to its conformity with the Constitution of this Commonwealth.

I say to the Speaker that if House Members cannot test a bill as to its conformity with the requirements of the United States Constitution, what better way can laymen in the Legislature tell whether or not they are supporting the Constitution of the United States which, I now remind you, is incorporated into the oath or affirmation in the Pennsylvania Constitution itself; and even if the Federal Constitution were not so incorporated, State Legislators would, nevertheless, be bound by it for the reason that this basic federal document contains rights that are guaranteed to the citizens and those rights are so guaranteed as to prevent any legislative interference by any legislative body within the scope of the United States' jurisdiction. I say, Mr. Speaker, this General Assembly has as much of a duty to have its bills consistent with the United States Constitution as any other local, state or federal, legislative, executive or judicial body within any part of the United States.

I am voting against Senate Bill No. 405, Printer's No. 670, for the reason that it violates the Special legislative prohibition in the Constitution of Pennsylvania and it also violates the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution. By reason of the United States Supreme Court decisions, the first amendment of the United States Constitution is incorporated into the 14th Amendment and thereby causing a binding obligation upon all state legislators in a broad scope under the 14th Amendment.

I will admit that the states have the police power to regulate the number of days a person can work or do business as a proper exercise of the health and welfare portion of the state's police power, but I will not agree that such a legal fiction of police power can be extended so as to create a power in the states to choose the particular day of Sunday for rest or stoppage from work or business for the reason that Sunday grows out of one portion of the Christian religion.

I greatly respect the opinions of the lawyers of this General Assembly who believe this bill to be constitutional but, in my very limited ability, I cannot agree that custom and usage can ever extend the police power—which police power, by the way, has never been written into the Constitution at all—so as to cut off constitutional rights expressly written in that basic document. Can a legal fiction supersede an expressed right? I say to you, no legislature within the scope of this nation can legally retreat on constitutional freedoms to the people. Freedom of religion to agree with the majority is no freedom at all. You might even have that kind of freedom in a dictatorship. The only freedom that is worth its salt is freedom to disagree when everyone else is against you, provided, however, that you are not too disagreeable within the exercise of such disagreement.

Now Senate Bill No. 405 violates the basic concept of our constitutional freedom of religion.

In conclusion, I would like to quote William Penn's Maxim No. 527, from his writings called "Some Fruits of Solitude" and I quote, "No religion is better than an unnatural one."

Again I say to the proponents of this bill, are you not in fact trying to put an unnatural one on the people of Pennsylvania by Senate Bill 405?

Mr. J. A. O'DONNELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like permission to have my remarks spread upon the record.

We have had Blue Laws on the books for generations—Senate Bill No. 405 gives the Blue Laws some teeth and it imposes a fine which will eliminate the abuse of Sunday Sales. There is no part of this bill which has anything to do with religion. I believe this Bill presents the only solution to the problem of preventing Sunday from becoming another bargain day in business.

This bill clearly and definitely states what type of merchandise may be sold on Sunday and provides adequate penalties making enforcement possible.

The public would not be inconvenienced at all because the items prohibited are not, in any sense, necessities or convenience goods that should and must be sold on Sunday. This bill is patterned closely from the law, passed in 1957, prohibiting the sale of automobiles on Sunday. At this point, Members of the House, I should like to point out that practically every auto dealer and auto salesman in Pennsylvania favored that law in its entirety.

Let us consider the social aspects of this bill. This bill will enable the thousands of store clerks in our State to look forward to a day to rest and to spend with their families—the one day they can spend with their children who are not in school on Sunday. If this bill is passed, we are, in effect, improving in another way the working conditions of the people of Pennsylvania.

This bill has been prompted by the thousands of letters which have been received from the people of Pennsylvania asking that something be done for the men and women who work in department stores. This bill is favored by the American Federation of Labor, a large, organized Labor Group of our Commonwealth, who are speaking for the people who have no one to speak for them. If business will not permit its employees to have a day of rest, then this kind of legislation is necessary.

This is a necessary bill. It is a bill which the people of Pennsylvania want and need. I am in favor, and I hope, gentlemen, that you will support it with your votes.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

REASONS FOR VOTE

Mr. J. P. O'DONNELL filed the following reasons for his vote on Senate Bill No. 405:

Sen. Bill 405 is a bad piece of legislation.

And tends to chase business both large and small from the City of Philadelphia;

That is why I am voting against it.

Mr. SCHAAF filed the following reasons for his vote on Senate Bill No. 405.

Mr. Speaker and Members of the House: I am compelled to vote against this bill because of my conviction that this is bad legislation. I too deplore and condemn the commercialization and secularization of Sunday, but this bill is not the answer. On July 28, 1959, I, along with others, suggested the unconstitutionality of such legislation. I believe that time will prove us correct. It is a pity that this House should become a pawn in a pitched economic battle.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair requests the Speaker to return to the rostrum.

The SPEAKER (Hiram G. Andrews) IN THE CHAIR.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Armstrong for presiding.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 424, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 12, 1951 (P. L. 90) entitled "Liquor Code" further regulating the issuance and transfer of liquor licenses.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mrs. GAILEY, GOLDSTEIN and A. M. LEE asked unanimous consent to offer an amendment at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the Clerk for information

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 404), page 3, lines 17, 18 and 19, by striking out "A PROTEST IS DULY" in line 17, all of line 18, and "DICATES THAT" in line 19, and inserting "in the board's opinion"

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of an amendment at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. GAILEY. Mr. Speaker, very briefly, what this amendment does is to restore this bill to the form in which it was originally introduced in the Senate and which just passed that body and came over here to the House. If I am not incorrect, I believe both Party platforms this year called for the passage of legislation such as this. This is the so-called Anti-Skid Row Bill.

Under the terms of the bill as it was originally introduced, the bill says that if in the opinion of the Liquor Control Board a new license or transfer in certain conditions would be detrimental to the welfare, health, peace and morals of the inhabitants of a neighborhood within a radius of 500 feet, then the Board shall, I repeat, shall, refuse to issue such a new license or approve a transfer. In other words, it is concerned with those areas where principally the neighborhood is overrun with taprooms and a surplus of taprooms, most of them of low nature which have contributed enormously to the run-down condition of the neighborhood over the years.

The bill was amended and language was inserted into the bill giving the Board discretion in these cases only if a protest was made to the Board. In other words, some inhabitant of the neighborhood, someone living within 500 feet of the proposed new license or transfer must formally protest to the Liquor Control Board before the Board would have the right to disapprove. Therefore, if no protest was forthcoming, and most of the people who live in neighborhoods of this sort are without the financial resources that would enable them to hire counsel and to make such a protest, that unless such a protest were made, then the Board would be unable to deny such a transfer or new license.

It seems to me, Mr. Speaker, that the bill as originally introduced and passed the Senate is a much better bill than the one which we have before us here in the House as it was amended in committee, and that this amendment would replace the bill to its original form and meet not only with the letter of our platform pledges, but also with their spirit.

I ask all the Members of the House, on both sides, to support the amendment in order that our platform pledges might be fulfilled.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GAILEY. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, was this bill amended in the Senate?

Mr. GAILEY. Mr. Speaker, this bill was not amended in the Senate: the Bill was amended in the House Committee.

Mr. McCORMACK. And the amendment in the House Committee was striking out the phrase "in the Board's opinion" and putting in a provision.

Mr. GAILEY. If I may quote it, inserting the language, "if protest is duly made and the preponderance of evidence indicates that such a license or transfer would be detrimental."

Mr. McCORMACK. Your amendment would restore it to the position it was in when it passed the Senate?

Mr. GAILEY. That is right,

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I have no particular quarrel with what the gentleman from York in what he is trying to do, except that I feel that the bill as amended in the Committee of the House was a desire to protect the licensee, to protect him in this way the Board could not arbitrarily decide not to transfer a license if the Board found it was detrimental to the health, morals, welfare and safety of the inhabitants within a radius of 500 feet of the proposed establishment, but they felt that there had to be a preponderance of the evidence and there had to be a protest made.

I think that is a safeguard it would be well for us not to delete because if you restore "in the Board's opinion," you would have a situation where they could arbitrarily within their rights decide not to transfer a license even where there had been no protest lodged by the residents of the immediate neighborhood. I think this safeguard was wisely put into this bill by the House Committee and we should not disturb it at this time.

It is true that the provision was in the platform of both Parties. It is a very desirable bill, and I would like to see it on its way as soon as possible because of the chaotic conditions that exist in the big cities, especially today, as a result of the Skid Rows that exist. So, in order to expedite it, I would ask that the amendment be voted down and we pass the bill as it is at the present time.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I am a co-sponsor of this amendment with the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

A similar bill was debated and lost by a few votes in the 1957 session. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Floyd, and myself are co-sponsors of House Bill No. 5, serving the same purpose.

The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack, is worried about the licensee. We as the judges of the morals and safety of the people of this Commonwealth should be worried about the residents of areas which taverns have invaded to the detriment of the community. I speak of the Point Breeze area in the city of Pittsburgh. I know Mr. Floyd and Mayor Dilworth can give you numerous instances in the city of Philadelphia. These particular amendments are constructive: the bill as amended in Committee is destructive. Let us stand behind the Republican and Democratic platforms and vote for this amendment.

Mr. GAILEY. I stand only to ask for a roll call vote on these amendments, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair was about to ask the gentleman from York whether he desired a voice vote, a division or a roll call.

Mr. GAILEY. I ask for a roll call, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The roll will be called.

Mr. PETROSKY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the amendment offered by the gentleman from York, Mr. Gailey.

I am afraid we are going far afield in event that we adopt the proposed amendment. We go so far as to create a super board in liquor control that would have basically a decision that would be made and then a decision that could not, of course, be appealed from further in our courts. True enough, with this amendment to be adopted and the act provided for, a hearing an appeal on the basis of facts or new facts, then there is a possibility that we would not be giving away our legislative prerogative here and handing everything over to a body that is created by the Legislature to rule upon as they see fit.

The amendment that was placed in the bill in Committee was a satisfactory amendment. It would conform to what was agreed to in both Republican and Democratic platforms, that where there was a case, and there was a preponderance of evidence, that the basic health and welfare of the community was affected they could so act. To apply this amendment, you would necessarily have to give the right to some of our citizenry to have the right of appeal as well. In that manner, then, we would not be giving away our legislative prerogative, but at this date, to so give all power to a Board, as we would in the adoption of this amendment, I believe would be the wrong thing to do for all the people in the Commonwealth.

I pass no reflection upon the Board at present or upon any other board that may sit, but I do not believe the 210 Members of the House here want to hand super powers to any board or commission such as this amendment would give.

I ask the Membership of this House to vote down the amendment. The amendment is opposed by the Federation of Clubs groups throughout the Commonwealth, the Tavern Association people, as well, for the protection of a license and a patrolled industry that they are involved in today.

Mr. A. M. LEE. I do not wish to prolong this, Mr. Speaker, but I would just like to say briefly that I feel on the question of vesting the discretion in the Liquor Control Board, the situation that this bill is designed to correct is a serious one and I think that vesting the discretion in the Liquor Control Board is the best way to go about it. I feel that in requiring a preponderance of the evidence in a situation such as this we are opening up a Pandora's Box that may very well negate the effectiveness of this particular bill.

I would merely like to say that the amendment offered by the gentleman from York and the gentleman from Allegheny is a good amendment, and I hope all the Members of the House will support it.

Mr. BELL. I am speaking very briefly in support of the amendment. The amendment should be supported because to have a protest you have to have someone make the protest. Because of indifference or perhaps fear, you may not have the protest. Therefore, I urge the support of the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Messrs. GAILEY and FOERSTER and were as follows:

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 322, entitled:

An Act amending the "Pennsylvania Fair Employment Practice Act" approved October 27, 1955 (P. L. 744) prohibiting discrimination in the selling leasing or financing of commercial housing and discrimination in places of public accommodation resort or amusement because of race color religious creed ancestry or national origin and changing the name of the Pennsylvania Fair Employment Practice Commission to the Pennsylvania Human Relation Commission.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mrs. MONROE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak a few words on Bill 322.

One of the greatest needs which exists today in the state of Pennsylvania is an urgent need for good housing for the citizens in the low income brackets.

House Bill 322 will make it possible that these particular citizens will have the advantage of decent homes. I do not believe that there exists one man or one woman who would not recognize this great need and not do his or her duty toward his or her neighbor and would oppose the bill which would give these people the opportunity of proper environment which many enjoy.

Let us extend our good feelings in helping them to acquire this goal. Members of the House, in my opinion, this legislation is good and very much needed in the state of Pennsylvania and certainly should be on the statute books.

It is at once apparent from an examination of the data that substandard housing is by no means limited to any one section of the country.

The extent of substandard housing and the characteristics which render dwelling units substandard, however, vary considerably from region to region and still more widely from city to city.

On the basis of all the criteria considered, cities in the southeast region are found to have the largest proportion of substandard units, while housing in the northeastern region is relatively more adequate.

It might be interesting to know that as a whole 15 percent of the urban dwelling units lack indoor flush toilets. In the southeast 32 percent of all city dwelling units lack this facility. In the southwest 25 percent; in the northwest 19 percent; in the northeast only 12 percent.

We could go on and on and describe the other characteristics of bad housing but suppose we stop here.

What is the cause of bad housing? There is a simple answer; people cannot afford to live in good homes.

To meet this problem we have had the establishment of the United States Housing Authority which supplied financial assistance, which most local housing authority can get, and without which they would be powerless to erect a single dwelling. The Capital assistance consists of capital loans and annual contributions.

Local Housing Authorities may borrow from the United States Housing Authority as much as 90 percent of the cost of low-rent projects. The loans bear interest—usually 3 to 3½ percent and must be paid within 60 years. The original United States Housing Act provided eight hundred million dollars for such loans.

Naturally the question is asked: can slum dwellers be rehoused? Wherever there are cities on this troubled globe, an appalling number of humans find shelter in obsolete, odororous, decaying houses. Many are kindling for disastrous fires.

For only a few dollars more rent per month, these millions of people can be decently housed, if the job is undertaken on a large scale, that permits the employment of all possible economies and either ignores profit or reduces it drastically.

Very little of the worst housing is profitable, so it is not held in high esteem by its owners.

Consideration for the general welfare suggest that it be removed and something better provided. Bad housing is admittedly one of the principal afflictions of the poor.

Thousands of unselfish men and women in various countries believe that housing is logically and practically the first point of attack. They have been studying the problem for a long time and they bring valuable contributions to its solution.

Oftimes people can live in cities without seeing the sore-spots in housing, that is in old, rich and proud municipalities. Sometimes not too far distant from a State Capitol, slum areas can be seen in the background: indeed, they are not pleasant sights to behold.

The philosophy underlying the present trend toward subsidized public housing appears to be that every man, no matter what his economic status, is entitled to a decent place in which to live—just as it has become an accepted part of American thought; that every child is entitled to a free education, no matter what his parents income.

Proponents of subsidized housing say that, like free education, the civic values of decent housing in place of crime-breeding slums are such that all citizens benefit and should therefore join paying the cost.

Whether the members of the industry share this view or not, it must be admitted that it has apparently gained considerable public acceptance without commenting on the right or wrong of the idea of government subsidized housing. Yes, I know we object to subsidy from the government on many grounds, but on the other hand let us look at the positive side of the problem.

This type of aid to housing puts people in a decent home and active participants in the community in which they live. This would encourage building in the country as well as in cities and small towns, but cities most of all.

In some of our first class cities, there are buildings so old that they are on the verge of collapse.

Regardless of that, the people need good housing that will meet regulations in terms of safety, comfort and well being of human needs.

Poor housing is a menace to any community. It contributes to delinquency; it does not help the appearance of a neighborhood; it is defective.

I respectfully ask you to vote favorably on this House Bill 322, Printer's No. 1161.

Mr. IRVIS. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to follow the lady from Philadelphia and I should like to address a few remarks in favor of House Bill 322 this afternoon.

I rise to my feet as a freshman Legislator with, I believe, justifiable trepidation. I decided when I first came into the Hall of this House as a bubbling neophyte to do very little bubbling and a lot of neophytting.

I decided I would keep my eyes and ears open and my mouth reasonably shut. Having seen what happens to the experienced men on this floor who rise to address this august body, I think my rule is an excellent one. Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, the problem to which Bill 322 addresses itself is one of such magnitude in this country and in this Commonwealth of ours that I find it incumbent upon me to break my firm rule.

Since the end of World War II all of us in the Hall of this House are aware that we have lived in a house with glass walls. Prior to World War II, it was possible for us to burn, to tear down, to destroy each other and only we knew about it. Since World War II we have been watched by the emerging peoples of this world to see whether or not we are actually, as the Communists label us, a bunch of pious hypocrites proclaiming democracy and the brotherhood of man in our constitution, but refusing to abide by the proclamation.

We are watched by better than 2 billion people in this world. Most of those people are colored. The white race, while in the majority in this Commonwealth and in the United States of America, is not in the majority in the entire world. My children and your children and perhaps our grandchildren will have some day to give an accounting of whether or not we truly believe in the democracy we proclaim.

The Supreme Court in Brown vs. the School Board, in 1954, gave to the world the proclamation that the elimination of discrimination was within the public policy of the United States of America. This statement I think is no longer open to successful attack. But this declaration of policy in the School Board cases has not solved the problem and it will not solve the problem as long as the ghetto is with us. And the ghetto keeps with us all the problems of the ghetto—economic waste, the waste of human intelligence, crime and disease. And crime and disease and economic waste, Mr. Speaker and Members of this House, I know you know do not remain inside the ghetto but spread their evils throughout the total community.

You cannot live in your nice lawn-fronted home in the suburbs and keep other peoples in filthy ghettos in the center of the city and expect that the problems of the ghettos will remain inside the ghettos. They will not.

I am asking today, and those of us who have endorsed this bill with our names and our reputations are asking, that this House go on record as joining with eight other states in this Union, Colorado, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Oregon, New York, New Jersey, California and Washington, in establishing it as a law that no one in this Commonwealth shall be refused a decent place to live because of his race, his color, his religious creed, his national or geographical origin.

Public housing authorities and urban redevelopment authorities are already covered in 26 cities and 13 states under similar legislation.

I point out to the ladies and gentlemen of this House, that all of us campaigned on platforms endorsed by our respective parties. I quote, Mr. Speaker, from page 79 of the House Legislative Journal, which contains the Republican platform, under Civil Rights, the following words:

"Recognizing existing inequities which some of our citizens experience in employment, education and housing because of race, creed, color, sex and age, the Republican Party of Pennsylvania pledges the following:

Expansion and strengthening of the present Commission so that a definite program can be launched and carried out to eradicate the evil of discrimination, as set forth in this plank, wherever it is encountered.

A plain endorsement, I point out to you gentlemen, of this Housing Legislation.

And on the Democratic side, the Democratic platform, quoting from page 75 of the House Legislative Journal, Section 16: The Democratic Party pledges:

An end to discrimination based on age, sex, race, creed, color or national origin in education, employment, housing, and public accommodations. Vigilant protection of civil liberties.

I have heard from several friends of mine in the Hall of this House a number of apprehensions and misapprehensions concerning this proposed legislation. I have been told by some of my good friends that the answer is education, and I think they believe this. I think they are sincere but they are in error mainly because they think of education as schooling. They refuse to see that laws may not themselves be educated, that legislation may in itself be a boon to the people by teaching them to follow their own instincts. Pure education in itself has never worked and the reason it will not work in this field is that a number of decent, honest, upright people in this community of ours, this Commonwealth of ours, are afraid to stand for their principles against the powerful suasion of minority groups who are vociferous, who are loud and sometimes dangerous, in their opposition to this type of legislation.

I could name a number of organizations and hundreds and hundreds of people who have spoken in favor of this bill. I shall refrain from doing that because of the time it is and I know you can talk a bill to death and I do not intend to do that. However, I shall be happy, if anybody wishes, to give some of these names.

Mr. Speaker, for the edification of the House, I ask the House's indulgence while I read to the House Members the following—I think this may come as new information, and I hope those of you who are on the borderline of decision will pay close attention to some of these statistics:

Discrimination hits more than one million citizens of this Commonwealth every year, three-quarters of whom are Negroes. Incidentally, the fact that I, myself, am a Negro means that I am very potently aware of the problems which Negroes face in this Commonwealth. But there are men and women seated here today who have other racial, national and geographical origins, and they too are aware of their particular and peculiar problem.

This particular problem, the problem of getting decent housing, is aggravated chiefly in the city of Philadelphia, with a population of a half million Negroes, and the city of Pittsburgh with its population of more than 100,000 Negroes. The total population of Philadelphia is better than two million people, but the restrictions in Philadelphia have been so severe that in 10 of the 16 suburbs of Philadelphia there has been a decline in the last seven years in non-white population. Negroes have been refused time and time again in the Philadelphia area the opportunity to buy homes which they could afford. Incidentally, in the Philadelphia area there are more than 25,000 Negro families earning better than $5,000 a year, and they are unable to secure adequate new or used housing.

In Allegheny County we built in the period of 1950 to 1955, 40,000 new homes—40,000—and of the 40,000 new homes only 130 were made available for Negro occupancy; out of 40,000, only 130. And in the city of Pittsburgh, the city of which I am proud and of which I think all of us from Pittsburgh are justifiably proud, we still have to excuse ourselves, for these statistics: 67.7 percent, nearly 68 percent, of all the Negroes living in Pittsburgh live in three out of the thirty-two Pittsburgh wards, and more than 50 percent of those Negroes live in homes officially classified as substandard. The reason for this, is obvious. It is not that Negroes enjoy living in substandard homes. It is the fact that they are ghettoized; they are surrounded by invisible walls which have been raised not primarily by the individual home owners, but primarily by the men who are in the business of selling and leasing real estate, even though these men will tell you that they are doing it only because their clients tell them to. This I do not believe.

Philadelphia cannot be proud of itself either in this matter of restriction of home buying. In the period of 1946 to 1955 Philadelphia built better than 200,000 new homes. Negroes were able to get less than one percent. Approximately 1,900 out of the 200,000 new homes were made available for Negroes. I need not remind you of the disgraceful thing that happened in Levittown in this Commonwealth only two years ago. All of you, I am sure, have that freshly in mind.

Friends of mine have said to me, this is your problem you have to worry about it, your people have to solve it. This is arrogant nonsense and shortsightedness. All of us pay the taxes on public housing. I do and you do. In Allegheny County 71 percent of the Negroes who are available for public housing are receiving it. We are subsidizing better than 71 percent of the Negroes in Allegheny County eligible for public housing, compared with the white statistics of only 10 percent. These same people could be out renting and buying if they were permitted to do so.

Let me say this in concluding my remarks about this bill. First of all, I shall have to apologize to my teacher friends who know this is poor teaching procedure to say what a thing is not before you say what it is, but I have heard so much misinformation, and the Press incidentally has given out so much misinformation about this bill, that I think it better that I say some of the things the bill does not do.

The bill does not enforce integration. It is not a compulsive integration bill. If this bill becomes law in this Commonwealth, a man may refuse to sell, or sell his house to whomever he pleases—for no reason at all if he does not wish to give a reason, or for any reason except one. He may not say to me I refuse to sell you the house because of your race, or tell you he refuses to sell you the house because of your race, your color, your creed or your national or geographical origin. If he chooses to keep his mouth shut about his reason, nobody can do anything about it. He is not forced to sell his house to anybody.

Another thing this bill does not do. This bill does not touch the owner of his own personal residence, who lives in that personal residence. He may discriminate any way he chooses. Another thing this bill does not do. This bill does not discriminate against real estate brokers. I have received communications from various realtors and real estate brokers of this state, and they have told many of you that the bill is discriminatory, that a real estate broker may not discriminate, whereas the owner of a home may. This is not so. This is one of the big exceptions made in the bill, introduced by an amendment by Mrs. Monroe. Another thing the bill does not do. The bill is not punitive. The three important words in this bill are, conciliation, conference and persuasion, and all the machinery of the present FEPC bill is steadily maintained in this legislation. Only after all the investigation and private conferences and hearings are made, and only after the case is taken into court and gone over De Novo, only then can a person be found in contempt and only then can he be punished.

This type of legislation is a statement of public policy rather than a statement of public coercion. This type of legislation is constitutional under the police powers of the state, and it is so stated in the legislation.

In conclusion, for those who are—I was about to say timid, but perhaps that is not a wise word—those who wish to follow their constituency, as they say, very carefully, I suggest to them that they have a higher duty than following a public poll, that the duty of any Legislator is to lead, not merely to follow, for if he merely follows he may be following the most ignorant of his constituency and the most vociferous.

I should like to read into the record, in conclusion, the following, taken from the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph from the file of May 24, 1959, in which the editorial writer says as follows:

It is particularly fitting that the law should lead us out of this stalemate between our better feelings and our inherited prejudices. Government should not mean the passage of routine laws. It should mean the elevation of the Commonwealth through the development of legislation to permit us to bring out our best and finest instincts.

Government at its best should lead where the people are consciously or unconsciously eager to follow.

I submit, Mr. Speaker, in asking for the support of this House for Bill 322, that the people of this Commonwealth are consciously eager to follow the lead of this legislation.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. Speaker, this bill is of necessity an emotional bill because it deals with prejudices which are basically emotional. I know that there are those who would say, you now go too far, this is an invasion of my property rights. And I ask: What is this property right—the right to sell to whom I choose? And I then ask, Was there ever such a right? I say I think not, and this is why. A right presupposes a duty, a duty upon someone. In this case the duty would be upon society to enforce the right. In fact, does society enforce this right? The answer is no.

On the contrary, restrictive covenants have been found unconstitutional by our Supreme Court and, in fact, there is nothing in our Constitution or in any other law which spells out this right. In fact, our early history shows that the right to sell was a limited right, more accurately defined as a privilege, subject to the power in society to take away the privilege in the interest of our entire democracy.

The law is that you may sell your land to whomever you choose, provided society does not choose to exercise its right to take your property for a school, railroad, highway, fire station, police station, city hall, library, public housing,—and now since the advent of urban renewal and redevelopment—stores, office buildings, food centers, food storage, theaters and manufacturing plants. All of these rights in government to take private property, whether the individual wants to or not, have effectively eliminated any so-called right. In other words the so-called property right is a limited one, particularly when it comes in conflict with society's needs.

Does anyone challenge the right of the fire marshal to blow up a row of houses to save a town? Of course not. In other words, when property rights conflict with the lives of individuals, or their freedoms, property rights must fall. Does anyone challenge the right of cities to zone the use of land? Does anyone challenge the right of government to tax the transfer of real estate? Of course not, even though the power to tax is the power to destroy. The right therefore is a defeasible one, subject to the call of society. I believe society must issue that call for a fair housing bill.

There are three basic needs of a minority group. They are, in order, to get a decent job, a decent house and an opportunity for education. In the climb up the ladder these things must be guaranteed as a right.

I do not mean to try the patience of this House; however, it is my belief that this bill is of tremendous importance to our state, nation and to the free peoples of the world. The spotlight of world opinion is upon us, and this is doubly true after the shameful incidents of the solid South. These incidents have done more to aid the Communist cause abroad than any other single factor, and they have placed an additional burden on the free people of the North to prove to the world that we believe in the principle that all men are created equal.

The Communist party has created a struggle for world domination; ours has been and will continue to be a struggle for world freedom. How can we win world opinion to our side when we do not practice what we preach?

There is a time to lead and a time to follow. As Representatives it is our duty to follow the will of our people. However, in times of emergency we must lead our people in a path that will save the world from atomic destruction. At this juncture in history bold action to turn back the rising tide of Communism is a must. We cannot admit to the free people of the world that we believe in the principle of equality and then set up a gentlemen's agreement in our economic, social and educational fields.

As a Christian I am bound to the law of the brotherhood of man. As a lawyer I am bound to the Declaration of Independence that all men are created equal. As a Representative I am bound to save our state and nation from destruction. Members we cannot walk away from our responsibility. I ask you to vote in favor of this bill.

Mr. FLOYD. This bill is known as the fair housing bill. It will prohibit discrimination in selling, leasing, or financing of commercial housing against Negroes and other non-white citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Discrimination based on race and religion, whether it is in employment, education or housing has the same effect of demoralizing a person; it also discourages investment in certain areas; HB 322 would open up the market, relieve the congested areas, and remove the stigma of the so-called changing area; it would also place the renewal areas in a more favorable position to compete for the investment dollar. Many brokers and builders are opposed to this unwritten agreement. They will tell you that they would like to sell to Negroes and other non-white groups but they are prohibited, except where neighborhood is labelled as Colored or changing to colored, and if they do not approve this agreement these unethical characters will withdraw their business from them and give it to someone else. So you can see that HB-322 is very important to white and non-white, in Pennsylvania. I think that Governor Lawrence should be commended for his efforts on behalf of this bill. This bill was rejected in committee and if Governor Lawrence had not called in some of the opposition and persuaded them to support House Bill 322 it would not have been on the calendar for final passage today. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, Fellow Members of the General Assembly, visiting dignitaries, ladies and gentlemen, it is with a great deal of pleasure that I address this August body on this auspicious occasion.

In these days of satellites and sputniks, when the minds of men are turned toward the effort of piercing the ethereal realm, seeking to find out what exists in the aerial region, one is prone to ask the question—have we so well mastered the terra firma that we can now afford to turn our minds to go beyond the stratosphere?

Scientific evidence proves to us that we are not yet conscious of the many valuable properties which the earth itself possesses. Just a few years ago, if we looked for the definition of uranium, we would have found that it was described as a white worthless substance, found in the earth, but today we find quite a different story. In our own time, we have seen the discoveries by medical men of cures and treatments for tuberculosis, pneumonia and many other diseases, which were once considered deadly, even polio. The discovery of the Salk Vaccine has reduced the death rate. Most of these cures came from the earth, and who knows, but that the cure for cancer still lies undiscovered by scientists in the bosom of the earth.

It is most regrettable, that in these days of scientific discoveries, we have not made ourselves sincerely conscious of the greatest problem existing in the world, and more especially in our own beloved America, namely, the great lack of human understanding. Our failure to idealize the thought by each of us, that, I am my brother's keeper, and that we are all children of one God, has caused many of our brothers to be deprived of many of their inalienable rights under God and even our country.

The Constitution of our country, which to my mind, is the greatest document conceived in the minds of a few men and written by human hand, does not in itself promise happiness to our inhabitants, but guarantees the pursuit of happiness to all within our shores. The right to abridge the privilege of any man or woman in his pursuit, is both unGodly and unAmerican. Many countries which have condoned this practice, have according to History fallen; such lands as Rome, Greece, Spain, France, and even in our day, Belgium and Germany.

It has been truthfully said, that history repeats itself, and since this is true, we as lawmakers must of necessity enact such potent Civil Rights bills, and so strictly enforce them, that when future history shall have been written, our great nation shall not be added to these fallen countries, because of our own shortsightedness, negligence or failure.

I frankly admit, that we cannot legislate the minds of men, but I am also fully conscious that in making of such laws, poignancy should be the watchword to such an extent, that the effect of our Constitution and that of these laws, may make an indelible imprint upon the minds of all, that we may more greatly realize that we are Americans all, regardless of race, creed or color.

As America in its short history has today emerged as the leader of nations, its increase in integrity and power must not be endangered by the actions of a few, who through ignorance have stamped our country with the taint of prejudice and segregation, but we who sit in the seat of government must leave no stone unturned until we shall have succeeded in removing this blot from our country, and especially our Commonwealth, so that this may become the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave.

REASONS FOR VOTE

Mr. HOCKER filed the following reasons for his vote on House Bill No. 322:

Mr. Speaker:

I wish to file my reason for voting against H. B. 322—I think it is discriminatory to only allow people to buy one kind of property; they should have the right to buy any property.

Mrs. KOOKER filed the following reasons for her vote on House Bill No. 322:

I cannot support House Bill No. 322 because—House Bill No. 322 would limit the discretion of an individual as to the disposition of his real property which he owns and upon which he pays taxes to his State and Nation. This legislation would be an infringement upon his personal and individual rights and liberties as an American citizen. Enforced legislation limiting the rights of an individual regarding his real property breeds a rebellious people—education produces a tolerant people, and I feel what this bill seeks to accomplish can best be done by education.

Mrs. B. Z. MILLER filed the following reasons for her vote on House Bill No. 322:

I am voting against House Bill No. 322 because of commitments I have made in answer to many letters and telegrams from my constituents who voted for me strenuously opposing this bill.

They do not base their objections on race, religion or creed but are strenuously opposed to being regimented by law.

They consider this bill an invasion of their property rights and look upon this type of legislation as an infringement of this right.

The SPEAKER. The debate on this bill would have been a credit to the Congressional scene at Washington.

Mr. McCANN. While the vote is being tabulated, Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay a compliment to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Irvis. For the first time this session he spoke into this microphone and I think he added dignity to this wonderful House of ours. I compliment him on his maiden speech.

Mr. IRVIS. I rise to accept the very nice compliment given the Members of this House who debated this measure. I also rise to tell the Majority Leader that that is the finest compliment I have ever been paid in my life by one of the finest men it has ever been my privilege to meet.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILLS PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 325, Printer's No. 999,
House Bill No. 900, Printer's No. 1193,
House Bill No. 953, Printer's No. 1083,
House Bill No. 1018, Printer's No. 1086,
House Bill No. 1059, Printer's No. 764,
House Bill No. 1122, Printer's No. 1235,
House Bill No. 1148, Printer's No. 1144 and
House Bill No. 1336, Printer's No. 1194

were passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1376 entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 29, 1956 (P. L. 1803) entitled "An act providing for the establishment of forestry conservation camps *** and for the rehabilitation and training of male youth ***" authorizing the acceptance and return of certain juveniles as campers and providing for reimbursement by the county for expenses.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, on House Bill 1376, yesterday I furnished to the Minority Leader, Mr. Johnson, a thorough explanation of the bill, but for the record the following questions can be answered very quickly.

It does not cost one penny more in any county by the County Commissioners of that county than they now pay and could possibly cost less. For example, the individuals that are sent to the various courts, to the Pennsylvania Training School at Morgantown and from there on sent to the Forestry Camps, the present law provides that the County Commissioners of the respective county from which the individual has been sent to the Pennsylvania Training School, pick up the cost of that individual according to the billing sent to the respective county, the County Commissioners office.

House Bill 1376 really could do two things. At the present time the basic law does not provide that the county pays only 50 percent when the individual is sent to the Pennsylvania Training School, but this bill does provide that when they are sent to the Forestry

Camp it would be 50 percent, although the billing has only been on an average of 50 percent to the individual counties.

This would help in the administration end and in the bookkeeping of the respective charge to the counties. It would not cost one cent more than any county is now paying on any individual that they have there in their charge.

I believe yesterday I furnished the answers to these questions to Mr. Johnson, and I believe that the bill is a very good bill and deserves the support of the entire House.

Mr. TOMPKINS. When this bill was called up, the Minority Leader was busy elsewhere and did not realize that it was being called up. It is true that the Majority Leader furnished Mr. Johnson with a statement of reviewing this bill yesterday, but it would be better if we had an opportunity to discuss this matter with this information in our caucus.

For that reason I would request that this bill be passed over for today until such time as we have an opportunity to caucus on it.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I did not understand that to be the fact. If that is the fact, I shall certainly consent to the bill being passed over. I apologize, then.

The SPEAKER. The Chair suggests that the bill be placed on the final passage postponed calendar, since it has already passed third reading. The Chair will entertain such a motion.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be placed on the final passage postponed calendar.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1405, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 6, 1951 (P. L. 68) entitled "An act authorizing the Department of Welfare the Department of Health or any departmental administrative board commission or officer of either department to proceed by injunction or other process in the court of common pleas in any county where an alleged unauthorized activity is committed * * *" authorizing legal action to restrain or prohibit the establishing conducting or operating of institutions subject to supervision by such departments in violation of rules and regulations.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. Speaker, this bill purports to grant an additional remedy and power, or give to the Department of Welfare or Health, as the case might be, an additional remedy against those persons who have apparently or presumably violated a rule or regulation of the Department. With that I have no argument.

However, I also detect, I believe, a gleam in this legislation, an attempt on the part of the Commonwealth to obtain more power and perhaps more jurisdiction over our county institution districts and county institutions. If that is the case, and after carefully reading the bill, I am unable to determine in my own mind the purpose and extent of the provisions of the bill, if that is the purpose of this bill, to grant to the Department of Health or Welfare, as the case might be, power over county institution districts which they do not now enjoy, I say the bill is deceptive; I say the bill does not clearly so state, and I say it is bad legislation.

It is difficult, as I said before, for me to ascertain the purpose and intent of this bill. Now if that is not the purpose, and if that is not what this bill does, I would be willing to stand corrected, but if it is going to do what I presume and think it is going to do, then I think it is bad legislation and it should be voted down.

Mr. LOPRESTI. Mr. Speaker, I believe that the purpose as suggested by Mr. Bowman is correct. The Department now has the right to make certain rules and regulations, and of course, the institution district can, under the present law, choose to ignore certain regulations which are made by the Department.

I believe that there are other methods perhaps by which the Department could proceed against the institution district to accomplish their purpose. However it would be a cumbersome legal proceeding and this bill attempts to set up a proceeding whereby the Department can see that its regulations are enforced. If the Department is to have the right to regulate the institution district in certain matters, then certainly they should also have the right to have their regulations enforced, and this makes it possible for the Department to enforce their regulations without cumbersome legal proceedings. I think that is the purpose of the bill.

Mr. BOWMAN. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti.

The SPEAKER. Would the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LOPRESTI. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BOWMAN. Will the gentleman advise us under present law what power either the Department of Health or the Department of Welfare has to make regulations which would affect the operation of county institution districts?

Mr. LOPRESTI. I do not presently know, I mean I could not give the answer to that offhand but I am quite certain the departments have the right to go in and inspect the premises and to set up certain regulations for the inmates of certain institutions—the bed space and things of that sort—the number of patients that can be kept within a certain area. I think those rules are already set up by the department and those restrictions are placed on the institution district.

Mr. BOWMAN. Mr. SPEAKER. Is that power all-inclusive in scope? By that I mean, do they have power to promulgate rules and regulations with respect to all activity of county institutions and county institution districts?

Mr. LOPRESTI. I would not think so, no. However, this bill does not extend the power to regulate it as I view it, it merely gives the power to enforce what regulations they are able to make under existing laws. Of course, if they make no regulations under existing law then they would have nothing to go into court to enjoin or to enforce institution district to obey.

Mr. BOWMAN. I thank the gentleman.

That is precisely the problem with which we are confronted today. What are the powers of the department? In what fields do they have the power to promulgate rules and regulations? Without that knowledge I think it is a dangerous thing to vote upon a bill concerning which we as a body have very little knowledge.

Mr. Lopresti has stated that it is only in those cases where they presently have rule making power that this bill would apply. Perhaps that is true, perhaps it is not true. Under those circumstances since we would like knowledge to intelligently vote upon this bill, I request that the bill be defeated.

Mr. BOIES. Mr. Speaker, the bill as I understand it, gives the department no more power to make rules and regulations than they already have and have had for some time. It merely gives them power to enforce the regulations.

I do not care whether it is a county institution or a municipal institution or a children's home or what it is in the way of an institution, if it is supervised by the state department they certainly have the right to enforce the supervision in the matter of health and safety, where they have the right now to promulgate rules and regulations. I think it is certainly incumbent upon the part of this House to give them the power to enforce them. I ask all the Members of this House to support this bill.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. LOPRESTI. I shall, Mr. Seaker.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, about a year or so ago, the Department of Welfare had quite a running fight with all the county commissioners in the state of Pennsylvania over the administration of certain of their programs. They went into their counties or otherwise called them into Harrisburg on the carpet and for a few other things.

Does this bill have its foundations in that particular difficulty at that time, that they want now to get injunctive power to compel those members of those institutions to comply or what is it?

Mr. LOPRESTI. Mr. Speaker, I cannot read into this anything other than what is written in it in the form of its amendment. I do not know what if anything prompted the department to ask for this particular legislation. However, the legislation itself, if you read the amended section, merely adds to the present law the following language: "any person copartnership, association, corporation or any county, county institution district or municipal association from establishing, conducting or operating any institution agency or activity which under the laws of this Commonwealth is subject to supervision by such department."

That presupposes that the department has the right to supervise, and if they have the right to supervise, then the department can enforce its regulations. What prompts it, I cannot answer. I cannot read anything into the bill because I am not familiar with that.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I must then reiterate what the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Bowman said, that the information which we have is too uncertain and indefinite and the purpose they are trying to get at here is too uncertain and indefinite for us to intelligently pass upon this bill at this time.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, and Members of the House, this bill only extends to the departments the right to do what they are now doing, supervising the licensed institutions. They are doing it with licensed institutions now. This allows them to do so, to supervise unlicensed institutions and see that they carry out the same rules and regulations that the other institutions in the state are now doing. That is all the bill does.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Greene, the Majority Leader, Mr. McCann.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I listened to the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, and I would like to make a motion to place the bill on the postponed calendar to be able to answer his question definitely in the record.

The SPEAKER. By unanimous consent a motion can be entertained. The Chair hears no objection.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?
It was agreed to.
On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. McCann. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be placed on the final passage postponed calendar.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

-------------------	-----------	-----------	----------

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1465, entitled:

An Act providing for the regulation of credit life insurance and credit accident and health insurance conferring powers and imposing duties on the Insurance Commissioner and prescribing penalties.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCANDLESS. Mr. Speaker, I oppose House Bill 1465 as being unfair to the independent small loan companies in Pennsylvania as well as against the public interest.

In Butler we have a local company, Community Finance Company, originally a part of the Community System, under which some 40 companies were organized in western Pennsylvania about 30 years ago. These were independent concerns locally owned with profits remaining in the home town. Today only seven out of forty such companies are in business. The others have been taken over by the large out-of-state concerns.

The Butler company continues. It serves the community well; its profits remain at home, and several hundred investors receive quarterly returns, this money remaining in the communities where we operate. Butler is one of only a few cities where a substantial part of the loan business is held by a local company. Over 900 small loan companies are licensed in Pennsylvania, for the most part now owned by chain companies whose profits go out of the state, never to return.

House Bill 1465 is sponsored by big interests, out-of-state. Confusion arises from the fact that credit life insurance is permitted on a group basis to cover commercial banks, finance companies and certain other lines where the dollar volume is huge. Such writing can be done at much less cost than providing individual policies. Under the Small Loan Law of this state, separate policies are written for each customer, this entirely at his option. Small loans, as a rule, are renewed when partially paid. Refunds on insurance are then given and a new policy written. As compared to group writing, many detailed records are required both by the loan company and by the home office. This insurance is on a retail basis as compared with wholesale.

House Bill 1465 is skillfully written and contains regulations which, without question, seem designed to cripple the small loan operator. For instance, claims are to be paid only on a schedule basis. This means, in case of death, where the borrower owes, say $300, and during the contract has missed four $25 payments, settlement would then be for $200 instead of $300. The widow would feel short-changed. She would resent such handling, and this regulation alone could be a factor in not providing any insurance, due to the ill will created with customers.

It should be noted that Pennsylvania law forbids any charge to customers for insurance written on a group basis by a small loan company. Other disturbing and unfair provisions can be cited. Regardless of the qualifications of the Commissioner of Insurance, this bill vests authority in one man alone, and we have no assurance for the future under such an act. Basically, the principle of one-man control is not good.

As mentioned, this bill was written by out-of-state interests and introduced in Pennsylvania and elsewhere. It has been defeated in Maryland and Virginia. It is not in the public interest and should be defeated in Pennsylvania.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, House Bill 1465 is a bill dealing with credit insurance. Now credit life insurance has risen to a position in United States economy which as of December 1958 amounted to a $21 billion annual business.

There are 35 million policies issued for this insurance. Pennsylvania ranks fourth in the nation, first in the policies, and fourth in the amount carried. We speak only of credit life.

It can be safely stated that credit accident and health is of a somewhat equal volume, at least it can be said its total in the United States would exceed $500 million.

All of the above is unregulated presently in Pennsylvania. Nineteen states in our Union have seen fit to adopt a regulatory statute, among which are New York, California, Illinois, New Jersey, Michigan, Wisconsin. This by the fact that only two years ago the N.A.I.C. worked and started the first legislation through the halls in their respective states.

What is credit life insurance and A and H business? Unlike life insurance there is not the competitive element which would serve to bring the rate down. This insurance is sold to a captive market in that it is available only to people who must borrow money. In many instances, these borrowers have no choice of the insurer and frequently do not even know they have the insurance. In this respect there is reverse competition, for the lending institutions will be inclined to sell that insurance to its borrowers whose rates are the highest in order to assure a great dividend or commission which is payable not to the borrower, but to the lending institution.

Who are the people who support this sound legislation?

The National Association of Insurance Commissioners, made up of the 50 insurance commissioners of the United States, the District of Columbia. In the past several years this body has worked with this problem and have model legislation which is recommended for passage for the purposes of regulation. House Bill 1465 is such a bill. It regulates. And, it has been acknowledged to be such a bill. Nineteen states writing approximately 40 percent of the contracts and 45 percent of the volume business in the United States have passed credit life A and H regulation statutes.

The United States Senate, through a duly designated committee, known as the Langer Committee, a subcommittee, has expressed its interest in this field of insurance and is keenly watching the states and what legislation they are passing to regulate this phase of insurance. The overwhelming majority of stock and mutual insurance companies in Pennsylvania, both domestic and foreign, but all of whom are doing business in Pennsylvania, are for this legislation. The Pennsylvania Federation of Mutual Insurance Companies, the Insurance Federation of Pennsylvania, the Life Insurance Association, The American Life Convention, the Pennsylvania Credit Union League and many trade associates have indicated their preference for this legislation.

Those who are opposed to the bill pass literature through the Halls of this House and they pass it without any signatures on the legislation. I submit that those who are responsible for this literature certainly have no authority to speak for the associations named at the end of their literature for you have been informed that that literature does not carry their approval. It is obvious that those opposed to it are certainly a small group of opponents, for if they care to be identified in person they would have signed their names and indicated so.

I would like to say that some of the opponents, from the statements I have indicated and shown, would bring us a little situation that would certainly bear to bring to light. Let us see what this looks like on a big scale, reading from Best's life insurance report of 1959 and we checked carefully the official report on page 21. There it lists the Alenco Life Insurance Company, incorporated and licensed to do business in Indiana in 1953. Capital in 1953, $200,000, par value of stock $100, number of shares 2,000. This is 1953.

This official insurance report will show that all the stock is owned by a banking firm, the company confines its operation to credit life insurance. With a capital of $200,000 in 1953, in 1958, from the official report, it has paid to its 2,000 share stockholders a dividend of $9 million and still has a surplus of $13.5 million for future distribution to stockholders. This is from $200,000, an investment of 2,000 shares in 1953. How nice it would have been to have one share of that Which is unregulated life insurance.

Here in Pennsylvania, in House Bill 1465, we are attempting to give to the Commissioner of Insurance, and I ask who else would you give it to but the man who is responsible for the operation of insurance in the Commonwealth, a right to regulate, and regulate what? The fees and rates of credit life insurance. If this is such a small business in Pennsylvania, let us look at what the official insurance reports of some of our major companies in Pennsylvania say. We have the 1958 official reports of the respective credit life companies in Pennsylvania. Let us say that the gross premiums for example in one reliable concern would indicate that they had $6.459 million of gross premiums. They had losses in the same year of $1.261 million. The report indicates and is attested to that this company paid in commissions that year $3.890 million. On a business of $6 million, a loss of $1 million, commissions of almost $4 million. That rate had to be a pretty good rate to pay that.

Let us say that the other major companies are in the same field and find that their reports bear out the official reports filed with the Insurance Commission and the Insurance Commissioner of Pennsylvania and show that these companies charge the rates they see fit to charge. There is no law in the Commonwealth that regulates them at the present time. There is no law in which anyone can regulate them in Pennsylvania at the present time.

House Bill 1465 does simply this: it grants to the Insurance Commissioner a right to regulate and that he should do. I am confident that the people of Pennsylvania want to give the Commissioner the right to regulate this insurance. All of us who are business people know that when we invest money we want the company to make money. That we agree to and that we want. But, I do not think any of us want to disagree that because those people who borrow and then buy this insurance should not pay a fair price of a premium for the insurance, but they should never be forced to pay any premiums of a type which would grant commissions far in excess of any natural profit that should be made by a company. For this they must pay themselves, as they pay the payments back on their home, their automobile, their furniture, or whatever they may have borrowed the money for.

Mr. Speaker, this is some of the soundest legislation that we will have an opportunity to pass in this House in this Session, not in an attempt to destroy anyone, nor in an attempt to destroy any company in any way, but only to grant to the Insurance Commissioner the right to regulate so that the people who borrow the money, and have to borrow it, will pay a fair and decent rate for the insurance which will support their loan, which is a part of their natural monthly payments.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that all of the Members of this House vote favorably on this legislation.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. WADE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I want to first thank Senator Berger for so graciously yielding the floor. I would like to make a short statement, with the permission of the Presiding Officer and the large number present.

Mr. President, the current visit of Vice-President Nixon to the Soviet Union holds the attention of officials at all levels here and in Washington and throughout the nation. Almost without exception, regardless of political identity, Administration and official leaders everywhere have spoke in glowing terms of the success achieved by our young Vice-President in meeting one challenging situation after another.

Almost from the moment Mr. Nixon stepped from his plane in Moscow, he has been confronted with provocations of one form or another.

His initial reception was described by the news media as purposely cool—virtually indicating that he and Mrs. Nixon were unwelcome guests. During subsequent days, including the now famous public debate with Premier Khrushchev, the official attempts to ridicule Vice-President Nixon, and through him the United States, have become even more obvious.

Whether by the coarse boasts and threats of Khrushchev, or the campaign of untruths by the Soviet press and radio, or the efforts even to disrupt Mrs. Nixon's meetings with groups of children, the Communists have sought to try the patience of the Vice-President, perhaps to induce him to say things which could be made to reflect unfavorably upon the United States, and otherwise complicate and destroy the effectiveness of his mission.

Every American has a right to be proud of the manner in which Vice-President Nixon has conducted himself in the face of these contrived difficulties. He has approached each situation with candor as well as good humor, and has displayed a commendable degree of self-restraint in the face of what I am sure have been tempting opportunities to reciprocate in kind.

His adept handling of this possibly most difficult assignment of his public life has won for the Vice-President the approval of leading figures, both public and private, in all parts of the free world.

Possibly the most significant development of all, however, is the apparent warm welcome Mr. and Mrs. Nixon are receiving from the Russian people, as distinguished from their Communist masters. In spite of the bitter propaganda and the other hindrances cited above, the news reports indicate that Soviet citizens are rallying increasingly to the Vice-President as a symbol of a nation—the United States—which they admire and perhaps hope to emulate when they have the chance someday. It would appear from the warm receptions the Nixon party has been accorded in recent days by Russian crowds that a large reservoir of genuine good will for America may exist behind the Iron Curtain in the Soviet Union itself.

Likewise, his warm reception in Poland and the great ovations given him and his party in that country, and the heartwarming atmosphere created by his entire trip is the most encouraging break in the cold war that has occurred in many, many years.

In any case, the effective ways in which the Vice-President has stated the case for freedom during the course of his trip is one more factor which speaks well for his elevation to a higher responsibility next year. I am hopeful that his Party, which is my Party, will recognize the qualifications which so befit him.

Once again, the entire world can look with hope and confidence in the future, that their sons and daughters may live in peace because of the visit of this outstanding American.

INTRODUCTION OF MAJOR GENERAL
HERBERT J. VANDER HEIDE

Mr. BELL. Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentlemen of the House, at this time I am honored to present to the House of Representatives Major General Herbert J. Vander Heide, Commanding General, 21st United States Army Corps, to receive in person the resolution of commendation we passed last week.

That is a rather cold presentation, and I would like to tell you more of the man you honored last week.

We have in Pennsylvania a Corps Headquarters of the United States Army. This Corps Headquarters administers the Reserve and ROTC for the states of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. General Vander Heide is the Commanding General of this area. He has under his command 265,000 inactive reservists. He has under his command 35,000 paid, active ready reservists. So he actually commands 300,000 of the civilian soldiers. Out of this group there are over 100,000 inactive reservists in Pennsylvania commanded by the General, and he has over 22,000 Pennsylvania boys in the active reserve, in the paid reserve under his command. He actually is one of our first citizens, you might say, by adoption, because we in the reserve feel he is truly worthy to be called a Pennsylvanian.

Let me tell you the status of the Army Reserve when General Vander Heide came to Pennsylvania two years ago, around this time two years ago. We were like a fatherless child; we did not have the support, we did not have the care and we did not have the interest. But through his personal attention 22,000 of our citizens of Pennsylvania today have been welded into a very fine reserve force. And let me tell you this, from the private to the general, this man they love, this man they respect, because he is a general who has always fought for his men.

It is with great honor, Mr. Speaker, that I present General Vander Heide to this House today to receive the resolution, which he justly deserves, for his distinguished service in Pennsylvania. I certainly hope those who come in the future will even match in the slightest degree his great leadership, and the great personal love shown to the men of Pennsylvania in the Reserve that General Vander Heide has shown to your neighbors and to my neighbors.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to present General Vander Heide.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bell, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Scarcelli, to escort the General to the rostrum for the purpose of receiving the resolution which this House has passed.

The SPEAKER. General, because of your services you are one that this House delights to honor. We like you particularly because we are told you first learned to obey. In the lower echelons of the Army, by learning to obey, you learned how to command in commanding fashion.

For and on behalf of the Members of this House it is my pleasure, my privilege and my honor to present to you this resolution which only feebly expresses our appreciation of your services.

General, here is the resolution.

Members of the House, here is the General.

REMARKS BY GENERAL VANDER HEIDE

GENERAL VANDER HEIDE. Mr. Speaker, Members of the House, nothing quite like this has happened to me before. I do not know what I have done to deserve this tribute. Our reservists have come a long way during the last two years, but most of their progress has been a result of their own efforts. I have placed on their shoulders additional responsibilities and given them greater command authority. They have accepted willingly this additional work load, and directed their units to a state of effectiveness that has never before been attained in our history.

The support by the people of Pennsylvania has contributed materially. Some of that support is the result of legislation passed in this room, but most of it I feel is because of a deep-rooted, traditional and heartfelt desire to support issues necessary for the preservation of our free country.

A few years ago there was a great difference in the standards between our three Army components; that is, between the regular Army, the National Guard, and our other reserve units. Today that is not true. All are organized along identical lines. All have the same objectives and are working in cooperation with each other toward those objectives. All are rapidly approaching the same state of readiness. All of our reserve units would be useful if war came tomorrow. This is especially true of the units in Pennsylvania.

Your 28th National Guard Division, commanded by General Henry Fluck of Camp Hill, and the 79th Division, a Reserve Division, commanded by General "Hap" Frank of Harrisburg, are two of the best reserve combat divisions in the United States today.

I have many reasons for being grateful to the people of Pennsylvania. My tour has been a pleasant and satisfying one, but the nicest thing that happened to me is the tribute you pay me today. I am deeply appreciative. When I depart later this month for a new assignment, a good part of my heart will remain here.

MRS. VANDER HEIDE WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the charming helpmate of the General who has accompanied him and has favored us with her gracious presence.

INVITATION TO VISIT INDIANTOWN GAP

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to read an invitation from Major General Henry K. Fluck:

Pennsylvania's own 28th Division, Pennsylvania Army National Guard, invites all members of the General Assembly to come to Indiantown Gap either in groups or as individuals, as they may see fit. The Division is in camp this week and next week.

Governor's Day is Saturday, August 8th, at which time there will be the divisional parade, starting at 10:50 a. m. and lasting until about noon.

This is visitor's day for families of the Division and would be a fine time to meet families from back home.

Go to Division Headquarters, Building S-5116. The Military Police are on duty and the Guards will direct you to Division Headquarters."

As you know, members of the 28th Division come from all parts of the state and Members of the House who visit Indiantown Gap will have an opportunity to confer with some of the homefolks and perhaps you might be able to make a little political hay.

The invitation will be placed in the Members' post office boxes.

An Act amending the act of January 14, 1952 (P. L. 2016), entitled "An act providing for supplementing the police forces of cities boroughs towns and townships for the appointment powers and control of auxiliary police there in * * *" further defining the training of auxiliary policemen and authorizing chiefs of police to place auxiliary policemen on active duty in order that they may obtain such training.

Mr. SCHWARTZ. This is a bill of possible far-reaching purposes. I would like, therefore, to make a motion that it be recommitted to the Committee on Municipal Corporations for further study and possible amendment.

This bill, which deals with auxiliary police, changes the existing law so that auxiliary police can be put on duty prior to their having received any training whatsoever. Additionally, it permits the Chief of Police great latitude in deciding where and when he is going to use these auxiliary police, especially before they receive training. Very possibly this could be an impingement on organized labor, or in the event of strikes or such, and therefore I move at this time for the recommitment of this bill to the Committee on Municipal Corporations.

The first section was read.

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, House Bill No. 1483, Printer's No. 1208, on page 21, the bill we are considering is an amendment to the County Code, simply placing the Society of the 28th Division, American Expeditionary Forces Incorporated, a statewide, nationwide organization, officially recognized, in the County Code to be able to receive the authorized expenses for Memorial Day and Armistice Day services that are held, the same as all the other veteran organizations that are now existing and are authorized to receive these funds.

Mr. Speaker, that is a very concise, quick explanation of this bill. Neither side has caucused on it, yet we would like to have a roll call before we break for caucus. I ask that everyone to vote aye in support of this measure.

DEMOCRATIC AND REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES

Mr. McCANN. I would like to request a caucus of the Democratic members in the new House Caucus Room, for a period of one hour. Caucus first, and then one half hour for lunch when the cafeteria is cleared out after the caucus.

I ask that all the Members bring with them their House calendars. That means that this House would convene after one hour of caucusing at 1:15, following lunch, that is daylight saving time.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, we would also like to have an immediate caucus to last one hour and then one half hour for lunch. Would the Members please bring their calendars also to the Republican Caucus. We are going to caucus on final passage and third reading bills that we have not previously caucused on.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to reemphasize to the Democratic Members that the sooner they get down to the caucus room and get right down to business, the sooner we will get out of here tonight so they can go home. So all those who delay will be the ones who will be at fault if they are here at six or seven o'clock or later tonight.

There will not be any Session on Thursday. We can finish this work if the Members will go to their caucus room right now for one hour and then take half an hour for lunch.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair now declares a recess of one and one-half hours.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. A. W. JOHNSON.

In the House of Representatives, August 5, 1959.

There exists an urgent need in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and in the Nation as a whole to give greater attention to the complex problems of civilian defense; therefore be it

Resolved (the Senate concurring), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania memorialize the Congress of the United States to cause to be constructed in the Independence Mall area in Philadelphia, a dual purpose prototype bomb shelter and underground garage in cooperation with State and local agencies now working in the field of civil defense, which would give not only to the residents of Philadelphia but to countless thousands of Americans who visit the site an opportunity to become acquainted with the type of structure required in the nuclear age for the protection and shelter of the public, and thus stimulate popular support for a Nation-wide civil defense program which would incorporate this type of protection; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of each House of the Congress of the United States and to each Senator and Representative from Pennsylvania in the Congress of the United States.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. A. W. JOHNSON.

In the House of Representatives, August 5, 1959.

It has long been evident that the rulers of international Communism are determined to spread their godless doctrine to every part of the globe by any and all means, including war if other means fail.

The people of the United States and of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania may one day be subjected to the supreme trial of an all-out atom and hydrogen bomb attack.

Such an all-out attack against us is less likely to come if we bring our military and civil defense preparedness to a high level.

The continuity of State government and protection of its key personnel will be of vital importance during an atomic attack.

The General State Authority is now designing a second underground parking facility to be built adjacent to the State Capitol Building in Harrisburg; therefore be it

Resolved (The Senate concurring), That the State Council of Civil Defense, in cooperation with the General State Authority, be directed to consult with the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington, D. C. on the feasibility of extending the use of the projected underground parking facility to include (1) a fallout shelter for government employees; (2) emergency operational headquarters to be used by the Governor and the Council of Civil Defense, or both, and study such other Civil Defense uses as can be made of the structure; and be it further

Resolved, That the State Council of Civil Defense report its findings to the Legislature; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the State Council of Civil Defense and to the General State Authority.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

The SPEAKER Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. WHITTAKER. This tax-package, so-called, for the purpose of schools and public education falls far short of providing vitally necessary funds. The sum of $28 million that is marked for education is a feeble effort to take care of the educational responsibilities we owe the children of Pennsylvania.

By adding this amendment to House Bill No. 1285, which will place the tax on alcoholic beverages at the complete retail or use level several million dollars will be available for education. Liquor store purchases and beer from the distributor are taxable under this amendment, unless purchased by a licensee for re-sale. The tax is then exempt and collected when sold to the consumer—strictly a use-level tax on alcoholic beverages.

I ask you what person in good faith will complain about a 20 cent tax on a fifth of liquor? What bar patron will complain about a two cent tax on a 50 cent highball, or a penny tax on a 25 cent bottle of beer?

The millions of dollars raised by this amendment is strictly for education and will not place a hardship on anyone. When we are taxing the necessities of life at the use-level, why exempt alcoholic beverages at the use-level? They are not necessities. A vote against this amendment, in my opinion, is a vote against aid to education; a vote for this amendment is a step in the direction of aiding education.

I ask the Members on both sides to vote favorably on this amendment and ask for a slow roll call.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the amendments offered by the gentleman from Lycoming, Mr. Whittaker.

The opportunity presented itself on the first day the bill was up for consideration to vote for the bill to insure its passage, which would have provided the tax across the bar. This is now a tax package in an effort to pass it. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the amendments be defeated.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would believe that the division would answer the requirements.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, 106 Democratic Members on this side are committed to oppose the amendments and they are all here. Division is certainly most satisfactory.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is compelled to recognize, because they rise, Members who ask for a roll call. The Chair will order the roll call. Otherwise we will ask for a division.

Mr. McCANN. If a roll call has been requested, we will accept a roll call.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

MOTION TO POSTPONE

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I move to place House Bill 1285, Printer's No. 1070, upon the third reading postponed calendar.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, this morning I was pleased and surprised to find in my mailbox a letter signed by Mr. Joseph McDonough, President of the Federation of Labor, Mr. Harry Boyer, President of the Pennsylvania CIO Council, Mr. Charles Sludden, a State Legislative Representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and Mr. Lester Thomas, Legislative representative of the United Mine Workers.

This letter, after stating the united opposition of these gentlemen to the 4 percent sales tax, goes on to read as follows:

We feel certain that there are available other alternatives of a 4% sales tax which have not as yet been proposed. We are prepared, at the invitation of responsible members of either the administration or the Legislature to present such alternatives including one which falls within the scope of the Sales and Use Tax Formula (much as we dislike same) and yet would exclude take home food and clothing.

It seems to me that there should be many of us in this room who would like to heed that request. I, myself, have been no special friend of labor but, at the same time, these gentlemen are of such importance and we have spent such a long time here that I can see no harm in continuing action on this bill for another week or two until these gentlemen come up with the request for which they ask. We can judge the merits of the action which they take at that time.

Secondly, in my particular legislative district, this 4 percent sales tax, taxing as it does liquor and beer, is a very serious consideration. Over the years I have opposed all taxes relating to that subject. I have a very large brewery there as well as a soft drink bottling plant, and, regardless of all other consideration, I cannot vote for this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would suggest that the gentlemen was verging on a discussion of the merits of the bill rather than the merits of the motion to postpone.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

I only would like to suggest that there are many others in this room on both sides of the House who are faced with similar problems I think I have said enough in favor of the motion to postpone and I would like to request a slow roll call.

Mr. McCANN. Mr Speaker, I rise to oppose the motion made by the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Jones, to place this bill on the third reading postponed calendar.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

NOT VOTING—7

Brown,	Moran,	Sullivan,	Willard,
Cooper,	Murray, P. G.,	Thompson,

So the question was determined in the negative and the motion was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, Members of this body, there comes a time in every man's political life when he has to make a decision of this type. I, for one, have sat, with other people, in hearings until midnight and longer within a short distance of this Hall, trying to cut down on the budget, and there will be more of that, I think, in the future. However, the decision a man must make is whether or not he wants to follow his own mind, or to supply the necessities of this Commonwealth which his people demand.

I am happy that I represent the Second Legislative District of Dauphin County, which is about 90,000 people. I do not think there are many days in my life that go by that I do not have someone call either my home or my office and want some additional service of some type. I think I have helped many people during my terms of office here, and I am happy to do that. As I say, I have worked on this budget, being a member of the Appropriations Committee. I have worked hard and long. We have spent many hours over there long after the rest of you had left. I feel as though we have cut some things out of that budget, but the mandates that have been made by the people who have sat in these seats in this Legislative hall are certainly things you cannot cut out of that budget. I have gone over this very carefully, I have weighed it in my mind and I have come to a decision.

I want to say to you as Members of this House, I took an obligation that I would uphold the Constitution and care for the needs of these people, both the ones who are in institutions and the ones who are out. Unfortunately I have no children to go to school, but my heart bleeds for the people who do who do not have the proper facilities when they go. So I have decided, and I want it spread upon the record, that even though this may not be what I would choose personally, we have arrived at a place where we are losing $1.633 million every week we delay this tax package. That is money that is gone that you will never be able to make up.

So, Mr. Speaker, I am going to go on record now, and when the roll is called I am going to vote for the bill, not for myself, but for the things I think the 90,000 people in Dauphin County are entitled to.

Mr. HELM. Mr. Speaker, I rise not to debate the bill, but for the purpose of asking the Majority Leader one question if the gentleman will consent to be interrogated.

The SPEAKER. Will the Majority Leader permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McCANN. I will, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HELM. Mr. Speaker, I have sat on the Committee studying the tax problem, and with the Majority Leader in coming up with a program. I have heard him answer this query personally, but I believe it is necessary that we get it on the record today.

I would like to ask the Majority Leader if, in his judgment, the Governor of the Commonwealth will sign this tax bill once it has been passed by the House and Senate.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, the Governor of this Commonwealth will sign this tax bill if passed in its present form and presented to him by the House and the Senate.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

NOT VOTING—7

Brown,	Moran,	Sullivan,	Willard,
Cooper,	Murray, P. G.,	Thompson,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

REASON FOR VOTE

Mr. TRUSIO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to state my reasons for voting for House Bill 1285.

Mr. Speaker, about two months ago at a midnight session I voted "No" on a tax on beer and liquor over-the-bar sales. At that time I proposed in caucus to raise the three and one-half percent sales tax to four percent at the source. Since I promised my colleagues to vote for this tax at the source, I therefore have done this today.

Mr. Speaker, my reason for voting for the four percent sales tax is because I proposed this in caucus about two months ago.

REASON FOR VOTE

Mr. DOWN filed the following reasons for his vote on House Bill No. 1285.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit for the record my reason for voting for this tax bill. I believe a public official has certain responsibilities he must maintain for the good of his constituents and the people of Pennsylvania. I know a tax program is unpopular, but if we are to survive as a great state we must meet our responsibilities.

There have been several alternative programs submitted but all are more regressive than this one.

This plan was submitted to this House by a Bi-partisan Committee and I believe it is the only one that can pass at this time.

STATEMENT BY THE MINORITY LEADER

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, now that this long tax hassle is over, let us get down to business. Let us pull out the stops and go full steam ahead. Let us get this show over with. I am appealing now to the majority group. You have the committees over there and you have the Committee Chairmen.

There were no deals made on this side for anything, and you have no debt to pay, but I will say this, there are some good bills in there, sponsored by Republicans and Democrats, having to do with various things of interest to the citizens. Let us get them out. Let us get the unemployment compensation bills out here, the workmen's compensation. Get that budget out here on the calendar. Let us take a look at that. What is your program for higher education? How about that scholarship loan program.

Sit down, why don't you, and form a committee and go over every bill that is in; find out the bills that are necessary that must move; get them out on the calendar, and let us wind up as rapidly as possible. There is no use staying here.

We hope the Senate will pass this revenue program. We hope it will be enough money to run the Commonwealth in the next two years. But for goodness' sake let us get down to work over here and let us get going full steam ahead. Let us get the sine die resolution; let us end the show.

BILL ON THIRD READING

Mr. McCANN asked and obtained unanimous consent to call up out of order House Bill No. 263, on page 18, of today's calendar, bills on third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 263, entitled:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section one article nine of the constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania exempting income taxes on persons and corporations from requirement of uniformity.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, House Bill No. 263, Printer's No. 1223, is a joint resolution proposing an amendment to Section 1, Article 9 of the Constitution, dealing with the income tax on personal corporations and requirements of uniformity.

House Bill No. 263 is a joint resolution which we hope will pass the House and Senate and eventually appear on the ballot for the citizens of the Commonwealth to vote on a change in our Constitution. This, of course, is a resolution which would permit a graduated income tax in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, a matter on which we feel the people of the Commonwealth should vote and decide in changing the Constitution of the Commonwealth. We hope the passage of this bill will start the machinery for a change in the Constitution which would be adopted by the citizens of the Commonwealth.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I was going to ask to have the bill passed over, and I am just wondering whether you want it to pass third reading or not.

We have not had the opportunity of caucusing on this measure. It is an understanding with the Majority Leader that any bills we have not caucused on automatically go over.

The SPEAKER. The Minority Leader says his understanding was that those measures which had not been brought to the attention of his caucus were automatically to go over. The Minority Leader asks that this bill go over.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I have never denied the passing over of any bill. We have had an agreement from the very first day of this Session that any time anyone asked him, or they asked me, the bill was passed over.

This puts us in a very peculiar position. Our caucus is very, very much in need of passage of this bill. I have never denied that right, and I am wondering if the Minority Leader can in any way on his decision, or his policy committee decision, permit this bill to come before the House now. They have not caucused; I am aware of that from the remarks of Mr. Johnson. I have commitments on my side to try to have this bill voted on today.

Mr. FILO. Mr. Speaker, it was my understanding this bill would be the next bill rolled after the passage of the tax bill, and if this bill was not to be rolled I would have changed my vote on the tax measure.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I hesitate to make the suggestion, because we have worked very carefully, every one has kept his word in every way and no one made any deals at any time, but would it be possible to ask that the Republicans consider a caucus?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would suggest that would be the reasonable way, for the Republicans to take a half hour and caucus.

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I realize these people over on the other side want to get a gold star for voting today for a graduated income tax; I know they want to saddle the people of Pennsylvania with it. It is all right with me if they want to do that, but we have not caucused on it and I do not choose to call a caucus. I do not want to be arbitrary. It has been an understanding all through this Session on both sides that when we have not caucused on bills that you tell me, we have not caucused on a bill, and I say, all right, it will be passed over.

There will be plenty of time next week to call this bill up. We will probably want to debate it and give our reasons for or against it. We are not prepared to do so today. I think the reason we have not been able to caucus on it is that we spent so much time on the present tax program we just could not intelligently vote on this measure today. I do not think a short caucus will do it.

The SPEAKER. Will the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader come to the desk?

You have placed the Speaker in an impossible situation unless the two Floor Leaders can arrange some course mutually agreeable.

The Majority Leader can bring this bill before the House if he so chooses.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, House Bill 263 was discussed fully in our caucus. For those who are walking up and down the aisles, and saying that either I or the Minority Leader or any of the others made a deal, I never made a deal in my life and I am not afraid to say that openly for everyone to know.

We caucused on this bill. The Republicans did not caucus. I never knew that until we walked in here a few minutes ago. That can be verified by the man who marked the calendar and is standing on this floor now. I intended to roll this bill. I never was a man who has broken his word and if I should live another day, I want to die that way.

They have assured me that they will caucus on this bill. There are some maybe that will even vote on their side in favor of the resolution.

Mr. Speaker, the bill then as agreed will be brought on this floor on Monday and, to those on my side, my own Democrats, who made the motion in my caucus, I want to say, that motion was made in honesty and sincerity and I intended to fulfill that motion entirely. I cannot break a commitment of long standing because I did not know that they had not caucused on this bill.

We have worked together to try to solve these problems and many others and never once have I or any of those associated with me in any conferences ever made any deals, and I think I can speak for the Minority Leader and his group.

Therefore, I ask that it be passed over until Monday.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. FILO from the Committee on Game and Conservation, reported as amended, House Bill No. 1701, entitled:

An Act amending "The Game Law" approved June 3, 1937 (P. L. 1225), extending the period for shooting on regulated shooting grounds.

STATEMENT BY MAJORITY LEADER

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, today as we passed House Bill No. 1285, a bill dealing with amendment to the Sales and Use Tax, our Democratic Members of the House were very hopeful that they would also consider the resolution which we passed over, proposing an amendment to the Constitution, for it is our firm belief that the graduated income tax, as this resolution proposes, is a type of change in the Constitution of the state of Pennsylvania which we feel has long been needed, a bill in which we hoped today we would have passed and started the machinery for a change in the Constitution. For many years, many, many years, this Party of which we are Members, the Democratic Party has been a Party that has been committed to a change in the Constitution in favor of a graduated income tax to permit the people of Pennsylvania to vote on this issue, for we believe that this is the fairest tax of all.

I am certainly confident that in the 1959 Session we shall have an opportunity to pass this resolution proposing a change in the Constitution, and there are many people, many, many people, in this Commonwealth who have worked hard and long in their beliefs that a graduated income tax is the source of taxation that this Commonwealth must eventually face for many years to come, an opportunity which it has been denied because it is specifically outlined as prohibited in our Constitution.

The Democratic Party and the Democratic Members of this House are hopeful that that commitment will be given, that such a joint resolution shall pass through the House and the Senate and be placed on the ballot at the proper time for the citizens to vote. The decision will then be theirs, and if they decide favorably, it would change our Constitution; if they decided against the change, then the position that we have taken for a great number of years would not be the will of the people. Their expression would come when they vote on the amendment to the Constitution.

Mr. Speaker, to every Democrat Member on this side of the House, our position is distinctly clear in that we ask and want them to support such a measure to give the people of this Commonwealth that opportunity.

STATEMENT BY MINORITY LEADER

Mr. A. W. JOHNSON. In reply to the Majority Leader, I am not going to have very much to say. I think we will stand on his statements today. The Members on the Democratic side would like to see put around the necks of the people of Pennsylvania a graduated income tax over and above and in addition to the confiscatory graduated income tax that the federal government now imposed. I do not know whether the people would vote for it or not. That, of course, would be up to the people, and I am not going to say how our caucus will vote on it. It has been up to the people directly and indirectly a number of times already down through the years and it has been voted down.

I am not saying how our caucus will vote on it next week, but we will stand on the record over the weekend that you would like to see a graduated income tax in Pennsylvania.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I certainly thank the Majority Leader for his statement. The resolution carries very clearly the proposed change in the Constitution in which the people would saddle themselves with that which they believe to be the fairest of all, the graduated income tax.

T. and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week, it reconvene on Monday, August 17, 1959 at THREE-THIRTY o'clock P. M., E. S. T.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

SENATE RESOLUTION

CONGRATULATIONS OF THE SENATE EXTENDED TO VICE PRESIDENT RICHARD NIXON FOR THE IMPROVED AND BETTER RELATIONS HE HAS ESTABLISHED BETWEEN OUR NATION AND RUSSIA

Messrs. PECHAN, BERGER and TAYLOR offered the following resolution (Serial No. 49), which was read as follows:

In the Senate, August 10, 1959.

Whereas, we have all learned through the press, radio and television of the remarkable achievements of Vice President Richard Nixon during his current visit to Russia and Poland and,

Whereas, we are convinced he has left a splendid impression on the peoples of both nations and initiated a chain reaction which will keep Russia talking for a long time and perhaps lead to peace in our time, and,

Whereas, it is fact that so long as we keep Russia talking there will be no shooting war,

Therefore; the Senate of Pennsylvania extends to Vice President Nixon its sincere congratulation for the improved and better relations he has established between our nation and Russia.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I have no objection to this resolution, but I would like to make a comment on it.

Mr. President, I think this is a lesson which all of us might take a moment to study. I can remember when this very same gentleman was out doing his witch hunting and was very anxious to put the tag of Communist on everybody who was not a Republican. Anyone who was even close to the Party that was not his own, either suffered from being a Communist or from being a Communist by association. I think it was wrong of the gentleman to take that position at that time. I think history will bear out that he went at it pretty viciously out in California against a rather outstanding Democrat.

At this late stage of the game, I am very happy to say perhaps he is mending his ways and I am happy to see that. However, I think we should be very careful about calling names and throwing stones, because sometime we are liable to find ourselves inside of that glass house, without any shades, hoping that everyone will see us.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I request that the Secretary of the Senate send a copy of this resolution to Helen Gahagan Douglas.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, as one of the sponsors of this resolution, I am very happy to note that the Minority Leader is complying with the spirit, at all times, of the resolution and is solving the difficulties with words.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, it is my opinion that the Vice-President's junket was a brain child of the soap box opera people, and I think that the primary purpose of it was to stop Rockefeller.

Mr. MULLIN. Mr. President, I think this resolution is premature. I do not know whether those good relations exist, and I think we are more or less jumping the gun.

I do not like to vote against any resolution which deals with good will and, therefore, I do not wish to vote at all. I would like to be recorded as not voting.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. KESSLER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. KESSLER. Mr. President, I have been instructed by the Committee on Finance to report House Bill No. 1285, as committed.

In reporting this bill out, we are doing so at this time simply to save a day or two, if possible, in getting the tax measure through. It is the understanding of the Committee that this bill will be recommitted tomorrow, after having been read for the first time. We hope to have it ready for further action by the Senate on Monday, August 17, 1959.

I should add, however, that there is no assurance as to the number of votes on either side that might be in favor of this bill. That will have to be determined, I think, when the bill comes up for final consideration. I mention that simply because I do not want people to get the impression that we are handling this bill as we did the prior tax bill, and getting it through in a day or two. This is a little more involved and will take a little more work. Whether we will have enough votes to pass it remains to be seen when the bill comes up for final action.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No 703, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 24, 1945 (P. L. 991) entitled "Urban Redevelopment Law" providing that title to property taken by eminent domain may be vested in an Authority by order of court upon payment of seventy-five per cent of the appraised value of such property.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to point out on this piece of legislation, which was amended about a week or so ago, that the words "filing of a bond" were stricken out and substituted therefor were the words: "Paying not less than seventy-five per cents of the appraised value of such property." I think all of us are familiar with urban redevelopment and the work of the Authorities. I think we all realize they operate through eminent domain proceedings, and that the person whose home or place of business is taken receives a certain amount of money.

The original filing of a bond was for the purpose of insuring that the home owner or the owner of a piece of real estate would receive what was due him when all of the litigation was completed, which may run over a period of two or three years.

I would like to state my objection to this amendment. As the bill is amended, the placing of seventy-five per cent of the value with the court, I think, will in great measure hamper the work of the Authority. This is similar to measures which we have had here before, and against which I spoke, in placing a large sum of money with the court where roads were being built. Not that I feel that the owner should not receive what is justly due him; however, by the same token, I think we must take into consideration that any kind of legislation, or any of our actions which might impede the work of the Authority, should be looked at very carefully and scrutinized carefully.

It might be that the appraised value—and we do not have before us just who will do the appraisal, although I assume and hope it will be the Authority—would be a large sum of money to put away for a period of time while the matter is litigated and, in the end, it might be substantially less than was the amount that should have been paid.

I think, therefore, the amendment is bad and I think it does not make for good legislation.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I prepared the amendment striking out the bond and putting in the seventy-five per cent. It is true that the Authority, in its efforts of taking property, is in the way of the march of progress. However, we must think of the people, too. When they are dispossessed and their homes taken, they have got to go somewhere, and to wait three, four, five or six years on a condemnation procedure seems to me eminently unfair and unnecessary.

I believe the amendment is good. I believe it strikes to the end of serving people rather than the Authorities or other corporate industries.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, if that is what the gentleman has in mind, might I suggest to him that he put, at the end of his amendment, when the Authority takes possession that this be done. If you are just going to place seventy-five per cent at any stage of the proceedings and you do not set out when this is to be done, you are tying up a lot of this money and making life a little more difficult for the Authority, not only that they should not be put in a different position if they are hurting someone. However, if it is done at the time they take possession, then at that moment the home owner is in a position where he has to do something. Up to this point, he does not have to take action. There have been many cases where the Authority has not moved in an the litigation has taken quite some time, and has not been resolved until later on when the home owner moved out.

Under this amendment, you are tying up all this capital without suggesting when this payment will take place.

I would suggest to the gentleman that if he would offer an amendment, stating that payment should be made at the time possession is taken by the Authority, I think it would be equitable all the way around, both for the Authority and the people involved.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, may we be at ease a few moments?

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—2

Seyler, Stiefel,

A majority of all the Senators having voted 'aye', the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 810, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 15, 1933 (P. L. 624) entitled as amended "Banking Order" further providing for the lending of money by banks and bank and trust companies.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I am troubled by this piece of legislation in so far as what we are now about to vote on is already being done in the Philadelphia area. I am a little confused as to whether something is done first and we vote and make it legal, or whether people wait until we take some action and then they proceed with what we say they can do.

This legislation allegedly supplies ready money to those people who otherwise might not have funds. It works somewhat in this manner: A person goes to the bank and makes a loan. "X" or "Y" dollars, whatever amount has been approved, is deposited to his account and he is issued a checkbook, and he is able to write checks against this amount which is allegedly deposited in his name. It is only a bookkeeping entry. The borrower pays,

I think, ten cents for every check. He pays a small carrying charge and he also pays interest of about six per cent on the unused balance or the balance which has not been needed up to that time. I believe also some of the banks in the city of Philadelphia have an insurance clause which goes with it. The borrower must take a certain amount of insurance in order to obtain this type of loan. I think this amounts to about ten per cent of the loan. If I am mistaken in my figures, I am sure someone here will correct me. I think the ten per cent is a little excessive over the period of the loan.

I am at a loss to know why we should pass this legislation if this is already being done in most of the communities, because I hear it advertised on the radio and television all of the time, unless I just listen to special stations. If this is already the type of thing that is happening, why should it be necessary for us to spend the time and money of the Commonwealth in printing these bills, concerning ourselves with it, enacting it into law, asking that the House do likewise and asking the Governor to sign it?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I share some of the misapprehensions expressed by my colleague, Senator Weiner, on this bill. I assume the intention of it is to make the assurance of it doubly sure, and that in this method or device of loaning money to bank customers in a convenient manner, as it apparently is,—having already been in vogue in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and some other areas—and the banks want to be certain that there is no question whatever as to the legality of their loans and they have requested that this bill be introduced. That, then, and for no other reason, Mr. President, accounts for its appearance on this Calendar.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, Senator Weiner invited some correction, if there was any to be offered, on the matter of the insurance on the loan. There is no special provision for loans of this kind in this bill. However, the insurance is accredited life insurance carried by many, many banks and usually does not run ten per cent of the loan. The amount of insurance carries the balance of the unpaid loan. Also, the rate of the insurance runs about net, after dividends are deducted, or approximately seventy cents per hundred. It is very, very low cost insurance and merely covers the balance of the loan in case of death.

Mr. MAHADY. Mr. President, I do not think that we should vote on this bill under the misapprehension that the banks are merely exercising an abundance of caution. Clearly what they are doing is illegal, because even under this legislation they are permitted, and I quote "to lend money to a borrower with or without a note" on his check. There is no question but what that is embezzlement on the part of the bank officials when they do it without this act. Many of the embezzlements that have taken place in the past were due to the recognizing of an overdraft, and an overdraft is being legalized by this legislation.

Overdrafts in American banking have always been considered one of the most dangerous aspects of banking. There is no question about the fact that the Bank of England permits an overdraft to be recognized as a loan upon arrangements being made ahead of time, to the amount of $250. However, there must be an active account and the overdraft is upon that account. It is not similar to what we have here. The idea here is that a person can call a bank and get a line of credit. Once that credit is established, the borrower can draw on it and it will be re-financed from time to time depending upon the amount that is owed.

If this is sound banking, I am not going to question that merely by saying it recognizes an overdraft. On the part of people, however, it tends to discourage thrift, which we were brought up to believe is the essence of any banking system, wherein by accumulating thrift in surpluses the banks have money to lend.

There has been today, in consumer credit, the largest outstanding balance the world has ever known. The cry is that we need more credit available for mortgages and we need it for business. There is not enough credit.

In this Session of the Legislature, we find the whole emphasis has not been upon thrift and the idea of making money available for industry and for everyday business, and for mortgages to provide housing, but rather we have been deluged with extending the possibilities of making consumer credit more available and more easy to obtain, thus making debt easier.

For that reason, and because I think that the progress of the community and of our nation depends upon the credit available to industry and to housing first, particularly when there is a dearth of that type of credit, we should not take the available money that the banks do have and permit them—and the inclination will be that way—to lend money where it gets the highest return. Six per cent discounted, which is close to 12.5, is the higher return over a mortgage or the lending of credit to industry and to merchants.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, being one of the two sponsors of this bill, and after reflection and advice from all over the Commonwealth, it is my considered opinion that it should be recommitted to committee for further study.

Therefore, Mr. President, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Local Government for the purpose of further study.

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I think that the passage of this bill would leave the House in the position of deciding whether it was this bill they wanted or whether it was the bill we passed last week, which is inconsistent with this, too. I do not think we should allow them dealers' choice. I think we should make up our minds on what we want to do.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I cannot agree with the gentleman. I believe in giving the House of Representatives all the latitude and choice it requires or needed. At the same time, I do agree that this bill is inconsistent with the one which we passed giving the townships power to annex adjacent territory and, consequently, I agree with the gentleman on this premise.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I do not want to continue this tennis match at any length, but I certainly hope the House will use due wisdom on the other bill, as they might have used on this one.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that this bill on second reading, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, this is a very important bill and one which should move as rapidly as possible. It relates to the market values as certified by the State Tax Equalization Board, and makes drastic changes which will cost the various school districts of the Commonwealth a great deal of money, with very few exceptions. We wish to have it move along as fast as it possibly can for that reason.

Therefore, Mr. President, I object to the bill going over in its order.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, my reason for asking that the bill go over in its order is because my reading of the bill convinces me that the bill does not do what it is intended to do. Without discussing the merits of what it is intending to do, I do not believe this bill does it. I think it needs amendment in order to do it. For that reason, it was my purpose, Mr. President, to speak to Senator Wagner today about it. I have inquired and, apparently, Senator Wagner is not going to be available to me today. For that reason, I should like to defer the further movement of this bill until such time as I have had an opportunity to speak to Senator Wagner.

I believe there is a real problem with the present wording of the bill.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I am sure that Senator

Wagner would offer no objection to the offering of amendments on Third Reading of the bill. I would like to have the bill go up to Third Reading and, by that time, of course, Senator Seyler will have had an opportunity to speak to Senator Wagner before we pass the bill.

Mr. SEYLER. Do I understand, Mr. President, that the gentleman said that the bill will not pass Third Reading until I have had an opportunity to confer with Senator Wagner?

Mr. BERGER. I can give the gentleman that assurance, Mr. President.

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER WITHDRAWN

Mr. SEYLER. In that case, Mr. President, I withdraw my request to have the bill go over in its order.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The title was read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?

Mr. WEINER. Might I just point out, Mr. President, in Senate Bill No. 1034—and I am sorry that Senator Wagner is not here—that what we have talked about here as being a fair formula, in the early part of this Session, has somehow been lost in this legislative shuffle. We now find we have an unfair formula and we now want to change it. I would suggest to the gentleman that they give this some careful consideration.

We have been living under this formula for a number of years. If it is unfair today, it must have been unfair previously. I think the amendments to this bill should be directed in that direction, so that no one is really punished or hurt by keeping it operative if it was unfair in its initial stages, rather than change the rules of the game now because it does not come out to the way it was originally.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I doubt very much whether this bill affects the equalization formula. However, the whole question is upon the certification of the market valuations which result in, as I said before, the increase in market valuations in certain districts and the decrease in other districts. There are some things which should be looked into and, undoubtedly, they will be by both sides. We hope that we will be able to find some way whereby the districts will not suffer, through the loss of revenue which they certainly need, upon the basis of the present market valuations and that the reimbursements to these districts can be made in a manner which is fair and equitable. However, I do not concede that the subsidization formulas, necessarily, are unfair or have been unfair.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I believe if the formula, itself, was fair in the beginning, the component parts making up this formula must also have been fair. If they have now become unfair, they must have been unfair previous to this Session. Therefore, those people who have suffered under the old formula should be taken into consideration if we are going to change any of the component parts now.

My complaint is—and I think the amendments should be drafted with this in mind—that if you are going to continue to hurt somebody who is now, for the first time, being recognized, I think now is not the time to change the rules of the game because you are being hurt by the game. If we played the game up to this point, let us continue under the same rules that we played before.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I wish to say that in my judgment, at any rate, the formula, as it has existed, does not contain anything unfair nor any rules that are unfair. However, it is the method in which the formula is being applied under these market valuations and certifications that concerns us. In other words, when you have market values decreasing and assessed values increasing, it does not appear that the formula, as applied in that situation, would result in anything very equitable.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I hope that the gentleman will forgive me if I digress for a moment and proceed to represent the city of Philadelphia.

However, Mr. President, we have been hurt, under this formula, for quite some time. For the first time, Allegheny County, Philadelphia, Scranton and most of the urban areas, I would say, are going to get their just desserts, in the full impact of that term. I hope that the gentlemen on the other side do not see that we get our full and just desserts, in the other aspect of that term, and I hope they will see that we get what is coming to us.

We are just trying to apply the same formula which we have been living under all these years. If there is an amendment to the formulae, as we have them in this Commonwealth, then I say that we should amend them possibly, if they are inequitable in some areas, but do not change the rules now because somebody is going to be helped who has been hurt all along. In the city of Philadelphia, we are $13,000,000 in the hole for money which we need in this coming biennium. We do not have the means of getting it and all this will alleviate for the city of Philadelphia is two and one-half million dollars additional which it will receive under this new formula. Just because we are getting a break for the first time, let us not change the formula. Anybody who goes into any city area will see what redevelopment has done to the taxables and will also see the problems that are concurrent with this, such as moving people out of one area and concentrating them in another area, most of whom are unable to bear their fair share. There is to stigma attached to them on that basis because economically they cannot carry their share. Do not say today that we are going to change this formula because it comes out uneven for me, who has been benefiting by it, and say that the burdens must continue where they have always been, back in the city or urban areas. I do not think that is fair and I think we should not change the component parts unless we change the entire aspect of the formula.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, we are very interested in seeing that Philadelphia and Pittsburgh get what is coming to them. I use that expression in the very kindest manner. However, I want to point out that this does not change the formula, Mr. President. It simply fixes the valuations upon the pre-established market values as of the 1957 level. It is not changing the formula. It simply freezes the valuations.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, my question to the gentlemen, the sponsors of the bill who are not in the room at the moment,—perhaps one of them is here and maybe he can answer the question for me—is, if they are inequitably today, why did we not change them back in the 1957 Session, the 1955 Session or the 1953 Session. Nothing is changed. Yet, if you went into Allegheny County, you would find that over the years, because of the redevelopment program which they have had, among other problems, they have done away with taxables. For instance, in the city of Philadelphia, where the Mall is being built for Independence Hall,—and nobody is against that being done—a tremendous number of buildings have been torn down. These establishments provided great revenue for the city and were a part of the taxable formula that fitted into this formula which they have set up. I have been unable to find anybody who can tell me why we arrived at this formula. However, that is another subject for another time.

Having this formula now and having suffered by it for all these years and when, for the first time, the city of Philadelphia—if I can borrow a term from the brothers around Broad and Locust Streets—is getting a fair shake, I cannot understand now why we should change it to go back to the business as usual. In other words, are the gentlemen saying to me that they are for this formula as long as it comes out all right? Are they saying that the moment it stops coming out all right, they are against it or, if not against it, they certainly want to give it another long look and, perhaps, change some of the components thereto?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, the only thing we want to do is to give it a long look and provide for an interval in which the long look may be taken.

I again, however, refer to the fact that if all of these taxables have been removed from the Philadelphia tax rolls, it is difficult to see how the market value can decline and the assessed value increase.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, it seems to me rather absurd to say that this amendment does not change the equalization formula. The equalization formula works in this manner. The Commonwealth sets up a figure at which it feels education should be maintained. In the case of the present law, it is $5,800. Then it says that upon the market value of the district, a certain percentage of local effort shall be raised. The difference between the amount raised, at that uniform rate on the market value, and the $5,800 shall be supplied by the State. This means, in effect, that the higher the market value, the lower the amount which the State pays to the district.

In the natural operation of things, the State Tax Equalization Board has set the market value. If you change that and artificially say, "This shall not apply for any given number of years," it seems to me there is no question but that this does make a change in the formula. This is one of the factors of the formula. It operates normally when the Tax Equalization Board brings in the figure. If you artificially say, "No, that cannot apply for a given number of years," then you have certainly interfered with the equalization formula. If this bill is passed, it seems to me that your objective formula for equalization in this Commonwealth is out the window.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I cannot concede that. It is not the formula that is being changed by this bill; it is the base on which the formula is to be applied. In some instances, it appears that the basis to which the formula is to be applied has been rather artificially conceived.

However, I would suggest, Mr. President, since the sponsor of the bill, Senator Wagner, the Chairman of the Education Committee, is not here, that I am agreed that the bill will remain on Third Reading until Senator Seyler has had an opportunity to discuss it with him. If there should, by some conceivable manner, be a change in the formula under this bill, I am sure that he will want to discuss it with Senator Seyler and discuss amendments, to the end that the bill may be in correct form.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, I just want to clarify one thing in Senator Bergers' mind. I wonder if he realizes that my reason for desiring to confer with Senator Wagner has no relationship to the argument on the merits of the bill. I simply believe that in the present wording of the bill, there is an error which will not accomplish the purpose that Senator Wagner and Senator Stevenson, the sponsors, wish to accomplish. This is quite apart from my feeling about the merits of the bill.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, in that connection, I might say that we certainly do not want anything in the bill to interfere with the accomplishment of its purpose. Therefore, we would like to have it clarified.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I might suggest, respectfully, to the gentlemen who have been having difficulty with Philadelphia, Allegheny County and some of the other areas which seem to be so troublesome, that if they would amend this formula and let Philadelphia keep all of the tax money and take care of its local problems locally, I think they would never hear a word from us and I think we could manage pretty well in our own area. I think the facts are—and if I am mistaken, some of the gentlemen will hasten to correct me, I am sure—that for every tax dollar that we turn over to the State, we only get back a dollar and in many cases, only fifty cents from the State for some of our problems. I am sure that in the education field, we not only put forth every tax dollar, but perhaps a dollar and one-half for the seventy-five cents we get back from the State. We are only trying to at least keep status quo.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, that is, of course, the complaint, and I do not question the logic or the sincerity of the people who propound it. However, it is the complaint of large States as to small ones, and of large taxpaying centers as to small taxpaying centers, on the distribution of tax money. Surely, if they got back all that they paid in, they would be much better off. We concede that, and the same thing is true of Pennsylvania in relation to the smaller southern States.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Potter, Senator Berger.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Potter, Mr. Berger, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BERGER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Senator Berger, if this report from the State Tax Equalization Board had decreased the amounts for Pittsburgh and Philadelphia and increased the amounts for Tioga and Potter Counties, do you think this bill would be here?

Mr. BERGER. I beg your pardon. I do not understand the question, Senator.

Mr. BARR. If this report from the State Tax Equalization Board had taken money from the first class school districts, namely Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, and increased the amount to be returned to the rural counties of the State, would this bill be on our Calendar today?

Mr. BERGER. I am sure, Mr. President, that if the increase of revenue to the small districts and the reduction to the large districts had been the result of the report of the State Tax Equalization Board, we would have been as ready to object, if it appeared there were inequities, as we are objecting now.

Mr. BARR. I remember that we had a bill on the Calendar, trying to make it comparable just by having the first class district A of Pittsburgh on the same level as Philadelphia, and we could not get any votes from any of the rural counties.

Mr. BERGER. That may be, Mr. President. However, that was because the formula, about which a complaint has been made here today, was devised to provide equalization of education in Pennsylvania and it still is so designed.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I have heard Senator Wagner get up on the floor, and I call this formula a "sacred cow."

All of a sudden, the whole spirit of the twenty-eight gentlemen on the other side has changed. They are ready to take the State Tax Equalization Board figures and, actually, you might say, shovel them down the sewer because they do not seem to fit the political feeling of the counties which they represent. Do you think I am wrong in saying that? Do you think it wrong to say that?

Mr. BERGER. Absolutely, you are wrong, Senator Barr. Mr. President, it is not the desire of twenty-eight people on this side—and there are a few on the other side—to cast down the Tax Equalization Board or its work. We simply question the equity of some of the figures they have come up with, because it was explained to us that these were based partially upon actual sales, partially upon a basis established in 1957, arbitrarily, and considerably upon the judgment of the members of the Tax Equalization Board alone. That we do not feel should enter too much into the picture, as it apparently has done.

Mr. BARR. Senator Berger, I think you were here when Senator Stevenson fathered the State Tax Equalization Board. You knew exactly what powers and what duties you gave them. Now they have exercised those powers and duties and have reported, and it does not seem to suit the majority of the Members on the other side, so you want to shelve the Board.

I do not know what kind of politics that is. I hope that the people of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and the other cities that are being helped with this report—I mean not duly helped, but a remedy that should have been given to them many, many years ago—are listening and that the wire service will report this talk here today.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I hope, also, that they are listening for the reason that I am sure that the majority of them subscribe to the theory of equalization of education, which is the fundamental purpose of this whole subsidy program. In districts which are able to pay a greater amount of their education, the formula prescribes that they shall receive a lesser amount from the State funds. Those districts, which are unable to pay their own, receive a greater percentage of help from the State. That is the original purpose, and I hope that it will remain to be the purpose and the objective of this type of legislation.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I do not know whether the Majority Leader knows that over in the House, the Pittsburgh School Board has asked that bills be introduced for a wage tax because they are $5,000,000 or so in arrears. They have also asked for an increase in the millage. I presume we will have no trouble when those bills come over here in getting the Republicans to vote for them, because the poor people in the first class districts will have paid through the nose once again.

I do not know whether you men over there realize that the people of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia pay over sixty per cent of their revenue into the General Fund of this State, and for every eight dollars they pay in, they get one dollar back.

We are not going to try to penalize the poorer school districts because our Constitution says that education is the problem of all of the people in the State. However, I do think that the people of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are only asking for a fair shake. They have been helping, and will continue to help, the school districts in the second, third and fourth class districts. I do say that if you want to get politically wise, just let the people of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia have what is justly theirs.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, it is our intention, at all time, to deal fairly with the people of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. However, in some instances, they wish to write their own ticket and, of course, we feel that this should be scrutinized. However, I assure the gentleman of all good will in the application of the treatment that they will receive under the distribution of school funds.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, I would like to have someone explain to me, if this is an equitable formula and we are not changing it, why Philadelphia and Allegheny County,—Pittsburgh primarily—have been cut in the last ten years, and why no one here actually tried to change the setup or see that they got more money. I also think that this is sort of a backhanded way of going about solving what seems to be an inequitable problem. There is a procedure under the Code which the school districts can adopt and follow if they are dissatisfied with the results of the Tax Equalization Board, and that is to appeal to the Board and have hearings and let the Board know where they have erred in coming up with their answers.

If we are going to substitute different legislation to accomplish a purpose that has already been borne in mind when the original Acts were passed, we will be busy here on a twenty-four hour basis, 365 days a year, because I am sure that in some matters, aside from the Tax Equalization Board matter, other areas are being hurt. If the appeal procedure is overlooked or overcome by other legislation to take its place, I think that is rather a backhanded way of handling a problem that has already been foreseen by the people who enacted the original legislation.

If, on the other hand, you say that this is unfair and not operating properly, perhaps we should look at the whole situation instead of just looking at the component parts and trying to arrive at an answer which we cannot conceive ourselves by doing away with this component part or changing it.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I am cognizant of the appeal provisions of the Act creating the State Tax Equalization Board, and I assure the gentleman that there will be many hundreds, if not thousands, of appeals as a result of this certification of market values. However, we hope to avoid that by providing an interval over which these evaluations will remain static and during which possibly some equitable and proper method can be provided for alleviating the situation in all districts, not only the third and fourth class districts.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, would it not be easier to accomplish this problem if politics were aside, and the leadership of this Body met with the leadership of the House and took up the problem with the responsible people in the State Administration, and tried to come to a conclusion of that type? Merely passing this bill over to the House does not signify that it is going to receive unanimous approval and become law. Where does that leave us if someone is being hurt by it? If what we are trying to do is to relieve the parties that are being oppressed or hurt by this type of action by a particular board, is it not incumbent upon the Legislature, if there are no politics involved or without seeking political advantage at all, that responsible people sit down and try to work out a solution? That would be a much easier way of handling the problem than merely sending the bill over to the House. If they reject that bill and return a different bill to us, then where are we?

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, first of all, I want to assure the gentleman that, in my opinion, there is very little political advantage to be gained in any bill or legislation dealing with the school and education problem in Pennsylvania. It is a problem that is big enough to occupy the attention of everyone in government without trying to seek any political advantage from it.

Further, Mr. President, I am aware of the bill pending in the House. Furthermore, I already have discussed with the House leadership some possibility of legislation which may alleviate this during the present Session and with due equity, as I said before, to both the first and second class districts, as well as the third and fourth.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. President, would it not be wise to hold this bill until this other legislation comes to us and we can look at both of them objectively and come to some sort of an intelligent conclusion, rather than just pass this bill over to the House and they will pass a bill back to us, and then where are we?

This Chamber will insist that its own bill had fine men working on it, but they both happen to be of one political party. The bill which comes from the House will be sponsored by fine men, also, and they possibly will be of the same political party. If that is not politics, I would like someone to explain that to me, because there may be some fundamentals I do not understand at all, and I would be very happy to have someone explain that part of it to me.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, if the gentleman is concerned about the political complexion of the sponsors of this bill, I am sure that they would welcome him as a co-sponsor and would so instruct the clerk.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, beware of Greeks bearing false gifts. We do not want to co-sponsor this bill because I am sure that it is never going to see the light of day, if it goes over to the House. I think I know the temper in the House, and I do not think they are going to see the people of the first class districts be raped for probably $7,000,000. I think, perhaps, the House has a fair bill. As I understand their bill, for instance, if you were cut $40,000 for the first year, you would only lose twenty-five per cent and the second year, twenty-five per cent, et cetera. For those who have gained by increases in their subsidies, they could keep their gains. These gains have been long overdue.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. President, I would like to point out that this problem, which an attempt is being made to meet in this bill, is an integral part of a larger problem which faces the school districts of the Commonwealth. This is particularly true in those districts in which Senator Berger is interested; namely, those with less ability than others to support public education.

In my own county, Mr. President, which has never been considered a poor county and never a county full of distressed school districts, a great majority of the districts in the rural areas of my county are now at the point where their local taxing ability is pushed to its ceiling, to the practical maximum that it can go. They are unable to see how they will be able to balance school budgets in the next year. I believe this is not unique in the case of my county. I think this same condition exists all over the Commonwealth.

I would suggest to all the gentlemen in the Senate that the answer to this problem is not setting aside a decision of a legally constituted board to do its job, but the answer probably is that more State money needs to be put into public education in this next biennium if the school districts, and particularly those who lack the ability, locally, to support a good program, are to survive and are to give the children of their districts the kind of educational opportunity that we are on record as voting they should have in our efforts to equalize education. I am convinced that we should not change the method of distributing that money, as this bill would do, but, rather, that probably more money should be made available for education.

I know that it is unpopular, perhaps, to say that we should think in terms of a larger budget or of any increase in the present appropriations. However, I honestly believe, Mr. President, that the only solution for many of the school districts in this Commonwealth is for the Commonwealth, in this next biennium, to undertake to support education at a higher level than our present $5,800 figure, for which the formula calls. I believe that figure is going to have to be raised along with an appropriate adjustment in local effort. I think that would be a solution which would solve not only this problem, but the larger problem, without any necessity of having to change the rules in the middle of the game.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I would take no issue whatever with what the gentleman just said in connection with the necessary revision of the basis of $5,800 which we now use as the subsidy base. I think that it does require study and work in order to come up with a solution which will, at least, temporarily meet this problem. I question, Mr. President, in our present course, whether we are ever going to find a permanent solution for it, because, like everything else, the cost of education grows and grows and grows.

However, reverting again to Senate Bill No. 1034, Mr. President, the reason we think this probably should pass is because, while I am no sailor, I understand it is always good to have a sheet to the windward. This would provide it, should it be necessary that the House have such a bill in its possession, in order to do something along the lines suggested by Senate Bill No. 1034.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second reading?
It was agreed to.
Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

SUNDAY SALES LAW

Mr. GOLDSTEIN asked and obtained unanimous consent to have inserted in Legislative Journal an editorial relative to the Sunday Sales Law as contained in The Gazette and Daily of York, Pennsylvania on August 6, 1959.

THE SUNDAY SALES LAW

There is no question in our minds about the favoritism shown by the Sunday retail sales law. This law, which dates in substance back to 1794, is designed to favor certain establishments and to penalize others. The fact that arguments relating to the sanctity of the Sabbath day have been made in support of this law not only increases its discriminatory nature but raises an immediate constitutional question of the first amendment.

We think, therefore, that Adams County Assemblyman Francis Worley was dead right in opposing the bill on constitutional grounds. Mr. Worley was one of twenty one legislators to vote against the bill in the House Tuesday—and the only assemblyman to speak out against it in debate on the day of passage. Last week a number of others opposed the bill in discussion, contending for the most part that in establishing Sunday as the official day of rest it discriminated against Americans who do not observe the Sabbath on Sunday.

But Mr. Worley, it seems, was the only member of the House willing to argue against the bill to the end and to do so by calling it unconstitutional, which in our opinion it is. The first amendment says that "Congress shall make no law respecting . . . an establishment of religion." If there is any except a religious implication in selecting Sunday as a day on which certain business cannot be done, we would like to know what it is. Moreover, it does religion and religious feelings no service to link them with a commercially inspired piece of legislation. Quite the contrary. This is most improper from a spiritual and ethical point of view.

The aim of the law is to restrict the activities of the discount houses, the very same aim of the so-called Fair Trade federal bill. Big manufacturers and large retail establishments are, apparently, not above employing government to restrict competition in their favor. Because that is exactly what the Sunday retail sales law and the Fair Trade proposal do. And the increase in penalties voted the other day by the House in passing the Sunday sales law is a means of cracking down on persons who have been operating businesses on Sunday and paying the four dollar fine for so doing each time they are arrested. Now they face fines of $100 and $200 and jail terms.

We do not see, moreover, how it is legally possible to enumerate in law those items which can be sold on Sunday and those which cannot. Yet the bill purports to do this. Novelties and souvenirs can be sold. But watches, clocks toys, records, jewelry, musical instruments and a host of other things cannot. What is the basis for arriving at such distinctions? We are very much afraid that the language was drawn to confine the application of the law as far as possible to the discount houses. If so, this is special legislation and should never be on the books.

We are in favor of leaving the decision of Sunday shopping up to the individual. A person whose religious scruples would be offended by any commercial, recreational or sporting activity on Sunday need not shop, or go to clubs or movies, or play golf. It is up to the individual and his or her conscience. But the decision should not be made by law, particularly by a law which exempts almost everything except the operations of retail places of which powerful economic interests disapprove.

We regret that all four York county legislators saw fit to vote for this bill on Tuesday.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. WORLEY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

What we need and should have is a short, concise, and new constitution for Pennsylvania. The present state Constitution of 1873 has a lot of statutory laws placed therein for the purpose of tying the hands of subsequent legislators. As a result, the Constitution is not adaptable to meet the changing conditions of our times, nor will it meet change hereafter.

When we get a short constitution containing only the fundamentals of law, then we will have a state Constitution that will live on for hundreds of years, just the same as our Federal Constitution lives on for the reason that the Federal Constitution is short and concise and deals only with the fundamentals of law.

There is nothing radical about the request to have a new state Constitution because Pennsylvania has had four constitutions already since the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The first was the Constitution of 1776 to meet the conditions created by the signing of the Declaration of Independence; the second, was the Constitution of 1790 to meet the changes created by the Federal Constitution; the third, was the Constitution of 1838 created to meet the changes brought about by the Jacksonian era, and the powers of the governor were greatly limited by that Constitution. Then came the Constitution of 1873, our present Constitution, which increased the powers of the governor and decreased the powers of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania. This present Constitution, the Constitution of 1873, is by far the longest. It is more than three times the length of the Constitution of 1838. And now the Commission of 1920 made several recommendations for changes in our present Constitution, as well as our present Commission has made many very constructive recommendations for changes, but this process of amendments is falling by the wayside. Many good amendments will never get to the people for ratification. So let us give Pennsylvania a whole new Constitution that is, short like the Federal Constitution, and we will not need a new Constitution every 50 to 100 years. All we need to put in the new Constitution would be, first, a basic framework of the state government, second, a broad brief distribution of state government powers, third, a Bill of Rights and, fourth, a provision for amending the Constitution.

We really only need one House; a unicameral legislature is sufficient. There is no real need for both a House and Senate. You will recall that the Federal House was created to please the big states and the Federal Senate was created to please the small states at the Federal Constitutional Convention, but that same reason does not exist in the state legislatures. So if the reason for two Houses is gone, the reason for that portion of the basic law is gone; and therefore one House should be abolished and save the taxpayers some money. A unicameral legislature will also stop a lot of buck passing from one House to another.

If we ever get all this, the legislature will be a very powerful representative body of the people; and the people will really have control of a unicameral legislature.

Can't we soon get this job of a new constitution on its way? It is certainly for the best interest for the people of Pennsylvania.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I merely want to say to the gentleman from Adams, Mr. Worley, that the Constitution was adopted, I believe, in 1874. In his speech that he has just submitted to the newspapers he has 1873. Would he want to change that?

Mr. WORLEY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to answer the question made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCormack.

The Constitution of 1873 is generally referred to as the Constitution of 1873 because the convention was held in that year, and that was the reason I used that date. Most writers refer to that. I am well aware of the fact that the Constitution did not go into effect until January of 1874.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. FILO asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, like your statements on dispelling the fog, I would like to dispel the fog here a little today.

I would like to get some of the fog and cobwebs out of the reporters' ears or their heads. Last Wednesday I said on the floor of the House that if I had known that a certain bill would not be called I may have withheld my vote on the Sales Tax bill, not that I requested my vote be recalled, because I know that cannot be done.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. VARNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, Members of the House, a week ago Sunday in Clarion County on Route 66, on the road between the towns of Clarion and New Bethlehem, the bridge crossing Big Piney Creek collapsed. This was on a detour caused by the construction of the Keystone Shortway.

This bridge was built in 1930. It is now 29 years of age or it was. This bridge apparently had not been looked at by the Highway Department officials in that area for quite some time and it appears to me, if this sort of thing happens in my district, it might be going on in the other 67 counties.

Today I called attention of the Highway Department here in Harrisburg to the fact that they should inspect these bridges and avert this damage. I hate to say, they were negligent in their duty, but I think what seemingly was a good bridge suddenly collapses when there isn't even a truck on it, when there wasn't even traffic on it. When a bridge collapses something must be wrong. Their inspection must be pretty faulty.

I would like these remarks spread on the Journal. I talked to Mr. Poorman today in the Highway Department about this situation and I am sure that the Highway Department now, under their able Secretary, will start scurrying around and start inspecting the bridges in the 67 counties of this Commonwealth.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

RECALLED FROM THE GOVERNOR

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 1427, Printer's No. 1236, was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE

BILL PASSED OVER

There being no objection

House Bill No. 63, Printer's No. 1285, was passed over at the request of the SPEAKER.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 725, entitled:

An Act amending the "Pawnbrokers License Act," approved April 6, 1937 (P. L. 200), granting to police commissioners in cities of the first class or their designated representatives certain investigative powers with respect to pawnbrokers.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, will one of the sponsors consent to be interrogated on this bill?

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Eilberg. Will Mr. Eilberg consent to be interrogated?

Mr. EILBERG. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, we now have a state-wide Pawnbroker's License Act and the purpose of this bill is to take the right of an examination from the Secretary of Banking and place it in the Police Department of the city of Philadelphia. Why is this exception necessary for Philadelphia?

Mr. EILBERG. If the gentleman will read the bill very carefully, we are not taking anything away from the Banking Department. We are adding to the law so that not only the Banking Department but the police as well can inspect the records of pawnbrokers.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Well, is it the purpose of this bill to have dual examinations and make certain that not only the state but also the city will examine them?

Mr. EILBERG. That is correct, Your Honor.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Thank you.

Mr. EILBERG. In answer to the gentleman's question I would like to make a brief statement as to the purpose of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Allegheny yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia?

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. I do and if the purpose of the bill is to still retain the Secretary of Banking I have no objection to it.

Mr. EILBERG. The purpose of the bill is to leave the law as it is as far as the Secretary of Banking is concerned.

We want to extend the bill, however, to permit police above the rank of lieutenant in Philadelphia to examine the records of pawnbrokers at reasonable intervals with tallies for disclosure for improper purposes and so forth. The background is that there is a rising incidence of larceny, robberies and burglaries, and if the police have the power to inspect the records of pawnbrokers they will be able to determine the particular persons who are pawning particular items and in this way they will be able to detect crime.

In addition, the gentleman may have read recently in the Philadelphia newspapers of rings of burglars who committed hundreds of burglaries and these items have been pawned. If the police were able to go into these pawnbroker shops and find records of these items, they would then be able to recover the items and return them to their proper owners. In many cases the pawnbroker, after he has had the items for 90 days, simply resells the items and it is impossible to recover the stolen merchandise, but if the police had the power to go in and examine the records they would be able to recover stolen merchandise, sometimes in large quantities, and return that merchandise to their proper owners. I say this is a bill really in the public interest.

Mr. GOLDSTEIN. Mr. Speaker, I merely want to say after Mr. Eilberg's explanation, that today in the city of Pittsburgh daily reports are made by pawnbrokers and if they do not do that in Philadelphia today and you think this legislation is necessary, they ought to have it.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1430, entitled:

An Act repealing section 1035, act of April 29, 1959 (Act No. 32), entitled "An act consolidating and revising the Vehicle Code the Tractor Code the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act and other acts relating to the ownership possession and use of vehicles and tractors," relating to carrying of other vehicles, the weight of which is above the cab of the carrier vehicle or above the head of the operator of the carrier vehicle.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the repeal of this Act.

To start with, we have been dwelling on highway safety for some time. I think we are all for it. I think we are all inclined to go along with some parts of it. This Act which we are trying to repeal today was first enacted into law in 1935. In 1937 the Legislature saw fit, because of the people who had money invested in equipment, to extend the time of this Act for two years. In the meantime it was taken through the Dauphin County court, from there it was taken to the Superior and then to the Supreme Court.

I would like to read the opinion of the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in the case of Maurer vs. Boardman. I am not an attorney, but I took a long time to look this up and I want to read it. This was in 1939. I want to read the opinion of the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

At the hearing in the court below there was evidence on behalf of the Commonwealth to prove that the operation of a truck-tractor with car over cab, is dangerous and unsafe to the operator thereof and to the traveling public; that the hazards of highway travel are materially increased by the use of these vehicles upon the roads of the Commonwealth, as was shown by testimony establishing the following facts: (a) The automobile over the cab raises the center of gravity of the vehicle, resulting in making its operation difficult, particularly on curves of the type to be found in Pennsylvania; (b) excess weight is placed upon the front wheels of the truck-tractor, thereby affecting detrimentally its steering, the action of its brakes, and throwing its headlights out of focus, to the danger of oncoming traffic, (c) the extension of the carried automobile and the vertical framework supporting it over the cab of the truck-tractor obstruct the vision of the operator, as well as that of drivers of over-taking vehicles; (d) overhead and lateral obstructions along the highway cause the truck-tractor to be operated upon the wrong side of the road, to avoid scratching and damage to the carried vehicle;—

Here is the most important part of this, I think.—

(e) the chains used to anchor the automobile over the cab, and the supporting structure, are insufficient to resist the force transmitted in the event of collision, with the result that the automobile becomes detached and falls on the carrier vehicle.

This is an opinion of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and I will go a little further and give you the witnesses who were called and submitted this evidence.

Among the witnesses called on behalf of defendants were Professor August Ulmann, Jr., a member of the faculty of the Towne Scientific School of the University of Pennsylvania, a mechanical engineer and physicist; Dr. Henry F. King, an automotive engineer connected with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and also consulting engineer for some of the larger automobile companies. These witnesses, by calculations based upon actual measurements and study of the equipment used by plaintiffs, and by exhibits showing the formulae used in connection with the law of physics, whereby the center of gravity is determined, testified with respect to the technical questions involved whether the car over the cab causes excess weight on the front wheels, and detrimentally affects steering, braking, headlights, front tires, front axles, vision, and strength of chains used in anchoring the automobile over the cab. In their opinion such equipment is dangerous and unsafe. Defendants also called Alfred Baxter, Harry Edwards and Leroy Marshall, who have been employed and had experience as drivers of this type of vehicle. Their testimony was to the effect that the vision of the operator thereof was obstructed; that the top-heavy weight over the cab interfered with steering and braking, particularly upon curves, because of the slow response of the steering gear, and the inside pull, with a resultant difficulty in straightening out after completion of curves.

Now I say to you people in the House, a long time ago, back in 1935, we corrected a situation which was then deemed to be unsafe. I say to you that in 1959, if we go back and discount the ruling of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and the testimony of people who were called in to testify in this case, then we are not interested in highway safety.

Mr. DENNISON. Mr. Speaker, if the House is not thoroughly confused now I will try to further confuse it.

The gentleman has cited the safety record back in 1935. I think it was Mr. Longfellow who said "Nor tempt the future's portal with the past's blood rusted key." We are not predicting our present day safety program on the 1935 code.

The fact is, and I have the figures before me now, that the record of this type of vehicle is far superior to that of any other type of vehicle engaged in similar pursuits. In other words, here are the percentages, and these are the facts by the National Safety Council: The total accident percentage record of the type of vehicle covered in this type of legislation is .41, the total of all other vehicle engaged in similar enterprise is .64. So that does not give credence to what has been said by the Supreme Court decision.

Also, there has been much improvement in the type of vehicles being used for this purpose, there is a difference in metals, there is a difference in braking, and in every way safety has been improved. If we want a safe means of transportation, I ask each of you to vote for this legislation. Thank you.

Mr. HOCKER. Mr. Speaker, I hate to quarrel with my good friend Mr. Dennison from Jefferson County, but his last statement, "if we want a safe means of transportation," I just cannot see because all it does is to allow a trucker to haul five automobiles instead of four. I just do not get his point.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1457, entitled:

An Act amending the "Bituminous Coal Open Pit Mining Conservation Act" approved May 31, 1945 (P. L. 1198) increasing the amount of bond and clarifying a provision relating to overburden.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, House Bill No. 1457, Printer's No. 1252, is a bill that was amended following a conference in which the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries, Democrat Members of the House, Representatives of the Pennsylvania Open Pit Producers and the sportsmen of Pennsylvania participated.

Now in House Bill No. 1457, in the amended bill, this is a compromise. The original bill called for complete backfilling following the stripping of coal. The present bill provides that you backfill three feet above the level of the coal. Let us take for example that the high wall cut is 80 feet. If the high wall cut was 80 feet, the backfill would be three feet above the coal that was removed, leaving a high wall of 77 feet. The bill as it was introduced required complete backfilling of that high wall. What is the compromise? The compromise, if you read the bill carefully, says that 50 percent of the high wall shall be backfilled, which means that if the same cut was made at 80 feet, removing the overcast, instead of backfilling three feet, they would be a backfill of 40 feet and the degree of slope shall not exceed 45 degrees. For instance on the land that you are trying to conserve, to save, to bring back into productivity, to use it in game and conservation programs of Pennsylvania, you are now going to eliminate the high wall which is the one item that has bothered all of us in Pennsylvania.

House Bill 1457 is a piece of legislation that every coal operator in Pennsylvania can live with and help to make Pennsylvania more beautiful and still make a profit in mining open pit coal. This is a fact, for we in the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries have let open competitive bids in backfilling where the high walls were left. This is a matter of record, how much it costs to backfill. These are open for public inspection. In this bill the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries agrees to this compromise in the bill, a compromise that I think is good for Pennsylvania, good for the coal producers, the open pit producers, and good for the people who want to bring back the land where these high walls exist. So very simply House Bill 1457 does the following: When they make the cut for the coal, and where they now leave the high wall that leaves that scarred face of the earth, that you all have complained about, that you do not want in your back yard, but it is there wherever we have open pit mining, and this would now start to slope that back wall at 45 degrees and bring the fill to one-half the depth of the high wall. It is very simple. That is what the bill does and this is a bill that I can say is now endorsed by the sportsmen of Pennsylvania, even though they did want the bill in its original form, which called for the complete backfilling of the high wall.

We are not trying to pass legislation to place our Pennsylvania open pit coal producers in an unfair position with their neighbors in other states. We believe that this is sound, we believe that they will also agree that it is, and will help to restore this land of ours where open pit mining exists in the bituminous fields of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Speaker, I urge every Member of this House to support this legislation.

Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. Speaker, this bill as it is still written will increase the cost of the production of coal. The coal industry today cannot stand an increase in production. We must keep the cost of production down. For that reason I ask the House to vote against this bill, I request a slow roll call.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, may I have permission to interrogate the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Buchanan?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Indiana permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BUCHANAN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Buchanan, inform the House if 1457 were a law how much more it would cost per ton in open pit bituminous mining in Pennsylvania than it does at the present time?

Mr. BUCHANAN. Of course, it would depend on the depth of the pit. As the bill was originally written, it would probably have cost in the neighborhood of from 25 to 50 cents a ton.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman inform us in his opinion if the figures were 25 cents a ton as the bill was originally written, what, in his opinion, would it cost now?

Mr. BUCHANAN. Of course, that would depend, as I said before, on the depth of the pit. If the pit is deep then it would cost considerably more per ton.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman from Indiana inform us as to what his source of facts is regarding the cost per ton of increasing this cost?

Mr. BUCHANAN. I might add that under the present law it costs each company the same amount per ton, because you put an overburden of three feet over the coal, but under this bill, in some instances it would be 40 feet, in others 20 feet.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

If it costs, as the gentleman from Indiana said, 25 cents a ton as the bill originally was drawn, then the bids which are a matter of public record, on which the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries has open competitive bids as to backfilling in areas where these high walls were left, then there must be something wrong with the cost, because the records of the bids in 1957 and '58, which are a matter of public record in the Department of Mines and Mineral Industries, clearly indicate that the bids which they used in backfilling and completed did not exceed the neighborhood of six to eight cents per ton. If this is so, and this is a matter of record, what are we doing? They backfilled the complete contour of the land. They brought it back to its natural contour condition. We are not going to that position. We are going to one-half of the fill.

If you oppose this legislation, then you favor the high walls to be left in Pennsylvania. If the coal is 80 feet deep, and you backfill three feet, you favor a 77-foot high wall to be left in your county and mine, and that is the way you want it left because that is what the law is. But, if you vote for 1457 in its amended form, you favor the sloping of the grade from the present high wall to one-half the distance of the cut, which means on an 80 foot cut there would be a 40 foot backfill and 45 degree slope, bringing it to the high wall.

This is a step which Pennsylvania has long needed. The bond in this bill was reduced because the bond is not needed in the amount as originally placed in this bill to do this job. Those who say that it will cost this figure do not have any facts to stand on the cost. The matter of public record on the bids clearly indicates that in this case the costs are not there. This is a matter of trying to make Pennsylvania the place that we want it to look like. We want to mine this coal. We want these people to be on a competitive basis with their neighbors in this industry in other states, and yes, last but not least, we want this land restored.

All I need to say is take a good trip and look through Clarion County, look through Indiana County, look through Westmoreland County, look through Allegheny, Fayette, Washington, Greene, and Somerset, and if you do not know what a high wall looks like in a bituminous field you can see it there completed according to law. This is the bituminous field we speak of, this is the type of legislation that the sportsmen are willing to agree to, we can agree to it, and I ask the unanimous support of every Member in this House in the passing of this legislation.

Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. Speaker, as I previously said, I am opposed to legislation that will increase the cost of the production of coal. From my area we sell much of our coal in the New York area. This means that we must compete with cheap residual oils and other fuels produced in this country. For this reason I am going to vote against this bill. I want to keep these miners employed in my area.

Mr. FOX. Mr. Speaker, in the early portion of the Majority Leader's remarks he mentioned that we have these strip mines in our backyards. From my backyard I can see five such strip mines in various stages of being reclaimed or stages of abandonment. They run the range from complete restoration to agricultural use to complete abandonment with deep high walls and high piles of overburden that will forever, unless later leveled, be worthless real estate.

It seems to me in view of the fact that much of this land can be reclaimed for agricultural purposes, still other land reclaimed for growing of trees and conservation purposes, that it is a very high price in tax revenue for local governments and in productive farm lands for the Commonwealth to pay to keep the price of mining coal at the present level.

Mr. McCANN. Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to insert into the record that there are some of our major companies in Pennsylvania which I am permitted to name, for example, which require that all of their strippers backfill every piece of their ground to contour level. This is not law; this is a regulation that they impose upon their people. I think that it is fair to say that one of the major companies in the use of coal in Pennsylvania, the United States Steel Corporation, requires that very thing. Many people who let these contracts themselves, that is, the individual farm owner or land owner, also secure this agreement. But, this again is not law. This is a separate agreement.

I think it is time that we in Pennsylvania stand on our feet. We are not trying to hurt anyone, to stand up here and try to guarantee to the future that no more of our land will be placed in the useless category and try to develop a sensible, sound legislative program on the backfill of the open pit bituminous mining industry, a piece of legislation that I believe anyone will tell you is long overdue.

Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. Speaker, the statement that was made by the Majority Leader is certainly true that some companies require the complete backfilling of strip mines, but there are certain other factors we should know in those cases.

Some of those companies bought that coal years and years ago, whereas some companies today are buying new coal lands. There is considerable difference in the cost which they must pay for this coal. The companies that are buying coal land today certainly are at a disadvantage when it comes to production costs.

Mr. GRAMLICH. Mr. Speaker, with the permisison of the House I would like to make a few brief remarks regarding this bill. This has not been touched upon—the remarks that I intend to make.

At the present time we are confronted with possibly 90 to 100,000 fishing licenses that are short this year. We have had two hearings before the Senate Committee. We have backwater in my county as well as Clearfield and Clarion and many other counties. I say to you everyone who is within my hearing, and that is this, it isn't the major companies that are doing these things. It is the smaller companies who get a permit possibly for ten acres of land, and with the bond as low as it has been, they not only strip the ten or fifteen acres for which they have a permit, they strip twenty-five or thirty or more acres, forfeit the bond and leave an acid hole in the ground.

This is what has been said in a recent publication by one of our outdoor writers. I appeal now especially to the men who are fishermen.

The sacrifice of fine trout fishing waters to strip mining pollution, mud and acid is inestimable. This loss is almost total in Clarion and Butler Counties. Venango County's few remaining trout streams are threatened as open pit miners keep hammering away for permits on high, unpolluted headwaters.

As an example, Hemlock Creek, which flows through seven wild miles of this beautiful country in President Township and which has served and satisfied hundreds of camp fishermen and transients for years, now has a slight touch of acid.

I have traveled, this is not quoted, a stream from its source to the mouth where it empties into the Allegheny River and there is not any, or was not a year ago, semblance of life in this beautiful stream. At the headwaters, by the way, is a very large coal bank in a pond which should be rectified, which pollutes this stream.

Camp fishermen entrenched for years now find a slight touch of acid in this stream because of strip mining and coal washing in Washington Township, Clarion County, Venango County and many others. I say to you that we will sell more fishing licenses if we will vote for this bill, increase the bond, and let these gentlemen, so-called, go put the dirt back after they take it out. It will not cost so much money that it is going to increase the cost twenty-five cents a ton. That figure I disagree with.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1893, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 29, 1959 (Act No. 32) entitled "An act consolidating and revising the Vehicle Code the Tractor Code the Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act and other acts relating to the ownership possession and use of vehicles and tractors" providing that the additional examination required for school bus operators shall also apply to operators of buses subject to the jurisdiction of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission which carry school children.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which this bill passed third reading be reconsidered.

Mrs. HENZEL. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. T. H. W. JONES asked unanimous consent to offer an amendment at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the Clerk for information.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 609), page 3, lines 7 and 8, by striking out "and whether or not".

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of an amendment at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. FINEMAN. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Jones.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Jones, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman tell the Members of the House the purpose of his amendments?

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of these amendments is to delete the portion of those amendments which I believe were offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman.

Specifically, Mr. Fineman, I believe, amended the bill at a time when I did not know he was going to amend it and apparently when I was out of the room, and they change the purpose of the bill as originally written.

Mr. FINEMAN. Will the gentleman tell me what the purpose of the bill, as originally written, was prior to the original amendments?

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Yes, I will, Mr. Speaker. Briefly, the law for a long time has required a special driver's examination for school bus operators, and apparently the words "school bus operators" have meant legally only those school bus operators who are employed by the school districts.

Some of the safety councils down in my section of the state have complained in instances where a school district have contracted with a carrier, perhaps under the Public Utility Commission, has entered into a contract with him to carry their school children. In this case, of course, the gentleman will recognize he is an independent contractor and not an employee, and the drivers of that contract carrier are not required to have any school bus operators' examinations. It was the feeling of our safety council down my way that all people who drove children should take the same examination if they were employed by a school district or independent contractors for the school district.

If the gentleman will permit me a minute, I will anticipate what I think he is going to say.

The gentleman's amendments broaden the scope of the bill to include any bus driver who is to carry children back and forth to school. In other words, the bus driver here in Harrisburg, let's say, on the regular bus route, would have to take this school bus drivers' special examination.

I am not prepared to say necessarily that that is a bad thing, in itself. It just simply is an extension of the idea that has been a part of so much legislation we passed in the House that when children are subject to the jurisdiction, or under the control of the school system, then they are given special safety treatment.

For example, a week or so ago in this House we had a bill involving fire extinguishers in school buses, and we forbade the use of a certain type of fire extinguishers in school buses. Well, it could be argued it is perfectly silly to forbid its use in the school bus but yet to permit it in other places where children might congregate. Nevertheless, we cannot protect our children everywhere, it seems to me, and our efforts should be devoted to protect them when they are under the school system and under its control, and that I think is sufficient.

Hence, I am changing the bill to provide that, or trying to.

Mr. FINEMAN. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman of the opinion that carriers exclusively of school children, and particularly the operator of the buses, should as a safety requirement have to take these additional examinations? That is, limiting this question now only to those carriers who carry school children exclusively.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. I am not sure I understand the gentleman one hundred percent, but that is the purpose of my amendments, to limit this special examination requirement only to those drivers who carry school children as employees of the school district or under contract to the school district to carry them.

Mr. FINEMAN. Is it not a fact that there are persons who are licensed by the Public Utility Commission to carry school children whose franchise is limited only to the transportation of school children and who are not under contract?

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. In answer to that, Mr. Speaker, I just do not know, but I doubt it.

Mr. FINEMAN. Well, by way of informing the gentleman I would tell him there are licensees under our Public Utility Commission regulations today whose rights, granted by the Public Utility Commission, are limited solely to the transportation of school children and who have no contract with any school district.

Now do you not feel, assuming for purposes of this discussion, that these carriers should be subject to the requirements of this bill also?

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, could the gentleman explain to me what sort of a situation those particular bus companies have? I do not understand.

Mr. FINEMAN. Yes, I will be glad to. For instance, in the city of Philadelphia, and I know this must be equally true throughout the state, there is the PUC licensee who is authorized by the PUC to transport and carry school children to and from their homes and their respective schools. They are not permitted to carry anyone other than school children, and they are not permitted to go outside of certain designated routes. Their activities are limited solely to the transportation of school children. These licensees do not necessarily have to have a contract with any school district.

From the standpoint of safety of the children, and that is what we are principally and primarily concerned with, the drivers of those buses should be required to take the additional examination just as are the drivers of school buses where they are under contract with the school districts.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Well, Mr. Speaker, one further thing, do these carriers charge so much a ride, charge the children?

Mr. FINEMAN. Yes, so much per fare.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. So much per fare, and they carry nobody but school children?

Mr. FINEMAN. Just the school children.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman through interrogating me?

Mr. FINEMAN. For the moment.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Will the gentleman yield to me for a moment?

Mr. FINEMAN. I shall.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I am inclined to agree with the gentleman if such public carriers do exist. I think anybody who carries school children under contract, or is an employee of the school district or who has a certificate of convenience from the Public Utility Commission limited so that that carrier carries nothing but children, he should be included in this bill. Is that the gentleman's purpose in interrogating?

Mr. FINEMAN. That is. Will the gentleman therefore withdraw his amendments?

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Fineman, one question. Will he permit that?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FINEMAN. I shall.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman from Philadelphia permit me to add something to these amendments to take care of this situation so they could be offered a second time?

Mr. FINEMAN. Of course.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Thank you.

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I request permission to withdraw the amendments that I have offered.

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection permission is granted. The Chair hears none.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

BILL POSTPONED

Mr. T. H. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be placed on the third reading postponed calendar.

The motion was agreed to.
